MUD SLIDE CASUALTY

This car, parked near a motel on Highway 1 in Big Sur, was partially buried yesterday by a mud slide that smashed into the Northern California community. The slide did an estimated $500,000 damage, and forced 50 people to leave their homes. (See story and another photo on page 2.)

Court Votes Down Challenge To War

Douglas, Brennan Dissent Vigorously

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court in a 7-2 vote today rejected one more in a long series of legal challenges that the Vietnam war was unconstitutional.

Justices William O. Douglas and William J. Brennan Jr. dissented vigorously, saying no declaration of war had been made by Congress and that the question really was the constitutionality of "a presidential war."

The Court acted in a case of three Californians who claimed Congress illegally delegated its war declaration powers to the President in 1961. It takes the vote of four justices to place a case on the Court's docket for a hearing and an ultimate formal decision.

In another action, the Court declined to hear an appeal of an antiwar group against the use by the government of the 1917 Trading with the Enemy Act to prevent the distribution of unsolicited material mailed the group from North Vietnam.

In other major actions, the Court:

—Refused to delay a lower court's order calling for busing of about 14,000 public school students in Memphis next January, and also refused to speed up consideration of a busing case from Richmond, Va.

—Declined to review lower court rulings from Ohio which exempted the auto insurance business from federal antitrust laws on grounds the state exercises regulatory powers in the field. The unsuccessful challenge of the exemption was brought by the Ohio AFL-CIO.

—Agreed to hear a Georgia case to decide whether the 1965 Voting Rights Act protecting political rights of racial minorities applies to state legislative reapportionments. At issue was the right of the Justice Department to veto such reapportionment in Georgia and other states with past records of low

WHY SCHOOLS PAY

The Cost Of Consultants

By PAT PERRY
(Last of two articles)

Why do school districts need outside consultants when they have administrative staff?

"I think most of it is only in knotty problems," said San Rafael Supt. John F. Plank. "Our position has been we have an administrative staff that's fairly well informed and our problems are not too great."

He said his district uses consultants on federally funded projects and in special education areas. In-service programs for teachers themselves are usually conducted by consultants, too, he said.

Three school systems in Marin — San Rafael, Tamalpais, and the county schools office — spent a total of $33,262 in expenditures last fiscal year on outside help, Tamalpais High School District accounting for more than $27,000 of the total.

Robert E. Spain, assistant county superintendent of schools, said the use of consultants "is on the increase with the explosion of knowledge in recent years."

His opinion, however, is not shared by all other administrators. Supt. James G. Bunker of the Novato Unified School District, an agency which invested less than $800 on outside help last year, said this year the district has budgeted only $200 for consultants, and never has made extensive use of them.

Supt. Wilber D. Hawkins of the Tamalpais High School District said he thought use of consultants was "probably increasing because many school districts are reducing personnel —they don't have as many administrative positions as there once was."

He said that Tam's decentralization program would mean more consultants for the schools themselves, and fewer for the district office.

What do consultants and schools consult about? Anything and everything, from accounting to I.Q. testing, from medical examinations to educational concepts.

The San Francisco accounting firm of Main Lafrentz and Co. was paid $9,340 by the Tamalpais district last year for helping to update its antiquated accounting and data processing system.

Availability of federal and state funds to school districts, meanwhile, has raised a new crop of consultants, called "fundsmen." These consultants, for a fee, write projects that might qualify for outside financial assistance. Some districts employ their own fundsmen (the Marin Community College District does), while others use outside experts.

Still another phase of the lucrative consultancy field runs more on subjective lines. For instance, an organization called "Problem Solving Inc.," was paid $260 by the Tamalpais district. According to Superintendent Hawkins, the "Tam Task Force" was organized to assess students' needs and Problem Solving Inc. was paid to tell them how.

The district also hired consultants to help the screening committee which selected Tamalpais High's new educational leader, Dr. Lawrence Sheppard. And the Task Force at Redwood High School employed a consultant, Dr. Peter Sherrill, who told the task force what to do with data accumulated on educational priorities.

Funds intended for consultants' fees are generally spread around school district budgets, and the question of hiring a consultant is usually left to department heads. Only in the case of major expenditures, as in district audits, does approval for employment of consultants go before a board of trustees.

Accepted rates for consultants start at around $100 a day, administrators say. Cheapest are professionals already

Nixon Assures Families He Won't Abandon POWs

WASHINGTON (UPI) —President Nixon made an unscheduled visit to a convention of families of American POWs today and promised that "under no circumstances" would the men be abandoned.

"We cannot leave their fate to the good will of the enemy," Nixon said.

Nixon said that negotiations aimed at ending the war had been "very intensive" over the past year, but he declined to give any specifics for fear that it might jeopardize success of the negotiations —and because "I would not want to raise false hopes".

Henry A. Kissinger, Nixon's chief negotiator on Vietnam, had been expected to address the gathering at the Statler Hilton Hotel of the National League of Families of American Prisoners and Missing in Southeast Asia.

But Nixon told the meeting he decided to pre-empt Kissinger because he wanted the opportunity to thank the organization for supporting his policies in Southeast Asia.

Some 750 persons are attending the meeting, and at Sunday night's session, cheers greeted a speaker who said antiwar activists such as Cora Weiss and David Dellinger were more interested in Hanoi's goals than getting POWs home.

Nixon repeated his position that whatever agreement emerges in Vietnam would not include imposition of a Communist government in Saigon, and he added:

"We shall under no circumstances abandon our POWs and our MIAs.

"When I use the word abandon I speak quite deliberately. We cannot leave their fate to the good will of the enemy."

Nixon spoke about eight minutes in the ballroom of the hotel, and drew cheers when he said "draft dodgers" would have to pay a price for not serving their country.

"It would be the most immoral thing I coild think of to give amnesty to draft dodgers and deserters," Nixon said. "Your loved ones are paying a price for their choice and those who deserted America will pay a price for their choice."

Nixon said one of the most difficult decisions of his presidency was just before going to Moscow, May 8, in ordering intensified bombing of North Vietnam and the mining of its harbors. He said a massive invasion of the South by North Vietnam had raised the specter of defeat, and added:

"I could have accepted defeat and gone to Moscow hat in hand or acted to prevent that defeat. I acted."

Nixon told the families of the men who are missing or prisoners of war:

"I know it's been a long, long vigil. I know how much you suffer. I know how much your children suffer.

"You've never been away from my thoughts. You've never been away from my prayers. There's nothing I want more than to bring your loved ones home. I will never let you down."

This is the third annual convention of the largest organization of prisoner relatives, and they cheered at criticism of antiwar activists.

Rain Raises Levels In Reservoirs

The persistent mild storm that has gripped Northern California for more than a week is filling Marin Municipal Water District reservoirs and bidding to break all records for October rainfall totals.

The storm has dumped 7.08 inches in the water district rain gauges — bringing the season total to 8.1 inches — according to William R. Seeger, district manager. This added 1.8 billion gallons to the district's water supplies, which had been at a critically low ebb due to the long, dry winter and spring of 1971-72, Seeger said.

The district's total supply now stands at 6.6 billion gallons, compared with 10.3 billion gallons a year ago, and 9.2 billion gallons in 1970, the last winter the reservoirs were filled later in the year.

By Oct. 16 last year, water district gauges recorded only .4 inch total rain, compared to a normal 3.2 inches for the date, Seeger added.

The story was the same throughout the Bay Area. San Francisco has had the wettest October in 82 years, with 5.64 inches by yesterday.

The season's total in Ross today was 6.61 inches, with .27 inch falling in 24 hours ending at 8 a.m.; 6.8 inches in Novato with .05 inch since yesterday; 5.01 inches in Petaluma with 1.57 inches since 8 a.m. Saturday. Bolinas had the heaviest 24-hour rainfall in Marin, with 1.87 inches since yesterday morning.

The storm turned part of the

NOVATO HAS MCAL LEAD IN FOOTBALL

Undefeated Novato High School moved into undisputed possession of first place in the Marin County Athletic football race with a mud-splattered 7-0 victory over Drake Saturday, while previously undefeated Redwood lost to Terra Linda, 19-6.

Santiago Police Open Stores

SANTIAGO, Chile (UPI)— Riot police fired tear gas today into antigovernment demonstrators who protested the forced opening of stores that remained closed during a series of strikes that has crippled commercial activity across the nation.

Police smashed locks of shops along Ahumada Street, the capital's main shopping artery. They fired several tear gas barrages into crowds.

Protruding-Brain Infant Recovering

SAN JOSE, Calif. (UPI)—A six-month-old Mexican boy was released from the hospital Monday doing "just fine" after an operation that pushed a protruding section of his brain back into his skull.

Manuel Torres, an infant from Tijuana, will spend the next three months with the Robert Christensen family in San Pablo, Calif.

Abrams Takes Command As Army Chief Of Staff

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Gen Creighton W. Abrams was sworn in today as the Army's 26th chief of staff and was presented at the same time with the Distinguished Service Medal for "exceptionally meritorious service" while U.S. commander in Vietnam.

CREIGHTON W. ABRAMS
New chief of staff

Wearing a dress green uniform instead of the rumpled combat greens that became his trademark during four years in Vietnam, Abrams took the oath in an outdoor ceremony at the Pentagon.

His wife held a small family Bible on which he swore to "support and defend the Constitution of the United States against all enemies, both foreign and domestic."

Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird administered the oath after presenting the Defense Department's Distinguished Service Medal to Abrams.

Abrams replaces Gen. William C. Westmoreland, who also preceded Abrams in the Vietnam command. Abrams' confirmation was completed by the Senate last week. It was held up for weeks by the controversy over the unauthorized bombing raids over North Vietnam ordered by Air Force Gen. John D. Lavelle.

Lavelle, who was subordinate to Abrams in Southeast Asia, lost his command and was abruptly retired after the revelations about the bombing strikes, which occurred while secret negotiations between the United States and North Vietnam were in progress.

Abrams denied receiving knowledge that unauthorized raids were conducted. Witnesses told congressional investigators falsified reports were passed on from 7th Air Force headquarters in Vietnam to higher headquarters.

Abrams, a hell-for-leather tank commander in World War II, takes over an 840,000-member Army that has been through one of its most difficult periods in history in recent years.

The Army has been through its longest and most unpopular war, and its problems—some of them related to the war—have ranged from drugs to racial strife to disputes over hair length.

The administration has set the goal of converting the Army to an all-volunteer force by next June 30, when for the first time since the 1940s the nation will be without a military draft.

The Army also has equipment problems. He has been in trouble with Congress over both its futuristic Cheyenne helicopter, which did not work right, and its MBT70, the main battle tank, which skyrocketed in cost. Both projects were cancelled.

Abrams is used to being on the firing line. The Springfield, Mass., native commanded federal troops during the school desegregation crisis of the '50s and took charge in Vietnam in the middle of 1968, when public opinion was most inflamed over the war.

George Hall, Former Assessor, Colorful Marinite Dies At 77

George W. Hall Sr., for many years a colorful political figure in Marin County, died today in a local hospital after a lengthy illness. He was 77.

Hall served as Marin County Assessor from 1934 to 1958, and earlier was a director of the Marin Municipal Water District and a Corte Madera town councilman, beginning his political career in the 1920s.

Longtime friends recalled that Hall also was widely known for making hundreds of appearances during the years as Santa Claus at Christmas season parties for youngsters. His pre-Christmas parties in the assessor's office were a highlight of the festive season.

He also was known for sending hundreds of birthday cards and personally written sympathy notes to acquaintances throughout the county each year during his long tenure as assessor.

During the middle and late 1950s, Hall's controversy with the board of supervisors and grand jury over countywide property reappraisal and a board-ordered changeover in office equipment, made headlines.

He won court orders continuing the status of his office operations, but lost his 1958 reelection bid to his then deputy, Bert W. Broemmel, who still is assessor.

For many years, Hall was a fixture as announcer for popular Sunday afternoon baseball games in Tiburon. He also called plays at whist parties, was parade announcer and toastmaster for functions of the many organizations of which he was a member.

Hall was the last surviving charter member of the Corte

Kleindienst Says Crime Is Down

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Attorney General Richard G. Kleindienst said today in the first Justice Department review of federal law enforcement activities that there were indications crime is declining.

Kleindienst submitted the review, which was originally scheduled for 1971, to Congress as required under the 1970 Omnibus Crime Control Act.

The 542-page review lists major laws passed in the last decade and describes the law enforcement activities of all departments and agencies of the federal government in addition to the Justice Department.

SURVEYS DAMAGE — Owner Richard Hartford, hands in pockets, yesterday surveyed damage done to his Big Sur Village Store after it was inundated by the community's third mud slide in four days. The Pfeifer Big Sur Lodge and the Big Sur Garage were also hit by yesterday's slide.

(UPI Telephoto)

50 Flee Homes In Big Sur Slide

BIG SUR, Calif. (UPI)—When an avalanche of mud and boulders smashed into this Pacific Coast resort town, Tom Murphy Jr. said "it sounded like about 30 diesel trucks revving at the same time."

Murphy and his family of four had to flee their home in bare feet when the wall of mud didn't stop at the closed doors but crashed through windows and seeped in around the doors.

The mud, which slid off fire-dazed San Lucia Mountain Saturday, forced 50 persons from their homes and caused damage estimated at more than $500,000, although no serious injuries were reported.

"There was a rumbling and a crashing. It started coming at about 50 miles an hour. I wanted to get my car out of the way. I didn't worry about myself," said Don Smythe, 22.

"It picked my car up and smashed it against my trailer while I watched standing on my porch. It had big redwood logs coming across the highway with boulders the size of Volkswagens."

The Monterey County Sheriff's office said 13 homes, a store, Post Office and service station were filled with mud, and slime had seeped into 10 other residences.

U.S. Helicopter Pilot Killed, 5 Wounded By Communist Fire

SAIGON (UPI)—One American was killed and five wounded today when Communist fire ripped through a U.S. helicopter after it landed under attack at a South Vietnamese base in the Central Highlands, field reports said.

The incident occurred at an artillery base 20 miles south of Pleiku City and 210 miles north of Saigon, UPI reporter Matt Franjola said.

He said the helicopter landed at the outpost on Highway 14 to pick up a wounded U.S. adviser who was hit by mortar fragments. The chopper came under heavy Communist recoilless rifle and mortar fire, killing the pilot and wounding five crewmen.

In the air war over North Vietnam, the U.S. command said today Navy pilots Sunday destroyed 1,500 barrels of fuel and sent smoke billowing to 10,000 feet in heavy raids against a petroleum depot outside Vinh, the country's second largest city. The command also disclosed the loss of an Air Force F4 Phantom jet fighter-bomber over the North last Thursday and said it was presumed shot down by a Communist MIG fighter. The two crewmen were reported missing.

Franjola said fighting continued into the late afternoon south of Pleiku and that the highway was cut south of the city, a province capital.

Navy pilots also reported destroying three highway bridges south of Vinh. They attacked numerous suspected supply caches around the port city of 200,000 people and command spokesmen said three U.S. Navy vessels fired their five-inch guns on the Yen My supply storage area 19 miles northwest of Vinh.

South Vietnamese spokesmen said government troops Sunday killed 89 Communists in heavy fighting along Highway 13 about 22 miles north of Saigon. Military sources said South Vietnamese troops reopened the highway today after it had been cut for 10 days but that fighting was still in progress.

The spokesmen said Highway 1 between Saigon and Xuan Loc, a province capital 38 miles of the capital, remained closed today.

Israel Hits Guerrillas: New Policy

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

Israel's latest air raids on Palestinian commando outposts in Lebanon and Syria signal a new policy of striking at Arab guerrillas without provocation, an Israeli military source in Tel Aviv said today.

Israeli warplanes hit four Arab guerrilla bases in Southern Lebanon and one in Syria Sunday. The source said the strikes marked the advent of Israel's new campaign to strike at guerrillas whenever and wherever it wants without waiting for them to first mount attacks from across the borders.

"The VIPs (Israeli officials) have been saying this all along, and these raids were the military translation of that," the source said.

He said guerrilla attacks in Europe and the current Arab terrorist campaign of mailing bombs to Israeli officials have changed the situation.

Another Israeli military source said in Tel Aviv that the stationing of Syrian troops in southern Lebanon disguised as Arab guerrillas apparently has become a regular practice

The spokesman said that during their raid into Lebanon Sept. 16-17, Israeli troops captured a number of guerrillas, one of whom turned out to be Mustafa Abd el-Selam, a Syrian regular.

"According to the information given in the interrogation of the Syrian soldier, it seems apparent that the posting to Lebanon of Syrian soldiers doing their regular army service, through el Saika (guerrilla organization), has become a regular practice," he concluded.

The captured soldier will not be treated as a prisoner of war, the spokesman said, because he was not wearing a uniform and was not a member of a regular Syrian unit. He said the man will be treated as all guerrilla captives, most of whom are put on trial.

Hub Meeting

The San Anselmo City Council and Planning Commission will hold a joint meeting Nov. 1 at 8 p.m. at city hall to discuss the county's general plan and government structure study.

WORLD NEWS IN BRIEF

Secretive On Clash

HONOLULU (UPI) — The Navy was still secretive today about a racial brawl that injured 46 persons aboard the carrier Kitty Hawk although five days have passed since the seaborne clash.

"At this point we don't have anything we can give you," a Navy spokesman said when asked why no details were being released, whether a preliminary investigation had been completed or even the conditions of three men flown to shoreside hospitals.

Also unanswered were whether weapons were involved, what sparked the fight, the identities of the injured and how many were involved.

All the Navy would add to its original tersely worded statement announcing the "altercations" between blacks and whites was that "there had been no previous incidents of this nature aboard the Kitty Hawk."

Strike Settled

DETROIT (UPI) — Without calling it a settlement, United Auto Workers Local 25 has agreed to return to work tomorrow at the General Motors Assembly Division Plant in St. Louis, while bargainers continued meeting in Ohio and Georgia, attempting to resolve other strikes.

A UAW spokesman here labeled the St. Louis agreement "a termination, not a settlement, but was unable to provide the terms, under which the 8,500 employes ended their two-day walkout.

Negotiators continued meeting Sunday and were scheduled for talks Monday at GM's major body stamping plant at Mansfield, Ohio and its Doraville, Ga., assembly plant. A company spokesman said "negotiation would probably continue" on the St. Louis dispute as well.

Franco's Brother Changes Hospitals

MADRID (UPI) — Nicolas Franco Bahamonde, 81, glder brother of Generalissimo Francisco Franco, was transferred from Lisbon to Madrid's Peace Hospital Sunday. Doctors said he was suffering from "a serious circulatory attack and high blood pressure."

He was operated on Tuesday by a leading Lisbon neurosurgeon. Members of his family described the operation as a success.

Congress Still At It

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Congress and President Nixon face a showdown this week on what Nixon calls "the major domestic campaign issue"—his plan to place a $250 billion ceiling on federal spending this fiscal year.

Congress struggled with the issue over the weekend and in the process missed its deadline for adjournment. It may be in session another week before it calls it quits and allows members to go home to campaign.

Both houses stayed in session until early yesterday trying to finish the work of the 92nd Congress. They failed, and the Senate will resume its deliberations today, while House members will come back to work tomorrow.

Russ Selling Cotton

WASHINGTON (UPI)—While the Soviet Union receives millions of tons of favorably-priced U.S. wheat through the coming year to offset its own disastrous crop failure, it will be shipping out an increasing volume of cotton to step up competition against the United States in world markets.

The Agriculture Department's Foreign Agricultural Service (FAS), in a report published here today, said the increased competition in cotton markets was signalled by recently revised estimates of the 1972 Soviet cotton crop.

Earlier, the crop had been estimated at about 10.3 million bales. But new reports on the harvest, which normally runs from September through November, now estimate the crop will reach about 11.1 million bales.

Girl Arrested With Jewelry

A 19-year-old Woodacre girl was booked into Marin County Jail Friday on suspicion of possessing stolen property and narcotics paraphernalia after she was picked up in San Anselmo on a $48 traffic warrant.

Police arrested Judy Soga about 9 a.m. near Park and Railroad avenues. In her pocket and purse, officers said, they found a hypodermic syringe and jewelry stolen Wednesday in the $1,555 burglary of the Rita Knoz residence on Crescent Lane.

Crash Toll At 176

MOSCOW (UPI)—A light rain was falling but visibility was good as the sleek blue and white Soviet jetliner carrying 176 persons from Leningrad circled Moscow's Sheremetyevo airport three times. Airport control watched its final approach on radar.

Then, for an unknown reason, the Ilyushin 62 airliner belonging to Aeroflot, the Soviet airline, plunged into a pond in rolling farmland three miles away, killing all aboard. Rescuers arriving on the scene found only the airliner's T-shaped tail above water.

This account of Friday night's crash was pieced together from unofficial Soviet and Western airline sources. If true, it would make the disaster the worst in aviation history, surpassing the 162 killed in a July, 1971, mid-air collision over Japan.

Yanks In Ireland

BELFAST (UPI)—A spokesman for the militant Protestant Ulster Defense Association said today an undisclosed number of American veterans of the Vietnam War are training Protestant Irishmen in guerrilla warfare.

Northern Ireland's three-year fatality toll rose to 605 this weekend with the death of four more persons.

The spokesman for the UDA said an undisclosed number of veterans of Vietnam. "approached us and offered their services. We don't pay them but we look after their needs."

Insurance Talk

Lagunitas School District trustees will discuss today a fire insurance settlement arising from a Sept. 14 blaze that damaged the Lagunitas School multimedia center.

MAGIC MUSHROOM SPROUTS AT SHORE

Like some enormous fungus, this object now occupies a place of prominence at the Point Reyes National Seashore. "We call it our magic mushroom," an employee at the park headquarters said. Actually, the thing is one of the new "strong-motion earthquake recording instruments" being installed in various locations throughout the state. This one sits on a spot near a place where the earth was displaced 20 feet horizontally during the 1906 quake.

Eight Charged In Nine Slayings

CHICAGO (UPI) — Eight members of a black militant gang called "De Mau Mau" were charged Sunday with murdering nine persons, including the victims of two execution-style slayings of white families.

The eight, some of them former students at Malcolm X College and dishonorably discharged Vietnam veterans, were described by police as "the ringleaders and triggermen" of a gang that selected its victims at random.

Police said the slayings, some of which date back to last spring, appeared to be racially motivated and were linked together by ballistic test results.

The eight were charged in the murders of wealthy insurance executive Paul Corbett, his wife, step-daughter and sister-in-law in Barrington Hills, an exclusive Chicago suburb; the slaying of three members of the Stephen Hawtree family in rural Monee, Ill., the killings of Army Spec 5 William Richter in Highland Park, Ill., and Michael Gerchenson, a Southern Illinois University student. All the victims were white.

"We are hopeful we can solve a number of other terrible killings in the area," Sheriff Richard Elrod said.

Held without bond in Cook County Jail were Reuben Taylor, 22, his brother Donald, 21, Michael Clark, 21, Nathaniel Burse, 23, Edward Moran Jr., 23, Robert Wilson, 18, all of Chicago. Murder warrants were issued for two other gang members. Not all eight men were implicated in each murder, police said.

Elrod said the killings were apparently racially motivated but refused to elaborate. He would not say if black mililant or political literature was found when the suspects were arrested. But he did say numerous weapons were found and "might be considered an arsenal."

"The random selection makes the murders even more senseless and heinous," Elrod said. "It appears as if they were roaming the countryside looking for someone to kill."

"Nothing much was ever taken so I doubt robbery was a prime motive. From the statements we received, it appears the crimes may have been racially motivated," he said.

Dr. Charles Hurst, president of Malcolm X City College said members of the gang were expelled from the college last spring after they beat and intimidated students and teachers.

He said De Mau Mau was formed in Vietnam and the men got together when they returned with dishonorable discharges to the United States.

He said he did not know how many members were in the gang.

Motorcycle Issues To Be Discussed

Four Marin County supervisorsal candidates will meet with motorcycling enthusiats at 7 p.m. today to discuss sites for off-the-road riders, and other motorcycling issues involving county government.

The meeting will be in the Church of Ignacio in the Pacheco Plaza shopping center, according to Ollie Safholm, publicity chairman for the Marin County Motorcycle Association. She said the candidates who agreed to participate are Supervisor Peter R. Arrigoni Jr. and his challenger Barbara Boxer; Fourth District candidate Gary T. Giacomini, and his opponent in the runoff, Michael R. Peevey.

Thief Takes $150 At Restaurant

The Court House Creamery, Fourth and A streets, San Rafael, was burglarized of approximately $150 in cash Friday night, San Rafael police reported.

Officers said a tin containing the cash was discovered missing when the restaurant opened at 7:05 a.m. There was no sign of forced entry, but a rear door, which reportedly had been locked the night before, was found open, police said.

Dixie Sets Meeting On Tax Shift

Officials of the Dixie School District will discuss the effects of Proposition 14, the Watson tax shift initiative, on Dixie and other school districts at a series of public meetings.

Scheduled are: today, 8 p.m., Novato High School lecture hall, panel discussion sponsored by the Novato Community Education Task Force; Wednesday, 1 p.m., American Women's Organization for Rehabilitation through Training meeting at community room of Bank of Marin, Northgate Shopping Center; Wednesday, 8 p.m., Mary Silveira School in Marinwood; Oct. 24, 8 p.m., Bernard Hoffman School in Terra Linda; Oct. 26, 7:45 p.m., Don Timoteo School in Terra Linda; Nov. 1, 8 p.m., Lucas Valley School; Nov. 1, 8 p.m., Santa Margarita School; Nov. 2, 8 p.m., Nova Albion School, and Nov. 2, 8 p.m., Oak View School.

Discussion Tomorrow On Phase II Report

The controversial Phase II report of the county's balanced transportation program will be discussed again tomorrow by the Marin County Board of Supervisors.

The board, meeting at 10:30 a.m. at Civic Center, has delved into the report twice before, each time stirring questions of its validity.

The report is a forecast of transportation needs in 1990 if Marin is to reduce its reliance on the automobile.

Its major recommendation is a fleet of 350 intracounty buses operating — in part — on 23 miles of separate busways and within five to 10 minutes walking distance of most homes.

Portions of the document have come under fire by supervisors who question the $259 million price tag attached to an intracounty bus fleet that, according to the report, will be used by 7 per cent of the county's population.

On other matters, the board will receive a feasibility study for a cross-county bicycle path from Civic Center to the Point Reyes National Seashore and will discuss guidelines and procedures for environmental impact reports, required by state law on all major development projects.

The board meeting will be preceded at 9 a.m. in Room 332 of the administration building with a workshop session with the county housing authority and redevelopment agency boards. The groups will discuss upcoming redevelopment of Marin City.

There are about 14,000 commercial, state and national banks in the U.S.

Chicago Society Helping Wombat

BROOKFIELD, Ill. (AP) — The Chicago Zoological Society, using funds provided by the Forest Park Foundation of Peoria, owns 13,000 acres of semi-arid land in South Australia's "outback" to help increase the chances for the rare hairy-nosed wombat to survive.

The purchase was the first attempt by an outside zoological society to aid Australian wildlife.

The society bought the reserve when it became evident that the wombat's very existence was threatened by sheepmen. The entire area has been fenced and a game warden patrols the area.

Ex-Convict Slain At Halfway House

Paul Cook, an ex-convict and frequent visitor to Marin courts in his campaign to protest prison conditions, was shot to death last weekend in an Oakland halfway house.

Cook was gunned down Saturday at Alternative House, a home for ex-convicts, and a friend who helped him found the facility was arrested, held on suspicion of murdering him.

Cook, 32, was paroled from San Quentin in March 1970. He said he had been prison cellmate of both Ruchell Magee, charged in connection with the 1970 Civic Center shoot-out, and George Jackson, Soledad Brother, who died in a bloody 1971 San Quentin escape attempt.

After he was out of prison, Cook, often clad in chains which he said symbolized the plight of prisoners, lectured widely at high schools. He was a frequent spectator during trials of black militants, including Angela Davis.

In August he won the right to appear in a Marin Municipal courtroom wearing the turban he maintained was a religious headdress and which a bailiff had claimed was merely a hat which had to be removed.

Arrested in connection with his slaying was Maalik Al-Maalik, also 32, who reportedly recently had had a falling out with Cook over who was going to run the halfway house.

PAUL COOK
Slain in Oakland

Cook's wife, Charlotte, 17-year-old mother of two small children, told police she and other relatives watched in horror as Al-Maalik shot Cook in the chest and again in the head after he fell.

Police arrived to find Al-Maalik's wife, Christian, holding the entire Cook family at gunpoint. She was questioned by police but later released.

A San Quentin spokesman said today that Cook had evidently "romanticized his prison experiences" after his release and that he had not been a leader of black militants while in prison.

Associate Warden James W. L. Park also said that Al-Maalik, whose original name was Henry Crump, had in the past visited some inmates but that his visiting privileges had been revoked.

Sabrejet Described As Shell

The F86 Sabrejet that crashed into a Sacramento ice-cream parlor on Sept. 24 killing 22 persons was once a shell sold as a monument, according to Associated Press reports.

To meet Canadian Government policy, the plane's vital center section —which supports the wings — was supposed to have been cut to assure that the old Korean War-vintage fighter would never fly again.

The frame of the jet —owned by William Penn Patrick's Spectrum Air Inc., of Novato — was purchased from the Canadian government for $800, said A. P. in June 1970.

A New Brunswick firm, Maritime Aircraft and Overhaul reportedly sold the plane with its center section cut to Warren Grainger of Toronto in September 1971, said A.P.

Warren Grainger, who declined to discuss the Maritime sale or say what he did with the airframe, has been identified by Joseph Patrick as the man who supervised the initial reconstruction of Spectrum's F-86.

Patrick (no relation to William Penn Patrick) a retired Air Force pilot and former Spectrum Air employee, spent two months in New York early this year supervising the jet's ultimate reconstruction. Patrick then flew the plane, described as "very hot" to California, where it was housed in Oakland at William Penn Patrick's aircraft museum.

Harold A. Lipska, president of Spectrum, has declined comment, pending a federal investigation. The National Transportation Safety Board begins hearings on the crash in Sacramento today.

Suspended Sentence On Theft

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — Gary Schlemme of San Francisco, the third of a trio arrested in connection with property stolen in Marin, has received a suspended state prison sentence. Schlemme, 24, was also placed on three years probation.

He had earlier pleaded guilty to a drug charge in San Francisco Superior Court. Several other charges, including receiving stolen goods, were dismissed.

He, Norma Schlemme, 24, and Gary Webb, 26, were arrested in a raid on the Schlemme home April 18 in which large quantities of drugs and stolen property were seized. Included in the confiscated property were a $30,000 painting taken last March from a Kentfield residence and an 18th Century clock stolen in Sausalito.

Norma Schlemme received no jail time but was placed on three years probation and Webb was sent to county jail for seven months, placed on three years probation and received a suspended state prison sentence.

employed by other academic groups, since their salaries and overheads already have been paid.

And sometimes the cost of consultants can be offset by a paying audience. For instance the Tamalpais district paid dozens of consultants to take part in its successful "Breakthrough" conference this summer, but fees were not included in the $27,000-plus total, since the conference paid for itself.

A breakdown of three representative districts' payments to consultants in the 1971-72 school year follows:

SAN RAFAEL CITY SCHOOLS:

Stockton Man Leaps To Death

A 36-year-old Stockton man driving across Golden Gate Bridge yesterday stopped his car, kissed his fiancee goodbye and leaped to his death from midspan.

The man, Edward Shalkowski, was reportedly quarrelling with his fiancee, Celia Montez of Stockton, when he leaned over and said, "I'll always love you."

According to Miss Montez, he calmly got out of the car, in the southbound lane, climbed over the rail and jumped at about 1:25 p.m.

The couple had been returning from a trip to the bridge's Vista Point, Miss Montez reported. They had known each other for five months.

COURT

voter participation.

—Let stand lower rulings that it is constitutional for persons entering U.S. courthouses to be subjected to searches for guns and explosives. George Barrett, a Nashville lawyer, challenged the practice which has been in effect in numerous instances since June 15, 1971.

—Refused to disturb lower court decisions that an Army regulation which allows base commanders to control distribution of publications on their installations is constitutional.

— Delayed the effect of a Sept. 20 decision by a federal court in Hartford which declared Connecticut's abortion law unconstitutional.

— Refused to allow the American Party to sue 17 states and the District of Columbia directly in the high court to get a place on the November ballot.

— Ruled that a state may not refuse federally funded benefits to children on grounds the father's unemployment is caused by a strike or his discharge from his job.

— Refused to give priority consideration to a school busing dispute involving Richmond, Va., and two neighboring counties, and refused to direct the state to begin preparations for the busing ordered by afederal court judge so that it could be placed in effect next September if proponents eventually won.

The latest unsuccessful Vietnam war challenge originated in a Los Angeles federal district court where three men claimed that Congress unconstitutionally delegated its war powers to the President when it passed the foreign assistance act in 1961.

In a three-page disseft, Douglas said the Constitution gives Congress, not the President, the power to "declare war" and that this is a "specific grant of power that impliedly bars its exercise by the executive branch."

The power "is so pervasive in its reach that it may affect the lives, the property, and the well-being of the entire nation," he argued.

"No declaration of war has been made respecting Vietnam," Douglas added. "Hence the question can be phrased in terms of the constitutionality of the use of funds to pursue a 'presidential war.' "

Brennan joined Douglas in his written dissent.

Stolen Card Results In Arrest

A man said by witnesses to have tried to enter parked cars on Pine Street in San Anselmo Friday was arrested later on suspicion of possession of narcotics paraphernalia and a stolen credit card, according to police.

Richard Houston McKinley, 27, of no known address, was booked into Marin County Jail and released on $1,000 bail to appear tomorrow in Marin Municipal Court.

According to police, witnesses said a man who was trying to enter parked cars on Pine Street drove off in a car whose license plate was covered by a piece of cardboard. Police arrested McKinley in a similar car moments later, and then found narcotics paraphernalia on the floor of a patrol car in which he was questioned. A search produced a credit card stolen from a San Anselmo man a month ago as well as a syringe and a small bottle of clear liquid.

Candlestick Park parking lot into a quagmire for the weekend's football game, and sent mud oozing into the town of Big Sur in Monterey County. Residents evacuated homes and stores, threatened by a wall of mud eroded from the higher slopes denuded by recent forest fires.

The storm center that's causing all the rain remains almost stationary off the Pacific Coast, trapped between two high pressure systems in an unusual weather pattern, according to weather forecasters. Intermittent rains and some thunderstorms were predicted for tonight and tomorrow through most of Northern California.

Stickers Complaint

Loren Taber of Paloma Drive, Corte Madera, complained to police that someone plastered "Reelect the President" stickers all over his car Saturday.

LAW IN ACTION

From the State Bar Of California

City Has Broad License Powers

Dan Derby was eager to open a roller skating rink. He signed a long-term lease on a building. He bought skates. He invested in decorations and rink equipment.

Then he went to the city licensing we "I want a license for my rink," he said.

Said the bureau, "No license, Mr. Derby."

Dan appealed to the city licensing board. The chairman also said "No license, Mr. Derby." And added, "Based on reports, we think you're an unfit person to operate a rink, and wea also think it's not in the best interests of the public to have a rink here at all."

Dan went to court, muttering about free enterprise, captains of industry, and Horatio Alger. His attorney argued that the board was arbitrary and capricious.

The court turned him down. The city has broad powers to issue or deny licenses, it said. It didn't seem that Dan would be able to prevent disturbances around his building. Further, his rink would cause traffic congestion, and police said that in the past there had been riots, fighting and thefts around similar rinks. The court added that there was "substantial evidence" to support the local licensing board's ruling. It did not abuse its discretion in refusing the license.

A city cannot deny business licenses without good reason. If it has laws, they must set carefully written standards to guide the licensing boards. It cannot deny a license to a book store just because it thinks it will not like the books sold. Standards cannot be vague, such as "a feeling that the clientele would be undesirable."

The local licensing boards must support their decisions by solid evidence. If a board says that there will be traffic problems, or thefts, or fights, it must have reasonable proof that this is so.

If the board grants you a license, and later tries to take it away, you again have a right to hearing and review. But here you're in a better position. Just because a few patrons may have acted up is not grounds to revoke your license. The board has to prove you haven't been running your business properly before it can put you out of business by revoking your license.

Texas Penal Code Blasted

HOUSTON (AP) — Harris County Dist. Atty. Carol Vance urges major changes in the state's criminal justice system.

He called the Texas Penal Code "an illogical hodgepoge of 100 years of piecemeal legislation."

He noted that at present, possession of a marijuana cigarette carries a two-year to life sentence while murder without malice carries a two to five-year sentence.

Agreement Launches Rdsearch Project

LUBBOCK, Tex. (AP) — Dr. David E. Herrick, assistant director of the Rocky Mountain Forest and Range Experiement Station, has signed a cooperative agreement which launches Texas Tech's research participation in the Eisenhower Consortium for Research on Forest and Related Land.

The project will analyze management problems and opportunities in eastern New Mexico and west Texas and be primarily concerned with natural resources, recreational opportunities and environmental management.

Marin City Session

The Marin City Council will hold an adjourned meeting at 8 p.m. today at the Manzanita Center to discuss the proposed redevelopment project in Marin City.

Born in San Francisco, Hall moved to Corte Madera as a youngster, when his father, Henry C. Hall — for whom Hall School was named — became superintendent of the Larkspur-Corte Madera School District in 1900. Hall served in the Army artillery in World War I.

He is survived by his wife, Elvera, of the home at 15 Curtis Avenue, San Rafael; a son, George W. Hall Jr. of Novato, who works in the county assessor's office; a sister, Mercedes Brewig of San Rafael, and two grandchildren.

Mass of Resurrection will be celebrated at 10 a.m. Wednesday in St. Raphael's Church, followed by burial in Mount Olivet Cemetery. Tamalpais Post. No. 72 will conduct a memorial service at 7:30 p.m. tomorrow in Keaton's Mortuary, San Rafael, followed by recitation of the Rosary at 8 p.m.

Marin City Road Meeting Reset

The Marin County Redevelopment Agency has rescheduled its meeting originally set for tomorrow at 8 p.m. for Oct. 24 at 8 p.m.

The agency will meet in Room 308A of the Civic Center to discuss a second access road into Marin City and confirm its contract with Mid-City Development Inc., for the development of open land in Marin City.

Counselor's Speech

Mrs. Francis George, Lagunitas School District counselor, will speak at a parents' night program of the San Geronimo Valley Nursery School at 8 p.m. Oct. 26.

MRS. SEAVER

Madeline Terry Lorenz Seaver, 51-year-old Marinwood resident died Friday in a local hospital after a long illness. At her request no service will be held.

Mrs. Seaver worked for many years as a legal secretary in the Marin County counsel's office.

She was born in Colville, Wash., and after business college, began a long working career. She first worked in theater groups in Hollywood and then served as an information officer in the White House under Presidents Roosevelt, Truman and Eisenhower.

She then moved to San Francisco, where she worked in an executive capacity for American President Lines. She married another APL executive, William G. Seaver, who died in 1970.

In 1958 Mrs. Seaver moved to Marinwood and went to work for the county. She retired last year.

Her home was at 445 Pinewood Drive.

She is survived by two brothers, James and Elton Lorenz.

CYRIL TAYLOR

No funeral will be held for Cyril Charles Taylor of Corte Madera, who died in a local convalescent hospital Thursday following a long illness. He was 79.

A native of London, he worked as a cable engineer for International Telephone and Telegraph in New York City until retiring 12 years ago.

Upon retirement, he and his wife, Allix, moved to Marin. They lived at 61 Prince Royal Drive, Corte Madera.

Surviving, in addition to his wife, are two sons, Charles Taylor of Greenbrae and Richard Taylor of San Diego; two sisters in England, and two grandchildren.

EUGENE CRAWFORD

Funeral will be tomorrow at 10 a.m. at Keaton's Chapel of Marin, Novato, for Eugene Edward Crawford of Novato.

Crawford, a construction and paving working for 35 years, died Saturday at a local hospital following a long illness. He was 54.

A native of Canada, he moved to Marin 20 years ago.

He and his wife, Ruby, who survives, lived at 463 Wilson Avenue, Novato.

Rosary will be recited at 8 p.m. today at the funeral chapel.

S. A. SAGEHORN

Funeral was held today in Oakland for Schroyer A. Sagehorn, 76, of San Anselmo, who died Friday in a local hospital after a short illness.

Sagehorn was a retired prison farm supervisor.

He was born in Oakland, but was the descendant of a pioneer Marin family, the Schroyers, who owned a ranch in Ignacio.

Sagehorn owned a ranch in Salinas at the start of his career and then went to work for the federal government, supervising prison ranches at Leavenworth, Kans.; Chillicothe, Ohio; Ashland, Ky., and Mill Point, W. Va.

He retired about 10 years ago and six years ago came to San Anselmo to live with his sister, Irma Russell, at 194 Tunstead Avenue.

He had been a member of the Salinas Elks Lodge.

J.E. ARRINGTON

Jack Edward Arrington, San Rafael mechanic, died yesterday at a local hospital after an illness of five months.

Arrington, 63, was born in Hanford, Kings County, and had lived in Marin County many years before moving to Petaluma eight years ago.

Arrington worked as an auto-metal mechanic for Duffy Brothers, San Rafael. He was a graduate of the Hancock Aeronautical College in Santa Maria.

He was a member of Palo Alto Masonic Lodge No. 1108, Petaluma Loyal Order of Moose No. 475, Alacosta Legion of Moose No. 70 and San Rafael Machinists Union, Local No. 238.

He is survived by his wife, Billie; a daughter, Joyce Swallow; a son, James W. Arrington, both of Petaluma; a sister, Eloise Harrison of Oroville; and two grandchildren.

Funeral will be held at 2 p.m. Wednesday at the Parent Funeral Chapel, Petaluma. Burial will be at Cypress Hill Memorial Park.

Contributions may be made to the Santa Rosa unit of the American Cancer Society.

C. M. HARMS

Funeral for Charles M. Harms, 83, former Petaluma salesman, will be held at 2 p.m. tomorrow at the Sorensen Funeral Home, Petaluma.

Harms died Friday at his home in Napa after a lengthy illness. He was born and reared in Petaluma and had worked 28 years as a salesman for the G. P. McNear Co.

Harms worked for the Basalt Rock Co. in Napa during World War II and later operated a nursery there until his retirement several years ago.

His wife, Jenny, survives him.

Private burial will be at Cypress Hill Memorial Park.

G.D. GIUSTI

Funeral for George D. Guisti, brother of Norma Croxall of Larkspur and Eleanor Cervisi of Kentfield, was today in San Bruno. Burial was at Holy Cross Cemetery.

Giusti, 50, died in San Francisco on Friday. A native of Santa Rosa, he lived in San Bruno. He was a member of the Furniture Workers Union Local 3141 of San Francisco.

He is survived by his wife, Marie and two sons, George W. and Bill Giusti, all of San Bruno.

WORKSHOP — San Rafael residents gathered Saturday in one of the workshops held during the city's first town meeting which took place at Dominican College. This group discussed open space, and like the other workshops which took up such matters as housing, redevelopment and recreation, presented resolutions to a later general assembly. A desire for greater participation in local government was the theme of the day.

TOWN MEETING

Citizens Want To Get Involved

By MARY LEYDECKER

San Rafael residents, at least the some 200 who attended Saturday's first town meeting held at Dominican College, want to get more involved in local government.

The theme of resolutions passed at the end of the sessions was a request for citizens' advisory committees to deal with such matters as housing, redevelopment, open space and architectural approval.

Although there was no criticism in the resolutions of the city council, there was strong evidence that many citizens want to be in on the planning stage of various matters —and not on an individual level.

There was approval of the proposed redevelopment of the downtown, canal and Francisco Boulevard sections of San Rafael —but a strong indication that not many people understand the procedures.

Those attending the meeting also wanted preservation of open space, more recreational facilities and housing facilities for people of various incomes.

In addition to subjects of more general interest, one morning workshop dealing with "pet peeves" took up such personal problems as, "How do I get a stop sign at my corner?"

City officials were on hand to answer questions and other "resource people" participated in the various workshops, attended by a mix of civic leaders, businessmen, conservationists and people who usually don't participate in civic affairs.

"Both sides of the hill (Puerto Suello) were represented," in the words of one of the meeting's planners.

Television reporter Ron Majers, who had opened the town meeting with comments and slides of San Rafael, said there "are no hard and fast answers" to the city's problems and the residents' desires.

Some of the suggestions that came out of the meeting were specific — such as a recommendation for a city architectural review board — others were merely requests that committees be set to study various problems.

Those attending the final session (the crowd had dwindled by about half by the time resolutions were adopted) indicated they do not want city councilmen to serve on city commissions and boards, although the vote was not unanimous.

Out of the housing workshop came recommendations that the city council continue to use such methods of assuring housing for the less affluent as the recent addition of 100 more leased housing slots.

A more specific suggestion was that the city advertise widely tax benefits for older citizens.

Both parks and recreation workshop and the open space groups wanted developers to be required to donate usable land for open space and other recreation.

The former group also saw a need for neighborhood recreational centers and public access to San Rafael waterways. Another recommendation was for a public hearing to discuss the feasibilitq of a reservation system for the city's tennis courts.

One resolution asked that developers planning subdivisions of more than two acres or three dwelling units be required to post public notice six weeks before submission of plans to city officials.

As for redevelopment, the town meeting participants endorsed the concept of the proposal but indicated a desire to solve the problem of the impact on local schools.

There was also some hesitation on approving even the concept until a public hearing scheduled later this month at which many persons said they expected to learn more about the redevelopment plans.

At the end of the session, 11 persons were elected to a board of directors to plan another town meeting next year. They were Dorothy Breiner, Lee Bright, Priscilla Bull, Mary Mayock, Richard P. Rodrigues, Steven B. Sachs, Richard Sadler, Dan L. Chesnut, Elizabeth Falk, Fred Kirschner and Gene Pearson.

Sachs, who served as chairman this year, said the town meeting's recommendations will be presented to the city council at a meeting soon, probably in three weeks.

Warning On State Fuel Depletion

SANTA MONICA (UPI)— California faces power shortages and depleted fuel reserves by the end of the century unless action is taken soon to slow down the state's excessive growth in the use of electricity, the Rand Corp. said today.

The warning came in a pair of reports prepared by Rand at the request of the California State Assembly.

The reports will be presented at a hearing in Los Angeles Tuesday of the assembly's subcommittee on state electrical energy policy.

The research by Rand, an independent non-profit organization engaged in research and analysis on problems of American security and public welfare, was funded by the assembly, the National Science Foundation and the Rockefeller Foundation.

One of the Rand reports noted that the rate of growth in demand for electricity in California is so great that the state's electric utilities eventually will be unable to keep up with it and at the same time maintain current and projected environmental quality standards. The report recommended action to reduce drastically the use of electricity during the next 30 years.

The other report recommended that the legislature regroup state powers into a new institutional arrangement which would oversee the process of locating new power plants. The proposed agency would take into consideration such factors as land use, environmental pollution and the overall supply and demand for electricity.

The report on slowing the growth rate was prepared by Dr. Ronald D. Doctor, an engineer, and Dr. Kent P. Anderson, an economist. The report on power plant siting was written by Dr. Richard H. Ball, a physical scientist, and Richard G. Salter, an engineer.

The major emphasis of the two reports was on the need for action to slow down the rate of growth in the demand for electricity.

Californians use about 8 to 8.5 per cent more electricity each year than they did the previous year, the reports said, and a "realistic goal" would be to slow the rate to about 3 per cent annually.

"We recognize that it may be impossible to avoid having to invoke emergency measures at various times during the next five years to prevent blackouts," the Rand researchers said. "We believe, however, that electricity conservation policies should seek to provide permanent relief, hence our emphasis on long-term solutions that avoid creating situations where immediate and painful adjustments are mandatory." California's electricity consumers—homes, business, industrial plants, government offices and farms—used 123 billion kilowatt hours of elctricity in 1970, the Rand reports said, but that figure is expected to increase to 848 billion kilowatt hours by the end of the century at the current rate of growth.

If stringent slow-down policies were enacted and were effective, they said, then the use of electricity by the year 2000 could be held to as little as 418 billion kilowatts.

In order to curtail the rapid growth in electricity consumption, Doctor and Anderson said, the state must begin soon to implement policies that would lead to:

—Substitution of gas for electricity in new installations of space heating, cooking, clothes drying, water heating, refrigeration and central air conditioning.

—Use of solar energy for space heating, space cooling and water heating;

—Better thermal insulation of new buildings and homes;

—Improvement in the efficiency of room-sized air conditioning units;

—Reducing the amount of electricity required for lighting, and;

—Construction of more "low energy use" buildings.

The Rand researchers said nine end uses of electricity account for 80 per cent of its consumption in residences— refrigeration, lighting, space heating, television, air conditioning, cooking, water heating, food freezing and clothes drying.

And three of those—space heating, air conditioning and water heating—account for 70 per cent of the anticipated growth rate in the average household during the next three decades.

But, Doctor said, more than two thirds of the house heating, house cooling and water heating requirements could be handled by solar energy if that source of heat could be utilized economically.

Steps the state could take to cut down the rate growth, Doctor and Anderson said, included encouraging voluntary reduction through consumer education; taxation and pricing policies to discourage excessive use of electricity; financial incentives to develop a solar heating industry, and policies that would bar some practices, such as the construction of uninsulated buildings.

They also encouraged development of the large geothermal field of superheated water and hot rocks underlying the Imperial Valley. The geothermal field may have up to 30,000 megawatts of potential electricity, they said.

The Doctor-Anderson report stressed the importance of switching from electricity to gas for many uses in homes, stores, plants and other structures.

"Electricity is more efficient than gas at the point of end use," they acknowledged. "But the process of generating electricity by burning gas under a boiler at a steam-electric generating plant is so inefficient that the overall process of generation, transmission and end use in almost every case requires more energy than if gas were burned directly in the household to achieve the same end use."

And air pollution is substantially reduced, they said, if gas is burned at the point of end use rather than used to generate electricity.

The Doctor-Anderson team suggested the state consider a "go-slow" policy on new nuclear power plants, which now are planned to form the backbone of California's future electricity supply system.

Besides the risk of nuclear accident, they said, there is the still unsolved problem of disposing of high level radioactive wastes which remain dangerous for thousands of years.

There is also the physical problem of locating as many as 130 new power plants, they said, particularly if the plants were located along the coast line.

A preliminary screening of the state's coast indicated there are only 17 parcels of land with a total length of 55 miles that meet even the most general criteria for sites of nuclear power plants.

The Rand researchers also sounded a warning about depleting fuel resources, not only in California but nationwide.

Artist Is Found Dead By Friends

A 26-year-old artist was found dead Saturday, hanging by a belt in his housecar at Waldo Point in Sausalito.

The man, Anthony J. Quintile Jr., was found by two friends who came to visit at about 11:30 a.m., about 12 hours after they last saw him alive.

The belt, which was wrapped around his neck, was attached to a cabinet in the housecar, according to Coroner's Deputy Donald L. Cornish, who reported Quintile was a native of Pennsylvania and his wife, Jeanne, lives in Finchtown, N.J.

According to Sausalito Police, he was reportedly despondent over marital difficulties.

Funeral arrangements were pending today at Russell and Gooch Mortuary in Mill Valley.

Nevada Governor Flees Vegas Fire

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI)— Gov. Mike O'Callaghan was forced to flee a Las Vegas "Strip" motel early Sunday when a fire broke out, routing scores of guests.

No one was injured in the blaze at the Algiers Motel, adjacent to the Thunderbird Hotel. O'Callaghan moved to another strip resort as firemen battled the blaze which damaged at least a dozen rooms.

Rock Singers Plead Guilty To Drugs

ADELAIDE, Australia (UPI) —British rock singer Joe Cocker and six members of his entourage of 30 pleaded guilty today to drug charges but sentencing was deferred until Tuesday—enabling them to play a concert tonight.

The musicians, here for a series of appearances, were arrested Saturday after police raided their Park Royal Motel. Cocker and five members of the group were charged with possessing and using marijuana. A sixth was charged with possessing heroin and needles.

Theft Booking After Report

A 29-year-old San Rafael man was booked into Marin County Jail Saturday on suspicion of burglary after he was discovered in a San Rafael beauty shop at 2:30 a.m.

Police said they received a report of a burglary in progress at R and J Beauty Salon, 1440 Fourth Street. On investigation, they found Donald Gilbert Kennedy of 710 Lincoln Avenue in the shop, which had been entered by breaking a skylight.

Kennedy was held in lieu of $10,000 to appear today in Marin Municipal Court.

Expenses Policy Before Trustees

Trustees of the Fairfax School District will consider a policy on expenses for board and school personal at their meeting tomorrow at 7:45 p.m. at White Hill School.

They also will discuss resolutions from the Dixie and Mill Valley school districts regarding Proposition 14, the Watson tax shift plan, and comments from the Marin Association of School Administrators concerning redevelopment agency legislation.

HERE'S HEALTH!
by JUNE EMBURY

This week, I really didn't plan to bring up MALABAR again. But some rave notices about it in two current national magazines have to be shared with you. In Pageant (October issue) TV stars Dennis Weaver and handsome Jim Brolin (Emmy winner for his role in the Marcus Welby, M.D. show) discuss their natural health way of life. Their "secret for staying young" includes MALABAR. Mrs. Weaver says this protein supplement "helps to build and repair tissues and helps form antibodies which fight infection and supply food energy."
Then the October TV Mirror has a cover story on That Man, Burt Reynolds (of centerfold fame!) featuring "The Drink That Keeps Him S.E.X.Y.", to use the magazine's description. His secret recipe for an energy packed drink features MALABAR, as well as Pep Up Tablets, yogurt, Cherry concentrate and Wheat Germ or other cold pressed oil. How about that!

MARITIME ACADEMY

School Makes Major Changes

VALLEJO (UPI) —The California Maritime Academy, the only school of its kind on the West Coast, is undergoing some of the biggest changes since its founding in 1929.

The academy, financed with state funds, is a training school which turns out most of the merchant marine officers on the West Coast.

The school, threatened briefly by the state government's budget axe earlier this year, got a new superintendent in August and is now gearing for a future that may even include a female "midshipperson."

Heading the school is Rear Adm. Joseph P. Rizza, a retired Navy captain who served in Vietnam as the righthand man to Adm. Elmo Zumwalt, now chief of Naval Operations.

"I eliminated some of the 'Mickey Mouse' rules at the academy and cut down on the number of uniforms the midshipmen have to have," Rizza said in his office at the campus, located on the shores of a deep-water channel on San Francisco Bay.

"I also liberalized the liberty regulations and established a midshipmen's council that meets with me once a month."

A look at the long hair on some of the future merchant marine officers marching on the campus is a good indication that things are changing.

But the biggest change is yet to come.

Tied up about a football field's length frm the superintendent's office is the Golden Bear, a cargo liner that serves as a "floating classroom" for the 240 students.

"That's being fixed up for any future women students," said John Keever, an academy instructor, as he pointed to a state room on the forward end of the ship.

"The admiral said to have it ready to receive them on 36 hours' notice if necessary," he said.

Female sailors became a possibility when the California legislature struck the word "male" from requirement for admission.

Rizza doesn't foresee any problems if women are admitted to next year's class. He said men students are required to live in the academy's dormitory but women could reside off campus until suitable housing is built.

Most of the students seemed in favor of going coed.

"It's such a flash after two years of no girls," said William Meacham of San Diego. But he added that he wasn't sure "American shipping is ready."

"If they could hack the curriculum, they're welcome to do it," said Casey Conway of Newport Beach.

Rizza feels the shipping industry has an "open mind" regarding the hiring of women officers.

He also thinks women are physically capable of doing the work.

"The job doesn't involve lifting," he said. "An officer on the bridge would be dealing with ships and navigation and a lady could very well do it."

Rizza is also trying to get more minority students to enroll at the academy, one of six such state-operated schools in the country.

So far, only one black officer has graduated from the school, which runs on a system of three 11-month school years.

The academy was almost dropped from the state budget this year after critics complained it was not "relevant" and too many graduates were not finding work.

Most of the criticism came when the maritime industry was not faring well, but academy backers insisted that 90 per cent of the students did, in fact, find jobs although many were shore-based.

Eventually, a bill was passed that breathed new life into the apparently doomed institution and gave it hope. But it also broadened the mission of the academy.

"The opportunities for our graduates to rise in the modern transportation industry without broader professional training and education are limited," said Rizza.

A quick walk through the 67-acre campus now finds classes busy in the engineering building, with its scores of ship engines, working on marlin spike seamanship or on board the Golden Bear.

"Some people in the academic world thought we were too practical," said Dr. David H. Grover, the academic dean.

"Our curriculum is going to be brought up to date but not at the sacrifice of our practical training."

Rizza points out that today the academy has a number of graduates who do not stay with shipboard life. Many, he said, end up as executives with shipping firms, port captains or pilots.

In the future, they'll probably be even more grads who use their sea legs in an executive's chair.

"It is essential to prepare them to assume positions requiring executive and administrative ability in all phases of the maritime industry," Rizza said.

$60,000 Charge Was Biggest-Ever

NEW YORK (UPI)—The record for the largest single charge on an individual credit card is $60,000—for an African safari for a wealthy Californian and some friends—according to the Diners Club. The cost included transportation, guides, pack-carriers, jeeps, guns and ammunition.

Records show the largest charge so far in 1972 was for $14,000. It was billed to a West Coast man whose group of 80 people were stranded in an airport when their chartered aircraft didn't show up. To save the trip he asked the company to authorize another airline to charge tickets for the entire group on his Diners Club card for a regularly scheduled flight to the Caribbean. The charge was placed on his regular monthly statement from the company.

Oldster Dances Away The Taxes

ENGLEWOOD CLIFFS, N.J. (UPI)—By dancing until 2 a.m., Hilda Beecher Stowe, the granddaughter-in-law of novelist Harriet Beecher Stowe saved her heirs $200,000 in inheritance taxes.

Prentice Hall tax information service says Mrs. Stowe, at the age of 80, deliberately danced the night away to prove she was in sound health and, therefore, a huge transfer of funds she was making to her heirs was "not beig made in contemplation of death."

Hyatt Corp. Busy On Two Key Hotels

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — What company is building two major hotels simultaneously in the downtown section of a major city?

The Hyatt Corp.

The company, headquartered in suburban Burlingame, plans to open a swank 720-room hotel on San Francisco's Union Square later this year. And nearby, on the waterfront, the spectacular $40-room Hyatt Regency will open next year.

The two new Hyatts are part of a San Francisco Hotel building spree which will add 7,000 rooms to the city's accommodations in three years.

For the Hyatt company, San Francisco is only one of a dozen cities in the United States where new hotels are being added to the chain. Hyatt International, a separate company, is building overseas, from Mexico City to Jerusalem.

"We have the excitement and the momentum," says Hugo M. Friend, president of the company. "We are building, or considering, in 40 cities."

Friend acknowledges that it was a stroke of luck as well as insight in Atlanta, Ga., that gave Hyatt the thrust on which it is now rising.

In 1967 a group of Atlanta investors decided that architect John Portman's flamboyant plan for a hotel building would never make it. They tried to sell out before the structure was finished, but were turned down by Hilton and other big hotel operators. Hyatt bought.

The Atlanta Regency became the talk of the country's traveling people, largely because of its spectacular architecture, featuring a huge atrium and a seven-story fountain.

A big-time convention hotel was a long step from the Hyatt motor lodge at the Los Angeles airport which Don Pritzger and Friend came out from Chicago to run in the 1950s. Pritzger died last year and Friend became president.

With the surprising success in Atlanta, and at another Hyatt Regency built at O'Hare Airport Chicago, the company plunged headlong into the convention hotel business.

Hyatt does not own most of its new hotels. "We are tenants in most of them," says Friend. "Major companies like Ford, Tenneco and Prudential are putting up the money."

The fact that these conservative investors are willing to pay 20 per cent more for the spectular architecture of the new Regencies than for conventional buildings would cost convinces the Hyatt organization that it has found the secret of successful hotels for the 1970s.

The extra space, the geometric lines, the glass elevators and the revolving rooftop restaurants are "more than offset by the returns," says Friend. "Our occupancy and earning record are substantially better than the industry as a whole."

Student Sessions Banned After Slur At Queen

STIRLING, Scotland (UPI)—Officials at Stirling University today imposed a ban on student meetings in the school's buildings following a drunken demonstration against Queen Elizabeth there last week.

Sir Derek Lang, secretary of the university, said the ban was imposed to head off possible clashes between students who participated in the demonstration and those who opposed it.

The ban forced the cancellation today of a meeting called by opponents of the demonstration to enlist support for an attempt to reorganize the university's student council.

"We are simply safeguarding university property and university personnel in case there was any kind of trial of strength or any kind of battling or fighting," Lang said.

During the demonstration, several hundred students drinking beer and wine shouted obscenities, made obscene gestures, set off a stink bomb and jostled members of the queen's entourage. They said they were protesting the cost of the queen's visit.

Asian Fighting Seen Continuing

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A cease-fire in Vietnam would not mean that fighting would stop elsewhere in Southeast Asia, according to the admiral who used to command U.S. forces in the Pacific.

Adm. John S. McCain Jr. said Sunday in a copyrighted interview published in U.S. News & World Report that Communist forces will intensify their pressure in Laos, Cambodia and Thailand as the position of the South Vietnamese "becomes more solid."

"In my view, the Communists operating in Laos and Cambodia are going to continue to fight for some time," McCain said.

Navy Activates F14 Tomcats

SAN DIEGO (UPI)—The Navy has formally activated two squadrons of the F14 Grumman Tomcats, the first new fighter plane to be placed in service by the Navy in 14 years.

Navy Secretary John M. Warner activated the Tomcats during ceremonies Saturday after flying one of the planes in from Point Mugu and terming the trip "the thrill of a lifetime."

The plane is designed to fly at 2,000 miles an hour—more than twice the speed of sound— and carries three types of missiles: the heat-seeking Sidewinder, the medium-range Sparrow, and the long-range Hughes Phoenix missile.

Bullet Misses Wife, Kills Son

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Police said a 26-year-old man quarreling with his wife during the weekend took a shot at her. The bullet missed, went through a wall into a bedroom and killed their 6-year-old son in his sleep, officers said.

The boy, Rudy Watkins, was pronounced dead on arrival at Martin Luther King Jr. Hospital late Saturday. His father, Milton, was arrested on suspicion of murder.

NEW POST — Wilbur E. Wright, 39, of San Rafael has been appointed consultant and director of research development of Catholic Charities for the Archidiocese of San Francisco.

Huge Crowd For Sears Store Opening

A crowd estimated anywhere from 5,000 to 15,000 people attended the official opening of Sears Roebuck at Northgate Mall, San Rafael, Saturday, crowding the new store but causing no disorder or traffic jams.

Heavy rains may have been responsible for crowds not reaching the predicted 20,000.

At least 2,000 persons lined up outside the store by 6:30 a.m., mostly families with youngsters eager to see storybook characters, Winnie the Pooh, Tigger and Eeyor.

A Sears official said nearly 5,000 free breakfasts were served, 6,000 "Pooh for President" posters distributed, 8,000 balloons and 2,000 goldfish.

Shuttle buses delivered employees from the Civic Center to the store all day, reserving the Mall's 3,000 parking spaces for shoppers.

Sales were brisk at Sears, according to the official, proving that people were shopping as well as browsing.

Shoppers at the entire Mall reached 15,000 as compared to an average Saturday total of 5,000, according to a Mall official.

San Rafael police had posted eight officers and the Mall, eight security guards, to unsnarl traffic jams but none occurred.

VD Clinic To Open Tomorrow

The College of Marin's new Veneral Disease clinic opens tomorrow in Room 118 of the office center on the Kentfield campus. The clinic will operate Tuesday and Thursday evenings from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. and is open to any member of the public.

Examinations, diagnosis and treatment for venereal diseases will be offered by a professional staff of a doctor, two nurses and laboratory technicians.

Coordinating, screening and assistance will be by student volunteers, enrolled in a special behavioural science course.

The on-campus VD clinic is the climax of more than a year's work by students who cited the Marin's VD rate — second highest in the state — when they applied for funds to run it.

The Marin Community College District has agreed to pay $1,717 in salaries, and the Marin County Board of Supervisors has authorized $8,400 for clinic operation.

It is predicted that the clinic will be able to treat 20 people a week.

New President Of Stamp Club

Marcus Took of San Rafael is the new president of the Tamalpais Stamp Club, succeeding Bryce W. Anderson of San Rafael.

Officers were elected and installed at the club's Friday night meeting. Herbert A. Heberling of Corte Madera became vice president, and Patricia Gray of Fairfax, secretary. Ralph J. Bender of San Anselmo was re-elected treasurer. Robert Nelson of San Rafael was named to the board of directors.

The club meets the second and fourth Fridays of each month at 8 p.m. in room 310, Bank of Marin Building, Fifth Avenue and B Street, San Rafael.

$300,000 Suit In Collision

An 18-year-old Novato girl, injured in a crash between a car and a train in 1971, has filed a $300,000 suit against the Northwestern Pacific Railroad, three of its employees and the jriver of the car and his father.

The suit, filed in Marin Superior Court on behalf of Deborah Irene Pond, claims the railroad and Paul A. Oatis III, driver of the car, were negligent in allowing the accident on Grant Avenue in Novato April 5, 1971.

The suit filed by Novato attorney David A. Applen claims Oatis, then 17, was intoxicated and drove "in a reckless and erratic manner halting said vehicles on the railroad tracks."

Applen did not specify how the Northwestern Pacific was negligent.

The suit asks $50,000 damages from the railroad and three of its employees, plus $3,334 medical expenses, and $250,000 damages from Oatis and his father, Paul A. Oatis II, former chairman of the Novato Planning Commission.

The younger Oatis lost a portion of his left leg and Miss Pond suffered a severely fractured jaw and internal injureis as a result of the crash. The auto driven by Oatus was rammed by an 87-car freight train, knocking it more than 30 feet along the tracks.

$34,725 Turned In For Crusade

Marin County United Bay Area Crusade volunteers have turned in $34,725 in pledges and money, 24 per cent of their goal, according to Betty Wasley, press chairman.

"At the moment we are ahead of all five Bay Area counties in percentage of goal attained and we intend to keep it that way until we are over the top," said J. Galen Foster, Marin Crusade chairman.

Foster singled out Mrs. John L. Roth, chairman of the residential division, for particular praise as she and her volunteers reported $16,018 or 39 per cent of their $46,500 goal.

The other divisions reporting at the first report meeting were individuals and trusts, $2,000 or 16 per cent of goal; schools, $2,323 or 13 per cent; local government, $3,182 or 27 per cent; hospitals, $200 or 3.5 per cent; agencies, $1,879 or 42 per cent, and communities, $7,112 or 18 per cent.

(The bulk of UBAC funds is to be raised by so-called crusader and advance gift groups and these are not included in the categories.)

The Crusade, which opened on Sept. 20, is being run on a decentralized basis this year, with local and sectional chairmen in the five counties.

Next reporting date for Marin Volunteers is Oct. 26 at a time and place to be decided later, according to Walter E. Zurcher, public relations chairman.

Fast Action Bugs Suspect In Burglary

A fast-acting San Rafael policeman arrested a San Rafael youth on suspicion of burglary Sunday following a report of a burglary in progress at a San Rafael carpet shop.

Michael Allen Martini, 20, of 116 Birch Way, was booked into Marin County Jail and held in lieu of $2,000 bail to appear today in Marin Municipal Court.

An officer arrested Martini in an alleyway adjacent to Canterbury Carpets, 1337 Fourth Street after a witness reported a man was passing a carpet from the shop's second-story window to an accomplice in the alley below, according to police.

Officers arrested Martini and retrieved a carpet stashed in a nearby garage but could find no one else near the shop.

Impact Categories To Be Considered

The Larkspur City Council will consider establishing categories of projects for which environmental impact reports will not be required when it meets in adjourned session at 8 p.m. Wednesday at city hall.

Councilmen also will discuss attendance at the planning commission's public hearing on city general plan and the possibility of expanding the planning commission from five to seven members.

In San Francisco's Orbit

What San Francisco represents among cities, Marin County—just to the north over the Golden Gate—represents among suburbs. Still fairly light on people (206,038 in 1970), its geography is varied and a pleasure to the eye—a place where mountains, ocean, and bay meet, known for its canyons, loamy farmland, lagoons, and streams. Primarily, Marin is a commuter county for San Francisco's well-heeled, a place that has changed suddenly from rural backwardness like most of the North Coast to a sophisticated and urbane community. San Rafael (population 38,977) is the closest thing to a city in Marin County and also has a newspaper—the Independent-Journal, superior to any San Francisco paper.

Nixon Still Leads In National Poll

NEW YORK (UPI)—Sen. George McGovern has gained nine percentage points on President Nixon but still trails by 57 per cent to 27 per cent, according to a nationwide poll published Sunday by Time magazine.

The poll was conducted for Time and The New York Times by Daniel Yankelovich, Inc. by telephone between Oct. 1 and Oct. 10. Some 2,323 registered voters were interviewed in 16 key states, which constitute 62 per cent of the total electoral vote, Time said.

"Only something as dramatic as sudden collapse of confidence in Mr. Nixon's Vietnam policies is likely to close the gap entirely," Yankelovich said.

The last poll conducted by Yankelovich for Time and The Times, between Aug. 25 and Sept. 12, showed Nixon leading McGovern by a margin of 62 per cent to 23 per cent.

The latest poli indicates that the issue of the bugging of the National Democratic headquarters in the Watergate apartment complex has had little impact on voters, the magazine said.

Nixon Defends Anticrime Record

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Nixon has until Tuesday to make a decision on an election season dilemma—whether to veto as inflationary a $26.4 billion program to fight water pollution.

Nixon returned to the White House Sunday night from his Camp David, Md., retreat, and aides said he still was pondering the water bill issue.

Congress passed the huge program by large majorities, ignoring Nixon's plea for a $6 billion expenditure over a similar three-year period. The President, concerned over large federal deficits and determined to prevent a tax increase next year, has branded the $26.4 billion plan as inflationary. He has until Tuesday to decide whether to veto the measure.

Environmentalists, members of Congress, mayors and governors have mounted a campaign to attempt to persuade Nixon to sign the bill.

Nixon is expected to stay close to Washington in the immediate future while Congress attempts to end its session this week and adjourn. The President, however, is expected to step up his campaigning for reelection the last two weeks before the Nov. 7 balloting.

On Sunday, Nixon made a paid political radio broadcast in which he said his administration had "fought the frightening trend of crime and anarchy to a standstill."

"During the eight years from the end of the Eisenhower administration until we took office in 1969, serious crime in the United States had skyrocketed by 122 per cent," Nixon said. "There were predictions that it would double once again during the following four years. Those predictions have not come true."

Nixon said the campuses which erupted in riots in the late 1960s had become serious centers of learning once again. He said the urban centers "which we saw in flames summer after summer a few years ago are now pursuing constructive change."

Nixon said he would ask the Congress which convenes in January to require stiff mandatory sentences for heroin traffickers and to amend other federal laws to keep the peddlers off the streets after their arrest.

In rebuttal, Sen. George McGovern said, "The American people know from their own experience in their own neighborhoods that President Nixon has dismally failed to win the war against crime and drugs."

No Bomb Found In Jet Threat

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI) — Authorities today are investigating a telephoned bomb threat that forced a 747 passenger jet to make an unscheduled landing here while en route from Dallas to Honolulu.

The Braniff International jetliner carrying 286 passengers was diverted Sunday after a caller told the Braniff office in Dallas that explosives were aboard the craft. Details of the conversation or any demands were not disclosed.

Passengers were led off the craft while crews searched more than three hours for a bomb. None was found. the plane was then reloaded and resumed the flight to Hawaii.

McGovern Promises New Jobs In War-To-Peace Conversion

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — George S. McGovern today pledged that if elected president he would create "in the earliest days" of his administration two million new jobs by pumping $10 billion into housing, transportation, pollution control and public service jobs.

The Democratic presidential candidate said he would act even before beginning a proposed three-year $32 billion cutback in military spending which he predicted eventually would provide 15 jobs for every 10 phased out.

Speaking to a conversion conference of defense and aerospace labor leaders, McGovern said, "For you, it is a choice between the constant fear of losing your job, or the security of stable, secure employment."

In a prepared speech, he added "it is a choice between the frustrations of building more overkill, or the satisfaction of work that improves life."

He assured the labor leaders, concerned that a McGovern administration would create wholesale unemployment in aerospace and defense industries, that he would not eliminate "a single job" until another job was available.

He said "Despite all the Republican fear tactics you are seeing in this campaign, the truth is that in America today we can find more jobs in war than in peace."

He said that the first step towards shifting to a peacetime economy would come with "an immediate $10 billion investment in new and rehabilitated housing, transportation, pollution control, and public service jobs. That would generate about 2 million new jobs without even considering the application of military savings to civilian needs."

He also promised the reform of pension systems, so no workers would lose retirement rights when switching jobs and "sufficient adjustment benefits" for those workers who suffer through a transfer from defense oriented industry.

McGovern's speech came just before his campaign took him to Texas—a state even his most optimistic strategists consider very difficult for the Democrats to carry—and after the Democratic presidential candidate was jarred by the latest Gallup Poll which shows him unable to significantly close the gap against President Nixon.

McGovern, seemingly oblivious to the results of the latest Gallup Poll which shows him trailing Nixon by 26 per cent nationally, Sunday enjoyed one of his rare respites from the campaign trail, which he spent in seclusion working on a nationwide television address on economics, which will be taped Tuesday and shown on Friday.

The Democratic presidential candidate was scheduled to address a meeting of labor leaders from the aerospace industry in Los Angeles before leaving for rallies in Austin, Texas, an address to the joint session of the Texas Legislature, and late evening rallies in Houston and San Antonio.

Eight Survive Fire In Old B34

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Eight persons scrambled out a side door of a converted B34 bomber Sunday seconds before it burst in flames on a runway at Philadelphia International Airport.

The two crewmen and six passengers, all from the Minneapolis, Minn., area, escaped injury.

The two-engine plane, owned by the Wilson Learning Corp. of Minneapolis, skidded on the runway several hundred feet and spun to a stop.

It has come to our attention that many of you think our Vega is priced higher than it really is. That comes as no surprise.

After all, Vega does have the look and the feel of a more expensive car.

Vega does have an overhead-cam engine that's just plain peppier than most little car engines, yet still stingy with a gallon of gasoline.

And unlike lots of little cars, Vega has a double-panel steel roof, front disc brakes, side-guard door beams, self-cleaning rocker panels, thick foam front bucket seats, a Full Coil suspension and lots of other high-quality features.

The fact that Vega was voted "best economy sedan" in the world the last two years in a row by the readers of Car and Driver magazine may also contribute to the impression that Vega's price isn't small.

But the happy truth is this: Vega's price bears a startling resemblance to those of ordinary little cars. At $2060*, the Vega Notchback is right in there with the least of them, give or take a few bucks.

Chevy's little Vega.

It's less money than you thought and more car than you imagined.

BIRTHDAY QUIZ

By GORDON B. GREB

Happy Day! Remember, to say that now if you should see any of these celebrities around town today . . . on MONDAY, OCT 16.

1. WILLIAM O. DOUGLAS could very easily be on a ski slope, if not at the U.S. Supreme Court bench today. This lover of the outdoors is 74. Born in Maine, Minn., he knows and loves the snow country, especially around the peaks of the Pacific Northwest. A former Yale law professor, he went to Washington, D.C., in 1934 and is the last remaining justice on the high court appointed by President Roosevelt. Quiz question: Does he usually spend his summer at home in Goose Prairie, Wash. or at San Clemente.

2. DAVID BEN-GURION, first premier of Israel, is 86 today. This statesman, who helped build an independent nation for the Jewish people, retired in 1963. But Ben-Gurion keeps physically fit by walking six miles every day in the desert outside his home at the kibbutz, Sde Boker. Anyone remember how long he served as prime minister — 5, 10, or 15 years?

3. ANGELA LANSBURY, Hollywood film beauty, was born in London, England, but got her "big break" in America, after coming to New York to study drama. Spotted by an MGM talent scout, she got feature roles with Ingrid Bergman ("Gaslight") and Elizabeth Taylor ("National Velvet"). Today Angela lives at Malibu, Calif. Let's all wish her a Happy 37th, 47th, or 57th birthday. Guess which?

4. NOAH WEBSTER, as every school boy knows, was a famous American lexicographer. He was born on Oct. 16, 1758, in West Hartford, Conn. As a 25-year-old New York teacher, he wrote a best-selling book which eventually sold 62 million copies. Its success led him to publish a reference book we all use today.

ANSWERS

1. Goose Prairie, Wash.
2. 15 years.
3. 47th birthday.

Finesse Shuts Out Dangerous Opponent In Rough No-Trump

When only one of the opponents is dangerous, you must try to keep him out of the lead. A two-way finesse enables you to keep either opponent out. Decide who is dangerous and then finesse through that player.

FROM DUMMY

You hopefully play dummy's queen of spades at the first trick, but East wins with the ace. East continues with the ten of spades, and you refuse the trick. You take the third spade trick with the king.

By this time you know that West has led from a long suit. He is the dangerous opponent since he will take the rest of his spades if he gains the lead. East is not dangerous because he has no spades to lead.

After taking the king of spades you lead the jack of diamonds from your hand. West plays low, and you allow the jack to ride for a finesse. If East had the queen, he could win a trick, but you wouldn't mind giving this trick to the safe opponent.

FINESSE WORKS

As it happens, your finesse works. You lead another diamond to finesse with dummy's nine. Then you take the king of diamonds and return to your hand to lead out the ace of diamonds. Your contract is then safe.

You would finesse in the opposite direction if dummy's queen of spades won the first trick. Then East would be the dangerous opponent, and West would be safe.

CASH DIAMOND

You would cash the king of diamonds at once and then lead the nine of diamonds for a finesse through East. That would keep East out of the lead.

When you can finesse in either direction, choose the direction that keeps the dangerous opponent out. You may not win the finesse, but at least you'll be safe.

Mrs. McGovern Out Of Hospital

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Eleanor McGovern, wife of the Democratic presidential candidate, has been released from Georgetown University Hospital.

Mrs. McGovern, 50, was allowed to return home Sunday after spending three days in the hospital for rest and tests. She was admitted to the hospital late Thursday after suffering severe stomach cramps.

Mrs. McGovern had campaigned strenuously for her husband for several weeks before she became ill. Her husband said the tests showed she apparently only needed some time to relax. There was no indication when she might return to campaigning.

2 Marinites Missing In Mexico

San Rafael police have sent the dental plates of a missing San Rafael girl to Mexican authorities on the theory she may have died in a rooming house fire in Mexico City several weeks ago.

Missing are Linda Anne Miller, 18, of 60 Marina Court Drive, and a friend, Cary Kristal, 19, of 36 Royal Court, also of San Rafael.

Police said the pair left for a Mexican vacation on August 18 but failed to return by September 9 as planned. They had planned to register for the fall semester at the College of Marin, according to police.

Though Mexican police reportedly believe the girl may have died in a rooming house fire, her stepfather, Herman Frederic Buettner, said today the pair may be confined incommunicado in a Mexican jail.

He said he hasn't heard from his daughter since receiving a letter in early September from Guadalajara, Mexico.

Peevey Claims Poll Has Him Leading

Michael R. Peevey, candidate for Marin County supervisor in the Fourth District, reported today that a poll he commissioned shows him with a narrow lead in three communities over his opponent, Gary T. Giacomini.

According to the telephone poll of 300 voters last week in the Corte Madera, Larkspur and San Rafael portions of the district, 36 per cent said they would vote for Peevey, 32.7 per cent for Giacomini and 31.3 per cent were undecided.

Despite the large undecided bloc, Peevey's campaign staff said the results showed he had made "great gains" since the June primary election when Giacomini outpolled Peevey in those communities.

Polling was not extended to the San Geronimo Valley or West Marin because of cost, the staff said, adding that Giacomini probably will hold onto the margin he had in these two areas in June.

Peevey's staff said the percentages were averages for the three communities, weighted by the proportion of the total June vote, and that Peevey led in both San Rafael and Corte Madera while Giacomini led in Larkspur. The poll was conducted by Marjorie A. Blaskower Market Research of Ross.

Sidewalk Theft Figure Jailed

A San Rafael man was arrested on suspicion of armed robbery following the sidewalk theft of $10 at 5 p.m. Saturday.

Ricci Lamar Vigno, 22, of 134 Front Street, was booked into Marin County Jail and held to appear today in Marin Municipal Court.

According to police, Irving Ray Litteral of San Rafael said he was walking down Third Street when Vigno and two companions jumped from a car and demanded money. Litteral said he handed over $10 after Vigno threatened to stab him, according to police, who picked Vigno up later on Litteral's complaint.

Shopkeeper Holds Intruder For Police

A shopkeeper got a kind of hammer hold Saturday on an intruder who had evaded police scrutiny following the sounding of a burglar alarm at his shop.

Donald Gilbert Kennedy, 29, of 710 Lincoln Avenue, San Rafael, was booked into Marin County Jail and held in lieu of $10,000 bail to appear today in Marin Municipal Court.

According to police, officers responded to an alarm at 6 a.m. at the R and J Beauty Salon, 1440 Fourth Street, but could find no thief. But owner Courtney Cole, arriving at his shop 35 minutes later, spotted Kennedy crouching behind a desk, according to police.

Courtney held Kennedy at bay with a hammer awaiting the officers' return.

3 Named To Quality Control Unit

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — Three new members have been appointed by Gov. Ronald Reagan to the San Francisco Bay Regional Water Quality Control Board.

The appointments, announced Friday, also removed the board's two remaining Democrats.

Appointed to four-year terms were Louis P. Martini of St. Helena, Charles R. Hitchcock of San Leandro and Raymond Gambonini of Petaluma. Martini, president and general manager of the Louis M. Martini Winery, replaced Cecil Herrick of Napa, a Democrat first appointed by Reagan in 1969.

Hitchcock, vice president of a tractor company, replaced Ercole Caroselli of San Francisco, who did not seek reappointment because of the press of other business. A Democrat, Caroselli was first appointed in 1966 by Gov. Edmund G. Brown.

Gambonini replaced Dr. Upton, who died in September. He owns and operates dairy ranches.

Less On Food

CHICAGO (UPI)—By the year 2000 Americans will spend only 12.5 per cent of their disposable personal income for food, compared with 16 per cent today, according to Dr. Roy M. Kottman, dean of the College of Agriculture and Home Economics, Ohio State University.

32 Burglaries Are Reported In Marin, Southern Sonoma

Thirty-two residential burglaries were reported by Marin and Southern Sonoma law enforcement agencies last week, including the theft of $3,250 in personal property and possessions from a Larkspur home.

Wednesday — Personal property and possessions valued at $937 taken Tuesday from the Henry Harry Fogel home on Las Gallinas Avenue.

Thursday — Personal checks taken in the last two months from house of Alroy A. Weiss on Knoll Road.

No residential burglary was reported in Belvedere, Cotati, Fairfax, Rohnert Park, Ross, Sausalito and Tiburon.

Residential burglaries in unincorporated areas reported by Marin County sheriff's deputies were:

LOS RANCHITOS

TAMALPAIS VALLEY

Sunday — Cash totaling $150 taken from the home of Christopher Asimakopoulos on Ashton Lane Friday.

N.Y. Restaurant Shortage Claim

NEW YORK (AP) — For the average metropolitan worker, the lunch break, once a relaxing respite from the workday routine, has become one of the most frustrating periods of the day.

"Here in the nation's most crowded city, for example, there are only about 5,000 restaurants, ranging from pizza parlors to gourmet places," said Alan Emerick, president of the Great Bear Spring Company. "Yet there are some 3.5 million office workers searching for a lunch-time oasis."

Since the average restaurant can serve only about 150 dinners between noon and 2 p.m., only about 500,000 workers each day can enjoy a restaurant lunch, Emerick added.

Eating Out Is In For Americans

NEW YORK (UPI)—Did your family eat dinner at home last night? Or did you go out for a pizza or hamburger?

Americans are on the move, and in some cases, the move is out of the family dining room into a commercial eating establishment. Dr. Ted Hartung, chairman of the Department of Food Science and Technology at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln, said Americans are eating out more. A nationwide average shows that one of every four meals is eaten away from home. In the 1960s the average was one out of every five.

Rezoning Of 67 Acres On Plan Agenda

The Novato Planning Commission will consider rezoning approximately 67 acres on Olive Avenue when it meets at 8 p.m., today in the Novato Community House.

The commission is meeting tonight instead of next Monday, a holiday.

Woodlands Co. has asked for a zone change from single-family residential to planned residential for the land on the north side of Olive Avenue adjacent to 496 Olive Avenue. One house per 3.9 acres is planned.

Other items before the commission include rezoning from limited agriculture to planned residential of seven acres at 1667 Hill Road for Jack Kinney; rezoning from duplex to multiple residential the lot at 1016 Third Street for Louis J. Saffores and a referral from Marin County Planning Department for preliminary priority schedule for open space.

Two Girls Report Indecent Exposure

Two girls, 12 and 13 years old, were victims of indecent exposure between 7 and 7:30 p.m., Saturday in the 500 block of Sunset Parkway, Novato police reported.

A man in a yellow Toyota sedan called the girls over to his car and exposed himself. He was described as about 30 years old, with black curly hair. He was wearing checked pants, tan shirt and light blue jacket, according to police reports.

Tanzania Held Violating Peace

KAMPALA, Uganda (UPI)—Uganda has accused Tanzania of violating the peace agreement concluded between the two countries at Mogadishu, Somalia, 10 days ago.

A Ugandan military spokesman said Sunday night guerrilla supporters of ex-President Milton Obote in Dar es Salaam were continuing to make hostile propaganda against Uganda in contravention of the agreement. He expressed "great sorrow and disappointment" at this action.

The new BMW Bavaria.
6 cylinders. 3.0 liters.
130 mph. Under $7,000

Automotively speaking you are looking at the wonder of the age. The new BMW Bavaria.

Take the way it goes. Up to 130 mph. (Cruises at 120 all day long.) That's because its engine is built around the most efficient combustion system ever designed.

Take the way it holds the road. Like you'd hold a beautiful girl. Tight. That's because of a remarkable suspension system that features MacPherson struts up front, semi-trailing arms in back, with BMW's unique multi-jointed rear axle.

Small wonder Ken Purdy says, in Playboy Magazine, that BMW may be the best car in the world.

Frankly, our BMW engineers are auto fanatics. Their aim is to build cars they like to drive. (Can you imagine the uncommercial effrontery of that?) But then, what else would you expect from a company with the fifty-year speed and endurance traditions of Germany's famed Bavarian Motor Works?

If you have an instinct for great engineering, test-drive the new BMW Bavaria. Wundercar!

Three Propositions Deserve 'Yes' Votes

Three propositions on the Nov. 7 ballot to which we can give our endorsement are Nos. 6, 7 and 21.

Proposition 6 merely moves some of the articles in the California Constitution into more appropriate locations, cleaning up some confusion in arrangement left by previous revisions, and makes a couple of minor, unimportant changes. It is a little more of the "housekeeping job" that has been under way for several years as result of the work of the Constitution Revision Commission.

Proposition 7 incorporates the open presidential primary — which was approved by the voters in June — into the section of the state constitution covering elections. It also removes the present requirements on residency qualifications of voters, some of which are in conflict with federal court decisions, and specifies that the Legislature shall set residency requirements.

Proposition 21 is generally referred to as the "anti-bussing initiative" or the Wakefield initiative" — the latter from Assemblyman Floyd L. Wakefield, R-Downey, who sponsored it.

A lot of high feelings have been generated over this one. Opponents declare it is "racist," would set back integration of schools, etc. Some of the proponents are equally uptight, contending it is necessary to save California schools from some kind of left-wing takeover.

ALL THIS IS a lot of nonsense. What Proposition 21 proposes to do is very simple — and is in line with decisions of the United States Supreme Court.

Proposition 21 would add this to the Education Code (NOT to the constitution):

"No public school student shall, because of his race, creed, or color, be assigned to or be required to attend a particular school."

This is almost exactly what the U.S. Supreme Court said in the case from which all subsequent school desegregation decisions sprang: Brown vs. Board of Education of Topeka, Kans., back in 1954. Except that the Supreme Court did not mention creed.

Oliver Brown, a Negro, brought suit because his daughter, Linda, was required to take a bus across Topeka to attend a school for Negroes. He wanted her to attend her neighborhood school.

The Supreme Court said that it was unconstitutional to require Linda to attend a different school because of her race.

PROPOSITION 21 also would repeal what is known as the "Bagley Act," sections which Marin-Sonoma Assemblyman William T. Bagley succeeded in putting into the Education Code last year. These require each school district to make an annual school-by-school and grade-by-grade survey of its schools to make sure that the racial mixture is uniform throughout the district.

Bagley promoted this in belief it was necessary to prevent federal courts from breaking up or combining California school districts. However, the U.S. Supreme Court ruled last year, in Swann vs. Charlotte-Mecklenburg School District, that it is not necessary for a school to have grade-by-grade integration, nor for it to have all its schools reflect similar racial proportions. That Supreme Court decision even specifically recognized that there can be all-white or all-black schools within a district without violating the Constitution. So the "Bagley Act" appears to have become unnecessary baggage, requiring another set of meaningless reports from school districts.

Fleas

It may come as a surprise to the "bitee," but most fleas are particular about what kind of mammal they bite. In the Bay Area, we have the variety which prefers to dine on humans. We also have rodent fleas and cat and dog fleas.

Strangely, despite their pronounced preference for dog blood, dog fleas probably bite more people in Marin each year than human fleas. There are fewer human fleas than dog fleas, and a dog fla deprived of his dog is desparate enough to risk getting sick by biting us loathsome humans.

COFFERS WELL FILLED

Anti-Proposition 20 Motto: Spend, Spend, Beat, Beat

By PAUL E. PETERZELL

The campaign to defeat Proposition 20, the coastal initiative on the November ballot, is so well greased that it would appear in danger of fouling itself in its own muck.

The coffers of Whitaker and Baxter, the San Francisco public relations firm hired again by big money, must be so jammed with dough that they are desperate to spend, spend, spend.

What other explanation could there be for sending newspaper editors a 307-page "analysis" of the proposition? No editor in the land is likely to have either time or appetite to digest such a monster, so its only evident purpose was to consume another glob of money to justify the clients' huge budget.

The tome was the product of B. Michael Kahl, who was administrative assistant to Marin's former state senator, John F. McCarthy of Belvedere. Kahl, who apparently takes his environmental credentials from his former boss, now heads Kahl Associates, Washington, D.C., "research consultants." Whitaker and Baxter sure went a long way to find someone to make the analysis.

It is ironic that William H. Press, administrative assistant to McCarthy's successor, Sen. Peter H. Behr, R-San Rafael, is deeply involved in the campaign to pass the proposition.

FORMER MARIN County supervisor Thomas T. Storer has issued a belabored attack on Michael R. Peevey for daring to claim some of the credit for killing the proposed second deck on the Golden Gate Bridge. Storer, who was washed out of office by the voters in 1968, insists that Peevey and his Transportation Action Committee came along too late in 1967 to count in the battle against the deck.

We recall, however, the impact Peevey and his organization had when they mobilized widespread public opposition to the second deck. It was one of the first times the bridge board learned their club was not an exclusive enclave.

Storer somehow seems indifferent that his choice in the Fourth Supervisorial District election, Gary T. Giacomini, was nowhere to be seen or heard during the struggle against the second deck.

A REPUBLICAN friend pointed out the other day that the acronym for the Committee to Re-Elect the President would be CREEP. Some Marin Republicans just aren't very loyal.

Town Meeting Hopes For More Discussion

The Independent-Journal's splendid coverage of the Corte Madera Town Meeting indicates to us your real encouragement of citizen participation in community affairs. The steering committee and all those who worked so hard to put the meeting together feel that a large part of the success of the venture is due to the I-J.

We in Corte Madera feel that we have a priceless stake in the future of the county and of this lovely town, and that the I-J has given its support to a genuine grass-roots movement to have a say in that future. Our grateful thanks go to your editorial policy, your photographer, your staffers, and particularly to Pat Perry, who have all helped us.

After our preliminary report to the town council last week, we are putting together a more detailed written report to be presented at the end of the month, and anticipate a full discussion of our resolutions and recommendations by the council.

Firemen's 'Day's Work' Took Lot Of Courage

The firemen who took on the fire at Phoenix Lake Saturday probably consider it all in a day's work. With a 40-mile wind blowing, that day's work took a lot of plain courage.

One man on the line told me a wall of flame blew right over his head and of eight or nine others with him as they ran for their lives.

It seems trivial to say, but thank you all very much.

Hub City Should Keep Overnight Parking Ban

I refer to a recent article in your paper concerning a San Anselmo man who is challenging the legal right of his city to enforce its ban on parking on city streets at night.

I would like to urge San Anselmo to fight to retain this ordinance and to continue its enforcement.

The residential streets of neighboring communities are cluttered with campers, boats, derelicts, gypsy vans and other vehicular trappings of our environmentally polluting, wasteful times. San Anselmo has been saved from a similar tragedy by police enforcement of the overnight parking ban. This law forces a city property owner to think twice before buying an extra car. He knows he must make room for motorized acquisitions on his own property, as it is illegal to use a city street as his own private 24-hour parking lot.

Other people in San Anselmo must agree that in the last few years our city has made giant strides to improve its appearance. Successful opposition to our overnight parking ban would be a very large step backwards, wiping out the efforts of many civic-minded people who have strived in council meetings and committees to help make San Anselmo an ideal, attractive community.

Wonderful Spirit Surrounded Olympics

Now that the events regarding the Olympics has simmered down to a degree, we would like to take this opportunity to express our feelings. In Munich we experienced the true spirit of the Olympics. The spectators were involved with the individual athletes in every way. They shared their triumphs or their disappointments and the emotions in the crowds were electrifying. Upon returning to the United States after a long and sad trip we were met with the same spirit. It was overwhelming. The high school had welcomed Rick home and gave him a beautiful welcoming home party. Our neighbors brought gifts of food and kind notes. A beautiful plaque was presented to him by the Terra Linda High Swim Team. Phone calls, letters and telegrams of congratulations and support are still arriving from all over the United States as well as from abroad. Rick even received a letter from President Nixon.

One thing for which we are grateful is that Rick will continue with his swimming career and hopefully in 1976 once again will be able to prove himself in Montreal.

There is no way that we can properly thank everyone for their kindness and support but we are so grateful for your caring.

Answer To Bagley On Proposition 14

Several statements by local officials deploring Proposition 14 — the Watson Initiative — have appeared lately and Assemblyman Bagley has sent out a newsletter telling how much better the late, unlamented Moretti-Bagley tax reform (?) bill would have been. It seems to me that both classes of objections should be viewed objectively.

First, the attitude of the local official (councilmen and school board members) is understandable; they do not want any restrictions on their present power to extract money from the citizenry at will — their will. However, that doesn't mean that the people should go along with the idea and abdicate our power to decide how we shall be taxed.

Second, let's examine the provisions of Mr. Bagley's pet bill AB-1000. The California Taxpayers' Association (which so far has taken no position on Proposition 14) strongly opposed AB 1000 because it was not tax reform, but an out-and-out tax increase. The proponents of the measure estimated the increase at $1 billion per year . . .

Inveighing against Proposition 14, Mr. Bagley states that "homeowners pay only 30 per cent of the total property tax." It would be interesting to know the source of his obvious approximation . . . The U.S. Commerce Department states that 60 per cent of the property tax in California is paid by residential property owners . . .

As to his claim that the measure is underfunded, this is typical governmental arrogance. It assumes that the state has a right to extort taxes to support it in a manner to which it likes to become accustomed. The argument would be more convincing if the legislature would force some economies in both its own (and staff) salaries and expenses and the state universities.

I hope this letter will cause people to think carefully on this subject and vote to take more of the taxing powers back into their own hands.

Hard-Working Ohio Republicans Believe State Safe For Nixon

CINCINNATI, Ohio — No Republican has ever been elected President without carrying the state of Ohio.

By every measure of voter opinion, Richard Nixon will carry Ohio this year.

This doesn't guarantee the President's re-election. He could win Ohio but lose widely enough elsewhere to be defeated.

But Ohio — with its 25 electoral votes — is a crucial state, and Mr. Nixon's present strength here shows no sign of taking a perilous dip.

ONE THING is evident: Ohio Republican leaders are not looking at the favorable polls and going to sleep. They relish the Nixon lead and are working hard to keep it.

State chairman John Andrews, Republican National Committeeman Ray Bliss, national committeewoman Martha Moore, and the chairman of the Ohio Committee to Re-Elect the President, Charles Ross, are a formidable team.

One reason they are formidable is that they have their own goal in this campaign, and they are not counting on the President or Agnew or others to do it all.

Their goal is not to give Mr. Nixon just another squeaker in Ohio, like the thin 90,000-vote margin four years ago, but something in the order of a one million-vote victory which they hope will give a solid mandate to the President and send a message to Congress.

These Ohio Republican leaders do not think they are being fanciful or wishful. They know their hope may exceed their reach, but are spurred by their conviction that if they can help give Mr. Nixon the massive vote they now see in the making, they will have done their share — or more — to turn a minority party into a majority party destined to shape national policy for a number of years to come.

IT WAS HERE in 1960 that Ray Bliss began to pick up the pieces of the Republican Party machine after it had been shattered two years earlier when Sen. John Bricker and nearly every Republican state candidate went down to humiliating defeat. The GOP won only one statewide office and lost both houses of the legislature.

Bliss is a quiet, superficially unimpressive party-builder who achieved impressive results.

Two years after the debacle of 1958, Ohio Republicans won just about everything. They recaptured both houses of the state legislature and elected 17 of the state's 24 congressmen —the highest percentage of Republican congressmen of any big state in the Union.

Since then, they have kept on this winning path except when Sen. Barry Goldwater proved too great a load to carry in 1964. They control the legislature. Both senators are Republican. They still have the same high percentage of GOP congressmen.

HERE IS WHERE Bliss' practical theory of elective politics comes into play. It is no secret. He has told his colleagues: "We can win any time we have three things — (1) good candidate, (2) good organization, (3) good financing."

This year Andrews and company are convinced they have all three.

Part of the basis of hope on the McGovern side is the theory that Mr. Nixon's support is "3,000 miles wide and an inch deep." That's not the way it looks here. Andres is not relying only on Gallup and Harris for his political intelligence. He is taking his own professional polls and the results parallel the national findings with slight variation. One poll shows that 30 per cent of Ohio Democrats intend to desert party ranks and either stay at home or vote for Mr. Nixon.

Both Nixon and McGovern strategists see the same six states as the vital battleground: California, Texas, Illinois, Pennsylvania, New York and Ohio.

ERNEST B. FURGURSON

McGovern Exhibits Failure To Understand U.S. People

WASHINGTON — The word that recurs to me as this campaign careens toward its end is poverty. Not as an issue, in the sense of poor farm workers, welfare programs and tax reforms, and certainly not in dollars available for politicking. The campaign itself is poor, on both sides — empty of spirit, of eloquence, and of any positive meaning in American history.

That there is no prospect of recovery from this dismality seems clear now that Sen. George McGovern has made his carefully drafted and vigorously heralded major address on Vietnam, without persuading anyone who was not with him already. As for Mr. Nixon, he has made it plain since summer that under the favorable circumstances he is not even going to take the chance of going through the motions. If you don't speak any sentences, you can't get into trouble when people start parsing them.

Left with little from the President for either instant or leisurely analysis, we are prone to fill our daily space by overanalyzing Senator McGovern. And while he has complained about this, he must acknowledge that by running he asked for it.

LAST WEEK'S Vietnam speech was Senator McGovern's effort to recapture the war issue from Mr. Nixon, who is shown by the public opinion surveys to have it working in his own favor. Presumably it also was to regalvanize the youth movement to new exertions in getting out the McGovern vote. And perhaps it did succeed in exciting those antiwar legions again, despite their lapse into quiet as American casualties in Vietnam have dwindled, the end of the draft has been assured, and the apparent futility of their earlier political enthusiasm has dawned on them. But as an attemptto broaden his support among those waverers who need convincing that his Vietnam intentions are responsible and honorable, it surely was a failure.

Unconditional surrender has always seemed an absolute phrase. It has been used to describe Senator McGovern's earlier stance on Vietnam. Yet now he has gone beyond that to make promises that even the enemy has not got around to demanding. Hardly any wonder that Hanoi is laying out its hopes of a McGovern victory for the world to see. But he is not running for President of North Vietnam. If a high percentage of American voters rejected his policy before as extreme, how could he presume to win them over by making it more so?

He thought he could do it by painting the war in terms gory enough to sicken even those millions who have been immunized by its nightly presence in their living rooms for most of a decade. He recalled "little Kim," fleeing naked and burnedfrom napalm; he alleged that "corrupt Vietnamese officials have enriched themselves putting heroin into the veins of a hundred thousand of our GIs"; he once again assailed General Thieu as if he were our sole reason for being in Vietnam. If it is all that bad, Senator McGovern proceeded, then not only should we get out but we should take away the equipment that would enable the South Vietnamese to defend themselves after we leave.

THE ONLY CONCLUSION from this is that in 21 months as a presidential candidate, traveling the country without letup, Senator McGovern has learned nothing about the temper of the American people. They have, by now, faced the fact that mssive intervention in Vietnam was a well-intentioned mistake that has to be corrected. They are not willing to concede that they, their leaders or their sons are murderers or dupes of heroin racketeers. They are not, the majority of them, ready to vote for a man who insists on it. Senator McGovern runs down the idea that "face" isinvolved. But another word for face, in that sense, is pride — national pride — and another word for pride is self-respect.

There is nothing dishonorable about campaigning for peace. Our nation has responded to such appeals before, when they were phrased to lift our spirit and challenge our ideals. George McGovern has espoused a new international attitude based on idealism, but he has proved capable so far only of saying the word. What this campaign lacks so desperately is a voice that leads in that direction, speaks with reasoned eloquence, even if on the losing side. Would that Adlai Stevenson were back! Instead we are surrounded by smallness, and can only wish it were over.

National Hungers Lead To McGovern

Americans can no longer follow the economic raod to national disaster. Our people look in vain for funds to restore a healthy, living environment. Our people still demand an end to dangerous streets near our homes. Our people hunger for a return to a peaceful mind and a clear national conscience.

What we have had so far are greater taxes, more unemployment, poverty and the undermining of an economic system that was once the envy of the world.

What we need now is to move in a new direction. We need to end our involvement in war, to restore confidence in our government for people at home and abroad and finally we need to make every hour of labor a testimony to life.

McGovern means for people to share in the task of self-government. When we come home again, we the people shall do the things people need to do.

Countywide Plan Not Needed, Too Costly

I overwhelmingly and enthusiastically endorse the I-J's editorial and arguments against the Marin Countywide Plan.

One can enumerate so many other arguments, for instance: What can the plan do that our present citizens, councilmen, supervisors and planning commissioners can't do? We've been doing a pretty fair job for 100 years or so on our own.

Almost nobody objects to open space planning, coordinated countywide planning, etc. That's what we need and we can do it too with what we already have.

Another thing that really gets me about this plan is its cost. Note the figures on page 10 of the report (probably printed with my money). Look at that $355-$368 per person per year cost. Maybe that doesn't sound bad enough? Well remember the average household is around four persons. So how would you household breadwinners out there like a fat new bill on the order of $1,000-$1,500 per year to pay?

That kind of planning I can gladly do without.

Is Television Network Prosecutor And Court?

Thank you for the excellent editorial on Lincoln T. Perry, better known as Stepin Fetchit, of Sept. 22.

The warmth and understanding expressed in the editorial was the milk of kindness to an old man with a broken heart. To those of us who believe in the integrity of the individual, we cannot let it stop there. CBS and Xerox put an end to Mr. Perry's useful life in one minute and 45 seconds. They did this with their accusations, which were broadcast on 173 television stations. He has not worked since 1968. He is no longer welcome in the company of either white or black people.

He has been denied a trial because, according to Judge Steckler, it is now the law of the land that the networks have the right to say anything they want to about anybody, whether it be true or false. In essence this means that CBS has become a court. In their self-appointed court room, CBS selects those who are to be tried, the evidence is to be presented and the charges to be made, whether or not they be true. CBS is both the prosecuting attorney and the final judge . . .

As a former college professor and now president of an advertising agency involved in mass communications, I am interested in this case because, should it turn out that such is the law of the land, then it is my conviction that such a law must be changed. Community Input Proves Plan Democratic

The editorial in the Independent-Journal of Oct. 2, "Threat to Democracy in Countywide Plan," is very disappointing. The whole thrust of the "plan" is to broaden the base of community involvement in order to keep Marin County unspoiled by urbanization.

In its introduction the "Marin Countywide Plan" states: "This guide is meant to be taken to meetings. And it is meant to be marked up. Scribble on it. Doodle on it. Tell it what you think of it . . . The Plan isn't frozen." If this procedure is anti-democratic, then we do not understand the meaning of democracy.

The problems of Marin, its population growth, its transportation, its economic and open space and land use balance, are well defined. Solutions are thoughtfully presented. Now we hope the citizens will give the "Marin Countywide Plan" the same careful consideration that the county planning staff gave in working out the "Plan." It can be modified, it can be changed, it must not be rejected. The welfare of every citizen is involved in the solution of the problems facing Marin County.

(The Oct. 2 editorial did not call the method of adopting the plan undemocratic. It labeled undemocratic the proposed implementation by an enforcement board with final power which would be appointed by a council made up only partly of elected officials and which could override the elected city councils and county board of supervisors. — Editor.)

Cutting Administrators Could Improve Schools

I would like to take issue with the remarks of Dr. C.W. Campbell, Superintendent of Dixie School District re: the possible effects of Proposition 14, the Watson Initiative, should it be approved by the voters in the November election.

Indeed, massive cuts in administrative personnel, with or without the cutting weapon of the Watson incentive, could prove to be beneficial to the education of children. What is precisely needed is an evaluation of the effects on children of the hit-and-run techniques of too many ambitious specialists in our schools.

Until funds are re-allocated in the direction of reducing the teacher-pupil ratio, of restoring the rightful inspirational role of the teacher in an open classroom, we will continue to get nowhere fast in the pursuit of quality education.

Department's Respect, Trust Should Be Noted

Your recent article by reporter Marlene Freedman we found interesting but unfair to the Marin County Department of Social Services in that it portrayed laxity in the handling of her case.

The department presumes that basically people are honest and when applying for aid or food stamps are in dire need, as the application for welfare is in almost all cases the last resort.

Because your reporter portrayed herself to be a mother with a child and without any resources or food, it was imperative that the food stamps be issued promptly so that mother and child would be able to obtain the necessary food to survive.

It is simple to defraud in almost all business transactions if one chooses. However, in most cases, the fraudulent action is eventually revealed because the Department of Social Welfare does maintain an investigative unit for this very purpose, which is on constant alert for such practices.

In fairness to all concerned, we believe your reporter should have reported that the respect, trust, and dignity which was accorded her as a person in need was a virtue of the Department of Social Services which should have been lauded and not criticized.

Majority Of Experts Favor Fluoridation

I have been following the great fluoridation furor with much interest. On the one hand, we have an impressive number of health and other groups endorsing fluoridation — as so ably documented by your correspondent Dr. Schwebel. On the other hand, we have a number of dedicated individuals questioning the wisdom of fluoridation, quoting names of selected prominent persons who are opposed and citing discontinuance of this practice by one Scandinavian nation.

It would appear to me that those persons uncertain as to whether to endorse fluoridation give serious thought about the majority of professional opinion in this controversy. After all, it is the majority which elects our government; it is the majority in the Supreme Court which decides causes on which they rule.

It is patently obvious that neither group is going to prevail 100 per cent in this matter. Although I must admit that the majority is not necessarily always correct, on the basis of the evidence which has been presented both in your paper and in volumes of scientific data, one must decide in favor of fluoridation of drinking water. Finally, that minority who is still opposed are really not penalized —since they have the opportunity to purchase bottled water at a reasonable price . . .

Sneaky Campaign Tactics In Marin

We don't need the FBI to point out the illegal and subversive Republican campaign methods. They are typified by a small incident in San Rafael, where we left our car in a parking lot on Fourth Street near the "Re-elect Whoever" headquarters.

When we returned someone had pasted a new "Democrats for Nixon" sticker in the center of the large "Another Family for McGovern-Shriver" poster on the back of my 1963 station wagon. Removing it without defacing the poster proved impossible. Republican glues are as tacky as Republican ethics!

It is just such cavalier disregard for private property and callous absence of fair play on all levels of the Republican campaign that makes us want to "come home" to a government we can believe in. It simply isn't funny to palm off sneaky, anonomous, expensive smears as "the way things are." . . .

Supervisors Ignore Civic Center Street

I sometimes feel that our Marin County Board of Supervisors as a whole are either completely non-observant, callously immune to their surroundings, or utterly lacking in regard for the small points of betterment of conditions for the taxpayers who shell out the funds which they expend.

We have a multimillion-dollar Civic Center complex, built with tax money; a beautifully designed and constructed branch post office facing it, also built with tax dollars. The area is beautifully landscaped and is a pleasure to behold.

However to circle into the post office parking area, to use its facilities, one is required to use an approximately 50-60 yard access street from North San Pedro Road which is comprised of sharp-edged "chug holes" 12 to 24 inches in diameter and two to eight inches in depth. It looks like the cratered surface of the moon. Undoubtedly it is destructive to the tires and suspension systems of cars using it . . .

In the past 18 months I have:

a. Called the public works department twice.

B. Called the administrator's office three times.

C. Called the clerk of the supervisors once.

d. Spoke personally to the late Supervisor John F. McInnis, who promised to see that some action was taken.

e. Mentioned it to a member of the grand jury, who promised to see that notice was taken.

Results? Drive by and take a look! . . .

Voter Should Follow Those He Can Trust

I was relieved to see the I-J coming out in opposition to Proposition 14, the Watson Initiative. I feel much stronger opposition than you indicated.

The writer suggests it might be "wiser to forget who is for and who is against" it in coming to a decision on it. I strongly disagree. As a conscientious voter it is impossible for me to study all of the issues so I must depend upon advice from people I trust. By comparing a brief list of those for and those against Proposition 14, I don't see how any reasonable voter could help but oppose it, unless he had a vested interest.

Proponents include only such heavy property owner groups as Calif. Real Estate Association, Farm Bureaus, and property and apartment owner groups. Opposing Proposition 14 are such diverse groups as Chamber of Commerce and AFL-CIO (who frequently disagree on other issues), all teachers' organizations and the school boards association (who frequently disagree), Governor Reagan and former Governor Brown (who frequently disagree) and many more.

If a voter cannot really study a problem I urge them to seek advice from people he trusts. . .

Man In Photograph Scarcely Unknown

On the front page of yesterday's I-J (Oct. 10) was the picture of the auto accident on San Pedro Road, Santa Venetia, which brought death to two women. Viewing the wreckage was an "unknown man". Although unidentified he certainly isn't an unknown in Marin County for those who have worked with youth or other areas of community concern. He is Pastor Barrett M. Marin Should Stop Commercial Airline

After reading the so-called "public service message" recommending the use of Hamilton Air Force Base as a civilian airport, one has to wonder what kind of people we have in the Marin County Planning Department and the San Rafael Chamber of Commerce.

Did it ever occur to them that part of the beauty of Marin is its very freedom from such commercial nuisances — its peaceful, predominantly residential nature is what makes Marin so desirable a place to live?

Did they consult the people of San Mateo on the "benefits" they derive from the noise and air pollution that's become part of their everyday lives? Did they ever research the number of professional flight crews who choose to live in Marin to be away from airport noise?

Isn't it obvious that the people who "commute" to the airport would prefer to do that than live close to an airport? And wouldn't the regular commuter move closer to the airport if he felt the chore of commuting outweighed the pleasure of living in a quiet community? . . .

I suggest the people of Marin take stock of the few remaining good things they have going for them and stop this move before it gets off the ground.

Too Many Lanes For Autos In Plan

A seven-lane transportation corridor through San Rafael, San Anselmo and Fairfax is one of the transportation elements proposed in the countywide general plan.

The corridor would be composed of six arterial street lanes for cars and one lane for transit right-of-way. The present total is mostly four arterial lanes for cars consisting of: the Second and Third Street couplet in San Rafael downtown; the Miracle Mile; and the combination of Sir Francis Drake and Center through San Anselmo and Fairfax.

The CCPC transportation committee opposed this recommendation, arguing that it would bring about the certain disruption of existing communities.

A transportation corridor of this magnitude, with six-sevenths of it devoted to automobiles, would result in the destruction of a good many homes and businesses to provide the three additional lanes. Since automobile capacity would be increased by a full one-third, it would discourage transit ridership and would confirm the existing formula: Biger roads lead to more development served by autos, which leads to still bigger roads, and so on.

A transit right-of-way is needed. Quite possibly, it should be granted from the existing pavement.

But the six lanes for autos look like still another revival of the Highway 17 proposal, and they would have the same social and environmental effects.

Residential Property Bears Most Tax Load

Mrs. (Jean) Barnard, although a personal friend for many years, is much more knowledgeable about Mill Valley affairs than she is about the tax limitation amendment, Proposition 14, as evidenced by her recent letter.

If she will check the latest census figures available, the 1966 U.S. Census Bureau Report, Table 5, which lists locally assessed properties in California, she will find that single-family homes make up 48.5 per cent of the total, and multiple units 12.3 per cent. When utility properties are added into these figures, single-family homes wind up paying 39 per cent of property taxes with multiple dwellings paying 11 per cent. . .

Statements that over 70 per cent of property taxes are paid by business and non-residential property owners is false and has been thoroughly discredited. These figures are emanating largely from Big Business itself, which seeks the defeat of Proposition 14.

When Proposition 14 passes, homeowners will receive about a 40 per cent reduction in their property taxes next year —if you pay $1,000 a year now, you will save about $400 next year on your property taxes. Tenants must receive a reduction also, because Section 301.102 of Vol. 2, Phase 2 of the Wage and Price Stablization Guidelines mandates a reduction in rents when property taxes are lowered. . .

Disclosures Raise Doubts Of President

It is hard to believe that the men closely surrounding the President of the United States — members of the Committee to Relect the President, and of the White House staff, could be involved in such an extensive campaign of political spying and sabotage as is now being disclosed.

Yes, it would be unbelievable, but the facts are in the files of the FBI and of the Department of Justice. Question is, will they all come out before election?

With so many question marks about the inherent honesty and candor of this administration, it seems to me that anyone planning to vote for a presidential candidate should ask himself: "Is this man worthy to be trusted with the leadership of this country, and with my future, for the next four years?"

'Scientific Age' Leads Us Into Recognizing The Mystery

"If you think we're waxworks," Tweedledum said to Alice, "you ought to pay, you know." — "Through the Looking-Glass."

To a 19th century man, solidly planted on his sensible earth, the 20th century universe as defined by its physical scientists (of all people!) would seem indeed a "Looking-Glass" world. What could a substantial rationalist like Herbert Spencer, for instance, make of the new physics of "negative mass," of "two-dimensional time" ("time flowing backward"), of Einstein's curved space?

"Atoms are not things," Werner Heisenberg frantically insisted, more like a metaphysician than a quantum physicist. Atoms, another physicist wagishly agreed, are waves on Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays and particles on Tuesdays, Thursdays, and Saturdays.

"The history of physical science in the 20th century," concluded Sir James Jeans, "is one of progressive emancipation from the purely human angle of vision . . . The universe begins to look more like a great thought than like a great machine."

INEVITABLY, THIS change in definition of the universe has resulted in an equally radical change in the definition of man — or should have. If the 19th century tended to think of man as a machine-within-a-machine, shouldn't the 20th century, to be consistent, think of man as an idea-within-an-idea?

Things haven't quite worked out that way. In his new book "The Roots of Coincidence," Arthur Koestler argues that, paradoxically, as physics has gotten more "occult," psychology has gotten more mechanistic — more inclined to compare man to a computer than to a concept.

Koestler almost fretfully announces himself a "reluctant convert" to "parapsychology," which he takes to promise the redefinition of man corresponding to the quantum physicist's redefinition of the universe. He quotes with heartfelt agreement a friend: "ESP is a pain in the neck. I would be happier without it; but it is there."

As Koestler implies, parapsychology lacks a certain intellectual respectability. The mysteries of telepathic communication and precognition remind sober citizens of "funny goings-on in the darkened Victorian parlor." Furthermore, "sensitives" — the people said to have a sixth sense — are, Koestler admits, "often unpredictable, sometimes of hysterical disposition." Coming out of the world of cut-rate crystal balls on the one hand and the pulpier varieties of science fiction on the other, parapsychology has lacked the sort of credentials that predispose academicians toward a fair hearing.

BUT NOW, Koestler points out as cultural historian, all this is changing. The Parapsychology Association has been recognized by the American Association for the Advancement of Science. Parapsychology has practically become a Russian industry. In 1958 there were two publications on the subject in the Soviet Union. Eleven years later 70 had come into being. Ironically, American attentiveness has been further stimulated by the knowledge that Russian research in ESP was being applied to the Soviet manned space program.

But beyond all the cultural politics, the message itself has finally registered. "Something" seems to happen that transcends both the laws of sensory communication and the laws of mathematical probability. When, for example, "sensitives" are given a one-in-five chance to guess which card is being turned over in the next room, they consistently score better than 20 per cent right. The rather monotonous evidence, systematically collected at least since the Rhine experiments at Duke University beginning in the 1930s, is being belatedly acknowledged for what it is: verified data, proof that, well, "something" seems to happen.

TO ASSUME MORE at this time is as tempting as it is reckless. The fact is, nobody knows quite what he knows. The unavoidable "how-to" book has just been published: "How to Develop Your ESP." A TV dramatic series has been whipped up about parapsychology, titled "The Sixth Sense," complete with swirling mists, spooky montages, and electronic music on the soundtrack. The fad is on.

But parapsychology remains largely a matter of questions, even to its converts. Koestler concedes telepathy. But what about "psychokinesis"? Can a man's thought influence the roll of dice? He is far less sure.

Above all, the question persists: If there is a so-called "sixth sense," what does it tell us about the other five? What, finally, does it tell us about man?

Those labs with their electronic chance-games lack the answers. But these questions parapsychology raises are certainly among the most fascinating of the moment — questions that seem to have nothing to do with clockwork-waxwork men.

Ex-Terrorist Tries To Go Straight; It's Hard

By JAMES NELSON GOODSELL
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

GUATEMALA CITY, Guatemala — Onetime leftist terrorist Alvaro Robles is finding it hard to go straight.

Two years ago, the young Guatemalan in his late 20s quit the life of a guerrilla and began a return to a more traditional life-style.

He has found the changeover difficult and dangerous.

Obtaining a job and taking a place in traditional society after a six-year period of terrorist activity proved considerably harder than he had anticipated.

Even more challenging has been the constant threat of bodily harm from some of his former terrorist associates who resent the changeover and also from Guatemala's vengeance-seeking rightist terrorists.

Robles's situation is not unique. All over Latin America, and particularly in countries such as Guatemala, Bolivia and Venezuela where guerrilla activities grew to major proportion in the 1960s, there is a growing core of onetime guerrillas trying to live down their former activities and in the process carve out a new way of life.

Like Robles, they are finding the going rough.

"I knew it would not be easy," he said, "but it is more difficult than I thought it would be. I am something of an outcast, and I'm branded for what many Guatemalans think was a wrong way to live. Yet Guatemala would not be making the social and economic changes now evident if it were not for the guerrillas. I still think I was right in choosing the terrorist path when I did it."

And he obviously believes he was right in opting out of the terrorist role two years ago.

"Guerrillas have done their job," he said. "Guatemala needed to change and still needs to change much, much more, but it would not be changing now if the guerrillas had not called for social and economic change when they did."

Not everyone with whom Robles comes in contact knows of his background, but many suspect it — as he found out when he went job hunting

Trained as a lawyer at Guatemala's San Carlos University he discovered that not only were legal jobs scarce but there were many who questioned why he had not sought work immediately after graduation. If he answered the question and admitted that he had been with the terrorists, doors were immediately slammed in his face. With the scarcity of jobs in the first place, an evasive answer did little better.

Robles was a university student when he first joined the guerillas as a "weekend warrior," going out into the countryside on school weekends to carry out terrorist activities against the government of Col. Enrique Peralta Azurdia. He graduated midway through the term of Julio Cesar Mendez Montenegro when some of the social and economic changes called for by the guerrillas were being implemented. It was during this period that he began to question if the guerrilla way was what he wanted.

"I suppose it was the evidence that the Mendez Montenegro government was carrying out reform and improving the lot of the peasants in the countryside and building social-betterment projects in the city for the urban poor that brought about my change of thinking," he said.

"And even though I did not like the election results in 1970, which saw the election of Col. Carlos Arana Osorio, it seemed to me that the concept of reform and change was now so much a part of things that there could be no turning back. I think so even more today, even though I do not like this government."

One thing that worries Robles is the alleged government connivance in the rightest vendetta against terrorists, former terrorists and reform-minded political, labor and educational leaders. "My home has been machine-gunned at least six times in the past year — and Ojo pro Ojo, one of the rightist terrorists groups, has claimed credit for several of the incidents," he said.

But some of his former leftist guerrilla associates also have threatened his life, and he escaped capture by a group of them when he hid out for a week in the home of his aunt and uncle in Guatemala City.

Robles is hopeful that such incidents will decline in time, although he is not overly optimistic. He does have a job now— working in a bank in Guatemala City, doing some legal work, but staying as much as possible out of the limelight.

His employer knows of his past record and, according to Robles, "understands how I feel."

If Robles is bitter about the attitude of many Guatemalans concerning his past, he doesn't show it. "Time," he said, " has a way of changing attitudes, and I think in the future, there will be change. It will be some years, however, I can wait."

Archives Show Nazis Planned To Bomb U.S.

BERLIN (UPI)—Nazi military strategists drew up detailed plans for bombing American cities as far inland as Indianapolis, according to documents found in Nazi archives.

East German historian Olaf Groehler said in the latest issue of "German Democratic Report," an East German newsletter published in English, that the plans probably would have been carried out if the Nazi war machine had not been so heavily engaged on the Eastern front.

Though military historians have long known that Nazi leaders discussed bombing the United States, Groehler says the memorandum he found in Nazi archives shows that serious studies were made of the possibilities.

According to Groehler, the bombing plans contemplated round trip flights from occupied France with refueling stops on the Azores Islands.

Entitled "Tasks for long-range planes," the plans were drafted by German Luftwaffe (air force) Col. Dietrich Schwenke on April 27, 1942, and submitted to Air Minister Herman Goering on May 12, 1942, Groehler said.

"No record has yet been discovered as to what decisions were taken, but the plans to bomb the United States obviously were abandonned," Groehler said.

The plans called for air raids on Brooklyn, N.Y., Detroit, Hartford, Conn., Cincinatti, Rochester, N.Y., Badin, N.C., Indianapolis, Pawcatuck, Conn., Beaver, Pa., Natrona, Pa., Caldwell, N.J., Berwick, Pa., La Porte, Ind., Corning, N.Y., and Vancouver, Canada.

"Goering's Luftwaffe probably would have attacked if its attention had not been powerfully diverted by the critical and heavy fighting on the Eastern front," Groehler said.

The Nazi memorandum said:

"On the coast of the U.S.A. there are aluminuim works, aircraft engine works, propeller works and arms factories.

"These can only be reached by Messerschmitt 264s with DB613 motors carrying 5.5 tons of bombs and starting from Brest (in occupied France).

"If the Azores could be used as a transit airfield, it would be possible to reach these targets with" several other planes, including Messerschmitt, Heinkel and Blohm und Voss bombers carrying up to 6.5 tons of bombs.

"The Panama Canal cannot be attacked with the planes mentioned unless there can be refuelling at sea," the memorandum said.

Fourth-Graders And Their Home Life

CHICAGO (UPI) — The PTA magazine, published by the National Congress of Parents and Teachers, tells this one:

Fourth-grade youngsters in a suburb were asked to draw a picture of life at home and add a statement on what the family meant to them. Out of the assignment came such descriptions of the family as — "always fighting," "war," "nothing." One youngster drew himself looking out of a television screen, with bars before his face and his arms chained to a wall. His caption: "A family is TV."

New Chief Rabbis Of Israel Pledge To Modernize Judaism

JERUSALEM (UPI)—Israel has two new chief rabbis, both of them men pledged to end the paralysis of Judaism's leadership and to seek to bring ancient Jewish law into line with 20th Century conditions.

The two are Maj. Gen. Shlomo Goren, former chief chaplian of the Israeli armed forces, and Rabbi Ovadia Yosef. An electoral college of 150 rabbis, mayors and other community leaders met Sunday in the seat of the chief rabbinate to choose two chief rabbis, Goren to head the Ashkenazi, or Western community, and Yosef to lead Sephardic, or Oriental, Jews.

The two, both chief rabbis of Tel Aviv until their election, defeated a conservative old guard.

Goren once overroad Orthodox Jewish law and ruled that religious soldiers could change a tank tread on the Sabbath, even during peace-time.

The white-bearded rabbi reasoned that Orthodox soldiers, normally permitted to "honor the Sabbath and keep it holy," had to be prepared for the possibility of war even on the Jewish day of rest.

"The old guard has been removed," said Haim Heifetz of the Ministry of Religious Affairs. "The winners represent hope for all. The chief rabbinate will be seen for the first time."

Goren, 55, and Yosef, 51, will head separate chief rabbinical councils charged with interpreting and enforcing Jewish laws in the Jewish state and, therefore, for all of Judaism.

This could bring hope for approximately 4,000 Israelis who cannot marry because their Jewishness is in question, sources said.

Goren and Yosef complained after the elections that their predecessors, Ashkenazi Chief Rabbi Isser Yehuda Unterman, 87, and Sephardic Chief Rabbi Yitzhak Nissim, 76, "paralyzed" Judaism's supreme body and kept it distant from ordinary Jews.

"The rabbinate needs reorganizing for all of its activities have been almost paralyzed in recent years," Goren said. "Religion must be a unifying factor and not be used to divide."

Yosef, who went to the Wailing Wall in the old walled city here after the vote, told singing and dancing supporters, "I thanked God for my victory and I will work to return the crown of the chief rabbinate to its former glory. Its work has been paralyzed too long."

Owner Sees Car Driven Away

Cranford Lee Hill of 817 Fourth Street promptly reported the theft of his 1960 white and red Cadillac convertible, license number CUD103, from its parking place at Fourth Street and Tamalpais Avenue, San Rafael, police said.

Garden Of Pot Brings Arrest

Gerald Michael Salm, 328 Post Street, was arrested on suspicion of possession and cultivation of marijuana. Police had gone to his apartment after Salm's wife, Tina, 16, called at 8:35 a.m. to report a neighborhood brawl was brewing.

Police said 30 marijuana plants were found growing in containers in the apartment. Salm was booked into Sonoma County Jail and scheduled for arraignment today in Southern Sonoma Municipal Court.

U.N. Help Sought To Reduce Disasters

UNITED NATIONS (UPI)—The Philippines asked the United Nations today to mobilize modern science and technology in a global drive to reduce the disastrous effects of storms throughout the world.

Submitting the comprehensive proposal in the General Assembly's main political committee, Philippine Foreign Secretary Carlos P. Romulo recalled that his country had recently suffered the worst flood damage in its history as a result of a tropical storm.

The political committee is currently dealing with the peaceful uses of outer space. The Philippine proposal was submitted at this stage because the projected weather watch would include earth satellites and modern space technology.

Romulo's proposal included wide-ranging international measures, including a plan prepared by a panel of cyclone experts of the World Meteorological Organization (WMO), to create an international tropical cyclone warning system and organize community preparedness and disaster prevention activities.

Other elements of the proposal include intensified scientific research on tropical storms and methods to reduce their harmful effects and "remove or minimize their destructive potentials."

Romulo's resolution was cosponsored by Australia, Indonesia, Japan, Madagascar, Malaysia and Thailand.

In a speech prepared earlier for delivery to the committee, Romulo stressed the advantages of the WMO action plan.

"The plan, although relatively modest in nature and scope, clearly recognizes the value of even limited applied research or development activity which could lead to significant results," he said.

"Aside from such important aspects as detection and forecasting and observing techniques of cyclones, storm surge forecasting, flood forecasting, warning systems, risk evaluation, disaster prevention and community preparedness, it also provides for training and research—particularly specialized training for forecasters and other personnel," he said.

Felony Count Is Reduced

A 21-year-old San Rafael man who had been charged with felony counts of grand theft and concealing stolen property has been allowed to plead guilty to a misdemeanor.

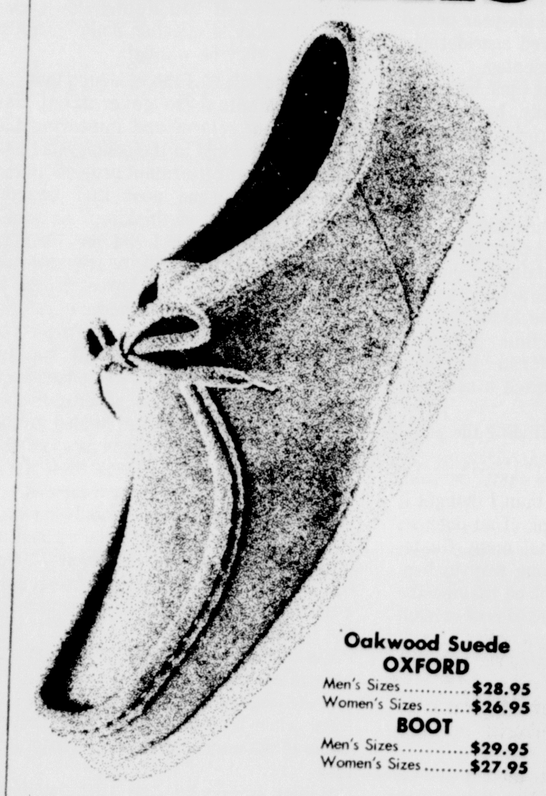

Judge Peter Allen Smith of Marin Municipal Court dismissed the theft count and reduced the stolen property count to a misdemeanor before Robert Scott Morey entered his plea. Sentencing was set for Nov. 22.

Morey was arrested July 11 by San Rafael and San Anselmo police who went to his home on a tip and found several chairs thought to be stolen.

Why Mercedes-Benz Diesel owners insist that it's all those other people who are out of step.

How strange: a little lamp on the instrument panel glows ruby red when the 220 Diesel is ready to start.

How unorthodox: you start it up by pulling out a knob.

The 220 Diesel is no ordinary automobile. It is almost eccentric. What saves it is a penchant for paring down running costs. For instance, Diesel owners sidestep all these expenses:

1. Tanking up on gasoline—a fuel that can cost 49 cents a gallon for the more exotic "premium" blends.

2. Tanking up often—Diesels seldom drop below 20 miles per gallon in average driving if properly tuned. And with a light foot on the throttle, you'll be amazed how much better than this you can do.

3. Replacing spark plugs—or adjusting carburetors, or fiddling with distributors and condensers, or installing new points. Costs that mount in a year's driving.

Why Diesel owners have the last laugh

Pop open the hood of the 220 Diesel. You'll see an engine minus carburetors, minus spark plugs, minus points or condenser or distributor.

A Diesel engine simply doesn't need these often irksome items. It does away with the traditional, delicate electric system; and it exchanges carburetors for direct injection as a means of feeding fuel to the cylinders.

Parts that aren't there will never have to be repaired or replaced.

Next, start the engine up. That odd click and clatter at idle is the sound of fuel being compressed in the combustion chambers, rather than ignited by spark plugs as in ordinary cars.

The Diesel uses a "compression-ignition" system. It means an engine compression ratio of 21.0:1 (a powerful Cadillac V-8 has a compression ratio of 8.5:1). And that means more horsepower squeezed from every drop of fuel.

Now, rub a blob of diesel fuel between your fingertips. It's a crude oil, cheaply refined. Not even stiff taxes can raise its cost above premium gasolines. In many areas it is lower even than regular grades.

Finally, note this: Most of the world's trains run on Diesel power. The same holds for huge transport trucks. Such industries depend for survival on low running cost and rock-solid reliability—strange, isn't it, that where economy and reliability really count you usually find a Diesel engine?

Perhaps it isn't so strange after all. Perhaps the 220 Diesel isn't such an "oddball" after all. It well may be the most rational automobile yet devised.

Where the economy stops

Enjoying Diesel economy means no comedown in your standard of driving comfort. In fact, if you have never owned a Mercedes-Benz it may mean a step up.

Try spotting this "economy" sedan in a showroom full of Mercedes-Benz cars. It won't be easy; from the engine compartment rearward, the 220 Diesel is almost identical to several sister models.

This means that the money-saving 220 Diesel measures 5 feet wide inside. The seats, designed with the aid of orthopedic physicians, utilize not cheap foam rubber but hand-woven coil springs and natural fiber padding.

This sturdy machine weighs over one-and-a-half tons. It is welded more than 6,000 times, painted 4 times, sealed beneath with 24 lbs. of undercoating.

"Impeccable" is a feeble word to describe that traditional Mercedes-Benz finish. Ten minutes' browsing and you will coin your own superlatives.

Saves money—and nerves

People often enthuse about the pleasure of driving their 220 Diesels. It is the pleasure of driving a car engineered up to a standard, not down to a price.

Each wheel on your 220 Diesel is sprung independently on its axle. Only a test drive can show the difference this makes on bad roads and sharp curves. The car behaves with masterful calm. As a result, so do you.

Suggestion: Bring your wife along when you test drive the 220 Diesel. She'll be delighted at how easy and relaxing this machine is to drive. She'll discover that this roomy 5-passenger sedan actually turns in a tighter circle than the little VW 1100 "Beetle."

Burying those Diesel myths

Over two decades, Mercedes-Benz has refined Diesel engine performance to a point where many familiar old criticisms are nothing more than myths.

"Diesels are noisy!" Have you heard a Diesel lately? Due to that combustion process, it does click and clatter at idle—especially when cold. But once it's under way the sound fades. By the time you hit 30 mph, it is actually hard to tell by the noise that you're riding in a Diesel.

"Diesel fuel is scarce!" Have you talked with a Diesel owner lately? The fact is, diesel fuel is scarcer than gasoline. But it's available wherever Diesel trucks stop, and that's thousands and thousands of places across the U.S.A.

"Diesels don't go fast enough!" Not fast enough to win a drag race, true. But fast enough to cruise comfortably on any highway (and faster than the posted limits in 48 of the 50 states).

Mercedes-Benz motor cars: from $37,928* to $6,117*

350SL Roadster	$10,616
280SE 4.5 Sedan	$10,170
280SE Sedan	$ 9,598
250 Coupe	$ 8,169
250 Sedan	$ 7,315

A Diesel is undeniably "different." But not as different as many people think—and not different enough to prevent more than 35,000 Americans from buying Mercedes-Benz Diesel sedans in the past 10 years.

A $6,117 investment

The Diesel comes fully equipped at a basic price of $6,117. You can order extra equipment, e.g. automatic transmission and air conditioning and a sliding sun roof, to suit your special needs.

PARASOLS FOR PORTLAND

Members of the Assistance Guild of Marin, Mrs. Peter Empey (left) and Mrs. Herbert A. Crocker (right) picked up the parasols Friday from Marin Open House that they will take with them to the 24th annual convention of National Assistance League in Portland this week. Each guild was asked to bring a parasol decorated to show "their dreams come true." The local women asked Marin Open House and Center Point, both drug rehabilitation facilities, supported by the guild, to decorate the parasols. "Togetherness" is the theme for the parasol decorated by Marin Open residents and being given to Mrs. Empey by Erbent Summer.

M. D. Murphys Set Sail On Golden Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. M. D. Murphy of Sonoma celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary yesterday aboard the S.S. Mariposa as it sailed on an Hawaiian Island cruise.

The Murphys, who were married in 1922, were residents of Mill Valley for 40 years before moving to Sonoma.

A family party for the Murphys at their daughter's home in Larkspur and a small bon voyage party aboard ship were held for the couple, who opened the first R and M style shop in Mill Valley in 1924.

Mr. and Mrs. Murphy met at Analy High School in Sebastopol. Mrs. Murphy moved to Mill Valley with her parents after graduation in 1921 and the following year she and her husband were married at her family's home.

In 1923 the Murphys opened a grocery store in Mill Valley. A year later they opened the first clothing store, followed by the R and M style shop for men in Mill Valley and in 1937 the R and M shop in San Rafael.

Mr. and Mrs. Murphy moved to Sonoma in 1964 and five years later they retired, closing the shop in Mill Valley.

The Murphys have two children. Roger Murphy of Mill Valley and Mrs. L. T. Armstrong of Larkspur. They have four grandchildren, Linda and Scott Murphy and Lisa and Gregory Armstrong.

The couple celebrated their 40th wedding anniversary on a cruise to the South Pacific, where they toured Australia and New Zealand.

While in Mill Valley, Mr. Murphy was an active Rotarian and served as president of the club. Mrs. Murphy was a member of the Order of Eastern Star chapter in Mill Valley. They both belong to the Temelec Country Club in Sonoma.

Mrs. H. C. Newberry of Mill Valley will accompany the two on the cruise. She celebrated a birthday yesterday.

FIFTY YEARS of married life brought congratulatory cards to the Sonoma home of Mr. and Mrs. M. D. Murphy. The Murphys, who were 40 year residents of Mill Valley, celebrated their anniversary yesterday aboard the Mariposa on a cruise to Hawaii.

Koenig Park Dedication Next Sunday

Dedication of the Anita Koenig Memorial Park in Sausalito will be held next Sunday, not last week as reported in the Independent-Journal last Friday.

The ceremony will be held at 4 p.m. at the park on the corner of Harrison and Santa Rosa Avenues, with Mrs. George A. Sears as chairman. Mayor Robin Sweeny will make the dedication to the memory of the late Mrs. Koenig, and the Rev. John S. Thornton will give the invocation.

After the ceremony a reception will be held at Campbell Hall, parish hall of Christ Episcopal Church in Sausalito.

Mrs. Koenig was a past president and chairman of the tree committee for the Sausalito Woman's Club, whose members assisted with development of the park by the City of Sausalito.

One Marriage In 3 Ends In Divorce

Today one marriage in three ends in divorce.

"Any other institution that causes as many failures as marriage," writes ngvelist Herbert Gold, "would be declared illegal." Even those unions of long duration are crumbling. A recent federal study finds that the divorce rate for marriages of 20 years and longer has shot up 38 per cent in a year.

ARLENE DAHL

Sears Beauty Aide On The Job

By JOAN LISETOR

As Sears national beauty adviser, actress Arlene Dahl makes personal appearances across the country promoting the beauty products, but the part of the job she takes most seriously is working with dermatologists and scientists on innovative beauty products.

Miss Dahl was in Marin over the weekend for the opening of Sears newest store in the country at the Northgate Shopping Mall.

On the way to the office of the store manager, W. H. Sanders, Miss Dahl stopped at the cosmetics counter to buy a pair of false eyelashes.

"I really believe in Sears products," she explained, "and I've always wanted to try the lashes that go below the eyes."

LAST YEAR the actress made 24 trips across country for Sears, conducting "Beauty Happeinigs," answering questions about health and beauth.

"I ask questions too," Miss Dahl said. "I find out what the women want and what kinds of products are needed."

At age 45 the actress has flawless skin. Allergies prevented her from using heavy pancake make up during her modeling and acting days, and although it meant getting up hours earlier for longer makeup sessions when she made motion pictures, it has paid off.

"I won't mention the names of the two actresses I saw the other day, who are about my age, but their skin has unattractive marks from all those years of makeup," she said.

Her own career began in her late teens, when she left her native Minneapolis, went to New York and within a year became a successful model.

She was discovered by Jack Warner, who came back stage after the Philadelphia opening of a play.

"I don't even remember the name of the play, but it was a take-off on women. It had an all woman cast, and I played the ingenue," she said.

"JACK WARNER came backstage and introduced himself, and of course I thought it was all a joke. He said he wanted me to come to Hollywood for a screen test, and I thought he was kidding, but he showed me the right credentials, and off I went to Hollywood."

After she saw her screen test, she immediately headed for the airport.

"It was so terrible I knew no one would want me, so I took off. My agent stopped me at the airport and told me they wanted to sign me to a seven-year contract," she said.

Her first movie, made in 1947, was "My Wild Irish Rose."

"They were looking for a redhead, and there wasn't anyone else around except Ann Sheridan, and I guess she was too old for the part. Wasn't I lucky?"

Of the 28 films she has made the most memorable are "Three Little Words" in which she co-starred with Fred Astaire and Red Skelton and "Women's World."

"IT WAS my first 'bitchy' part and I had a ball," she said.

"The movie I had the most fun making was the 'Bengal Brigade' with Rock Hudson. He's such fun to work with, but the movie was terrible. I'm sure it's been on television."

Every actress dreams of working with Marlon Brando, and she is no exception, she said.

Recently she made a movie in France, which has not yet been released in this country, called "The Big Bank Roll."

"I made it in French and English, which means each scene has to be shot twice. It's like making two movies, but the French — they only pay you for making one," she said.

MISS DAHL has written 14 books on beauty and health and once wrote an internationally syndicated tri-weekly beauty column.

"I gave up the column after my third child was born. It was too much," she said.

She also gave up the home she loved in Pacific Palisades to spend more time with her husband, Rounsevelle W. Schaum, and the children, Lorenzo, 14, Carole, 11, and the baby, Rounsevelle Andreas (Sonny), 22-months old.

All of the cosmetics that she has endorsed and helped develop for Sears list all of the ingredients on the label.

"The American women has been taken advantage of by cosmetics manufacturers and will pay anywhere from $2 to 420 for products that have the same ingredients. I hope all cosmetics will soon list their ingredients," she said.

Her beauty tips are all based on experience, she said, and from her experience she has developed a body care plan, which includes a beauty suit, body lotion and exercise and diet regimes.

She designed the beauty suit as an exercise outfit with "just the right amount of support and gental control."

"TALK ABOUT testing a product. I wore the body suit while I was rehearsing dance numbers for "Applause." (The Broadway musical in which she starred earlier this year.) It really got a workout, and then I realized what a good fashion accessory it would make. It's great because I have my special body lotion that I apply first, then put on the beauty suit, and the body gets an all over beauty treatment," she explained.

The lotion is also part of the body care plan. Also included is a booklet expalining how to stretch for beauty, perform simple isometric exercises, spot reduce and spot develop, and for those who need to lose weight there is the Arlene Dahl seven-day wonder diet.

But discipline is really the answer to it all, she said.

"Glamor and charm are such false words. Women want to be honest and down to earth."

Marin Women

Opening Of Sears Like Social Event

Were there any Marin women at home Saturday?

By the looks of the women's fashion departments at the new Sears store on the Northgate Mall, there could not have been many.

Not only were the women shopping, but also they were greeting one another, and at times the store's first day opening resembled a social event.

Members of the Mannequin League of Marin wandered throughout the store, doing freeze modeling. The live models stood still as the department store mannequins, and one little boy even attempted to remove a diamond ring from a live model's finger. A blink from one model sent a woman off across the store in a state of shock.

Not only were the people looking, but they were buying, according to the store's fashion coordinator, Tomi Jo Barrett.

Wig consultant, Emily McGuire, said she sold more than 20 wigs in the morning.

"Arlene Dahl was in the store when I sold a woman one of her wigs. It was almost the same color as Miss Dahl's hair, so I took her over to meet her," Mrs. McGuire said.

Jewelry and cosmetics also sold well, and one sales person mentioned the sale of a $600 diamond ring. — J. L.

Women's Lib Ideas Advocated

Black women are among the strongest advocates of ideas advanced by women's liberationists, according to a poll conducted by Louis Harris and Associates for Virginia Slims cigarette company.

Black women are more prone to think that the status of women should be raised and much less prone to find negative connotations in the term "women's liberation." Black women are consistently more positive than white about the capacity of women in general to hold high political office and more assertive about the right of women to be represented fully at the Democratic and Republican nominating conventions.

Black women are, however, a little more apt to believe that men are more aggressive and have greater stamina.

'Can't Be Changed'

Many social scientists believe a woman's life can't be changed unless a man's is too. Women can be liberated, they say, only if the distinctions between the traditional male-female roles concerning wage-earning, child care and housework becomes less rigid.

HELEN HELP US!

By HELEN BOTTEL

Key Fell Out Of Saucepan, But It Wasn't Soup Company's Fault

DEAR HELEN:

I opened a can of soup, heated it in a saucepan and, when I served it, something klunked into my husband's bowl, and it was a key.

"Ralph Nader wouldn't stand still for this," said I to myself, so we sent the key to the soup company with a note of complaint.

Back came an apologetic letter — and a six-pack of soup, on the house.

Then, two weeks later our son returned from a trip, started looking for — you guessed it — the key to the lock on his ten-speed bike. Said he'd hung it on a nail in the cupboard.

My conscience hurts. Should I confess to the soup company that the "key in their soup" actually wasn't, and offer to return the free gift, or should I remember that the cost of a new lock for our son's bike (after sawing the other off) came to more than six cans of tomato bisque? — GUILTY

DEAR GUILTY:

Return of the soup wouldn't really affect the company's economy, but a letter explaining your mistake might brighten a customer-relation man's day. You'd be surprised how one "I'm sorry — I misjudged you" note stands out in a stack of complaints. He might even send you another six-pack in gratitude. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

The trend is for an unwed expectant mother either to decide for an abortion or to keep her baby — and if she is a teenager, this last means most likely in the home of her parents.

From sad experience, I tell you the grandparents suffer most when an immature girl insists on keeping her child.

Our daughter became a mother at 16. Madly in love with the father, she wouldn't hear of giving her son away. They planned to be married as soon as he had parental permission — but they split up when the baby was three months old.

We wanted Jan to finish school so baby-care fell mostly to me. She treated little John as a doll, something to show off or play with when he was good and she had nothing else to do. Weekends? I tried to make her take over, but how could I let John suffer from her neglect?

Now Jan is graduated, but the story is the same. She gets Aid to Dependent Children, pays us a little for room and board, spends the rest on herself. She's off gadding with friends or on dates, but won't seek a job "because I have a baby to care for." Again, if I say "He's your responsibility" and carry it through, it only means diaper rash, a hungry child. I can't do that to my grandson. Nor can we put them out, knowing John would suffer.

Oh yes, girls are proud of their babies these days. There's no stigma — keeping your child wins you "brownie points" with your peers. But an immature teenager is seldom a good mother . . . she's too much of a daughter herself.

Abortion isn't always the answer. Often the girl becomes pregnant again out of guilt or regret — and she's doubly determined to keep her baby this time. Could not society, which helps create these situations for grandparents, also try to help them? How about putting the unwed young mother on a sort of probation? She should be closely followed by a case worker, given psychiatric help if needed, and if she doesn't assume responsibility in the home, her child should be taken from her. Why simply give her ADC assistance — and her parents all the work?

Could we hear from other "illegitimate" grandparents and how they have faced this situation? Please don't say "You should have raised her differently." It's too late for that — we did our best. Our daughter isn't bad — just immature. — ONE VERY DISILLUSIONED PARENT

DEAR PARENT:

Jan will remain immature as long as she has a harried nursemaid — someone she can manipulate into serving her neglected baby, as she probably worked it all those years when (am I right?) you cleaned her neglected room, ironed and mended her unkempt clothes, so that you wouldn't be embarrassed by a sloppy daughter.

Hindsight never helps unless you learn from it. The lesson here is in knowing yourself. Since you're the type who can't stand by (or demand action) when there's a job to be done, then leave —and don't return from your vacation until you've given Jan a big taste of full-time motherhood. (Ask a friend to check occasionally on the baby's welfare, but my hunch is this won't be needed.)

When you come home, don't slip back into the "do-for" routine. Nag if you must, but let Jan understand that John is her responsibility, and if she won't care for him, he can still be taken away legally by his grandparents. — H.

Dry Cleaning Industry Confusion

I-J Special Report

CHICAGO — The Federal Trade Commission has spent nearly 12 months trying to provide a simple, clear-cut permanent-care labeling rule for dry cleaning items.

To date, the examples set forth have led to confusion in the textile and dry cleaning industries, according to the National Automatic Laundry and Cleaning Council.

Ward A. Gill, council president said the initial FTC label example excluded both petroleum and perchlorethylene solvents, which ruled out all dry cleaning, because these two solvents account for all of the dry cleaning process.

In July, after many erroneous labels had been put on garments, the FTC proposed an amendment reading, "Professional dry clean only." The wording eliminates a choice to the consumer, who could be paying five times more for dry cleaning as compared to coin operated services, according to the council.

The council has endorsed the proposed FTC amendment, which would read, "Dry clean only."

The only items that can not be dry cleaned in coin store perchlorethylene solvent are fur, vinyl, rubber, plastic and angora, according to the council.

Automation For Market Nears

By JOSEPHINE RIPLEY
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

WASHINGTON — How can you tell which line at the checkout counters is going to move the fastest? Most supermarket shoppers make a quick guess, jockey for position and wait it out.

Would you believe the day is not far distant when checkout service will be speeded up so there will be no lines —at least, no long ones.

Automation is on its way. When it arrives, your purchases will speed along a conveyor belt where an optical scanner will record the price symbol on each one and flash it to a computer that will relay it to an automated cash register before you have time to ask, "How much?"

What will this mean to the consumer? Obviously, it will substantially reduce the amount of time you will have to spend in the supermarket.

IT ALSO will have an effect on prices, for it will reduce operating costs to the supermarket.

This will help to keep food prices at a stable level, despite inflation, or possibly lower prices to some extent.

That is about as far as experts in the field, such as E. Edward Ashdown, vice-president of the Grocery Manufacturers of America, will go in predicting the impact of industry on prices to the consumer.

It has been estimated that the large supermarket chains will have to spend between $200 million and $300 million to convert their stores to the electronic check-out system.

Even so, it is also estimated that they will be able to save about $100 million a year over installation costs.

Automation on such a gigantic scale is exceedingly complex, and calls for an entirely new product code.

THIS CODE will be composed of 10 digits to identify the manufacturer, product, size, variety and price.

It will be known as the Universal Product Code, an identification system that will represent and distinguish between many thousands of different manufacturers, companies, products and prices.

All this will be unintelligible to the shopper, for the price, as such, will not be marked on the can or package. But it will be posted on the shelf.

Should she forget the price or have some question about it she may consult one of the closed circuit television screens that will be placed in the store, under a proposal put forth by one system.

By putting the code symbol in a designated place, the desired information —the price — will appear on the screen.

Now, what happens when you approach the checkout counter?

You will unload your shopping cart on a moving belt. But there will be no cash register in the usual place, under one plan currently being considered.

THE CONVEYOR belt will run the length of the checkout counter. A clerk will be stationed at the receiving end where he, or she, will bag the products after they move over an optical scanner.

Either the checkout clerk or the shopper will see to it that the code symbol is face down on the belt so the scanner can "see" it.

In pilot experiments, consumers were reported to have caught on to the new system quickly, voluntarily placing their purchases on the conveyor belt in the correct position.

If a package does not move past the scanner in such a way that the price can be recorded by the computer, the belt will stop and the checkout clerk must replace the item properly.

What about price changes and sale prices? Can the price symbol be changed?

"To change prices, retailers need only adjust the computer — a process that should take about 30 seconds," according to Packaging and Labeling, a hotline news service for the industry.

ASHDOWN of the GMA, one of the trade associations that has been closely involved in the development of a product code said in an interview that "trying to figure out a system to make this automation possible is almost as much of a feat, as far as the industry is concerned, as that of placing a man on the moon."

Often Accused Of Being Indifferent

When parents bend over backward not to interfere, their children often accuse them of being indifferent, according to Sadie Hofstein, a New York child development consultant.

"Parents should in no way become passive or silent, afraid to state their options or plead their cause," she said.

There will be some items, he says, like raw foods, that may or may not be a part of the system. But almost anything with a cover on it, or perhaps a tag, can be marked with the code symbol and checked out through the computer.

Five companies now are working on the development of a suitable symbol. The best symbol out of five will be the one finally adopted.

Different scanning systems also are being tried out. There are several pilot programs in operation.

How long will you have to wait for the system to be perfected? Perhaps three or four years. By 1975, industry spokesmen are fairly certain that an automatic checkout system will have been installed in many markets across the nation.

It may take another year for it to become universal.

Weber, tea chairmen; Mrs. Willard A. Hall and Mrs. George H. Folsom, flower arrangements, and Mrs. Earl G. Thompson and Mrs. Folsom, tea table hostesses.

MARIN PSYCHIATRIST Dr. John Morris will speak at the general meeting of the Family Service League at 10 a.m. on Wednesday at the First Presbyterian Church in San Rafael. His topic will be the "Nucleus of the Family."

Dr. Morris did his undergraduate work at the University of California in Berkeley and attended medical school at St. Louis University, with psychiatric training at Lafayette Clinic in Detroit, Mich.

THE MARIN County Retired Officers Wives Club will meet for brunch at the Magic Pan in Ghirardelli Square in San Francisco at 11 a.m. Wednesday.

AN INSTALLATION luncheon will be held by the Nova-Marin Grandmothers Club at Nero's restaurant in Novato on Wednesday. A social hour will be held at 11:30 a.m. followed by lunch at 12:30 p.m.

Installed for their second term will be Mmes. Ivan Johnson, president; E. E. Peterson, vice president; Gerry Gaba, treasurer; and Robert Bishop, secretary. Mrs. Charles Royce is the installing officer.

JOE GOFF, assistant superintendent of the Dixie School District, will speak on the Watson initiative at the Wednesday meeting of the Golden Gate Chapter, Women's American ORT. The group will meet at 11:30 a.m. at the Bank of Marin, Northgate Industrial Park.

The meeting is open to the public, according to Mrs. David Broad, chapter president.

Proportion Is Expected To Grow

According to U.S. Labor Department sources, more than half the women in the present labor force are between the ages of 45 and 54, and this proportion is expected to grow.

The interest in working is unquestionably there. A decade ago, Sarah Lawrence College established a Center for Continuing Education to help women resume the education they interrupted to marry and raise a family. The response was such that hundreds of colleges throughout the country now have similar programs.

MEDICARE AND Medi-Cal insurance programs will be discussed by Audrey Humphrey, supervisor of regional claims, at the luncheon and workshop of the Marin Chapter of American Association of Medical Assistants.

The meeting will be held at the Rafters at the Edgewater Inn in Corte Madera on Thursday at 11:45 a.m. Reservations are taken by the Marin Medical Society.

A LUNCHEON will be held Wednesday by Marin County Pi Beta Phi Alumnae to honor the province president, Mrs. Jean Scott of Moraga. The lunch will be held at the home of Mrs. John Shiner in Peacock Gap. Miss Nancy Turk, the 1972 Arrowmont scholarship winner, will be the speaker for the 11:30 a.m. event.

Mrs. H. Wayne Kirk is cohostess, and reservations chairmen are Mmes. Robert Bandettini and Alan Schroeder.

THE MARIN Women's Center Committee will meet Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. at the home of Mary McDade, 181 Canyon Road, Fairfax. The group will discuss plans for a future center.

MARINWOOD HOME and School Club will have a demonstration of gift wrapping by a San Rafael shop at its meeting Wednesday at 8 p.m. at the Marinwood Community Center.

MARIN COUNTY Alumnae Club of Alpha Chi Omega will have a luncheon and meeting Wednesday at the Pathfinders Tea Room at the Marin Art and Garden Center in Ross. Reservations chairman for the noon luncheon is Mrs. Charles Best.

ST. ANTHONY of Padua Parish Club will sponsor a spaghetti dinner at Our Lady of Loretto parish hall in Novato from 6 to 8 p.m. Friday.

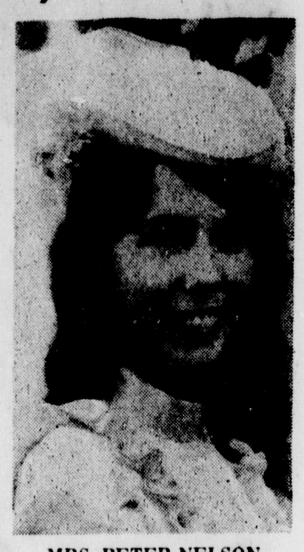

Mr. and Mrs. Gary Bauer are chairmen, assisted by Messrs. and Mmes. James Burnash, Ron Studen, Robert Keller, and Dr. and Mrs. Carl Mani.

NURSE GWYNETH Lister, service and education director of the Marin County Branch of the American Cancer Society, will speak at a meeting of the Marin Mastectomy Services on Wednesday. The group will meet at noon in the auditorium of the Tamalpais Retirement Residence in Greenbrae. Merodyne McIntyre will be the hostess.

A GARAGE sale will be held Friday and Saturday at the home of Mrs. J. J. Estrada, 475 Nova Albion Way, San Rafael by Gamma Omicron Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi. Sale hours are 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Proceeds will be given for Cystic Fibrosis Association aid.

Miss Sauers Wed In Portola Valley Church

MRS. PETER NELSON
Wed Saturday

Deborah Lane Sauers of Los Altos Hills and Peter Carl Nelson of Mill Valley were married Saturday morning at the Valley United Presbyterian Church in Portola Valley.

The bridal attendants were Nancy Brown Raasch of Palo Alto, and the bride's sisters, Kathy Sauers McCarty of Booneville and Susan Patricia Sauers of Los Altos Hills.

Jack Thomas Ford of Davis served as best man for Peter. The ushers were the bridegroom's brothers, William Robert Nelson of Sacramento and Robert David Nelson of Mill Valley. Also ushering were Russel Smith of Larkspur and Michael Beaver of Mill Valley.

The wedding reception was given at Holbrook Palmer Park in Atherton. The couple are on a wedding trip to the Bahamas and will live in San Francisco.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Dale Sauers of Los Altos Hills, Deborah is a graduate of Gunn High School in Palo Alto and the University of California at Davis. She is employed by Wilsey and Ham in Foster City.

Peter is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Nelson of Mill Valley. A graduate of Tamalpais High School and the University of California at Davis, Peter is employed with Pacific Gas and Electric Co. in Oakland.

Gregory Lerigo, Rickey Siegel Marry In Fairfax

Deer Park Villa in Fairfax was the setting for the nuptials yesterday of Rickey Siegel and Gregory Lerigo of Larkspur.

The bride is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Jack Siegel of Greenbrae. Mrs. Julie Miller of San Rafael was her only attendant.

Best man was Timothy Schneider of Elyria, Ohio, the bridegroom's brother.

The couple left on a wedding trip to Lake Tahoe. They will live in Larkspur.

Rickey is a graduate of Redwood High School and the College of Marin and she is employed with Modern Juniors in San Francisco. Marvin Siegel of Miami, Fla., is her brother, and she is the granddaughter of Rae Woloski of San Rafael and Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Kemp of San Francisco.

Gregory is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Schneider of Elyria and the brother of Lisa Schneider of Elyria and Kathie Lerigo of Mill Valley.

He graduated from high school in Sarasota, Fla., and is a graduate of DeKalb College in Atlanta, Ga. He is employed with Lerigo Associates in San Francisco.

William Charles Truckell Weds Pamela Sue Gestri

Pamela Sue Gestri and William Charles Truckell were married Saturday at the Marin Art and Garden Center in Ross, where a reception was also held.

Pamela, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bud Gestri of Fairfax, chose as her attendants Lois Thompson of Felton as maid of honor and JoAnn Hughes of Santa Cruz and Vickie Harrelson of Mission Viejo.

Ron McKenney of Fresno was the best man. The ushers were Charles Marshall of San Luis Obispo and Max McBride of Corcoran.

After a Lake Tahoe wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. Truckell will live in Visalia.

Both attended College of Marin and Cabrillo College. Pamela graduated from Marina High School in Huntington Beach and William is a graduate of Corcoran High School.

She is the sister of Thomas Gestri of Santa Cruz and David Gestri of Rohnert Park.

William is the son of Mr. and Mrs. George I. Truckell of Corcoran and the brother of Mrs. Robert Curtis of Fairfax. He is employed in Visalia.

Double Responsibility

The working woman with the double responsibility of job and home needs the cooperation of her husband and children to manage. If her husband objects to her working, or if she has serious family problems, the strain on her can be increased. Yet, according to the Bureau of Labor Statistics, the absentee and turnover rates for women are no higher than for men.

In China, Women Status Is Equal

By WILBUR G. LANDREY

CANTON, China (UPI)—"Women support half the sky. We earn together, and we spend together."

This is the ideal of "women's lib" in China today, as expressed by Cheng Sung-ken, a leading member of the Revolutionary Committee at the Hsinhua (New China) commune near Canton.

And on a 19-day tour of the country this summer a group of UPI executives did come to the conclusion that women in China are equal —at least in the working area.

The vast majority do the same job as men, in the factories and on the vast communal farms. Women even dress as men —or vice versa — in the universal unisex outfit seen everywhere in the country.

FANG KUI-MEI is a factory worker. She has worked in textile mills since the age of 12, under the old regime and under the new. She is now 42 and makes 78 yuan ($31) a month, two yuan ($.80) more than her husband at the Peking No. 3 Textile mill in the Chinese capital.

With their three sons of 14, 12 and 9, she and her husband live in an apartment of two rooms, plus shared kitchen and a flush toilet, on the top floor of one of the three-story apartment houses on the factory grounds.

Mrs. Fang works the middle shift beginning at 2:30 p.m. Her husband, Yang Shu-tang, works days. Most of the time she cooks at home for the family, although they can easily and cheaply eat at the factory canteen.

Both came to the factory in 1956 from Shantung province in northeast China where they met and married. They have taken their children back several times.

A pleasant, brown-faced woman, Mrs. Fang has decorated her living room with scenic pictures of mountains and streams along with the picture of Chairman Mao Tse-tung and one frame of family snapshots.

THE ROOM has couches and chairs, but doubles as a sleeping room. The bedroom has a bed, two wardrobes, a small dresser and a sewing machine. The kitchen has a two-gas burner and a sink supported by bricks. She shares it with another family.

The building and the apartment are clean, although the floors are of cement.

What will her children do?

"Some want to be soldiers, others workers. It will depend on where they are needed."

Women factory workers can retire at the age of 50 if they wish. Men retire at 55 or 60. Pensions run up to 70 per cent of the salaries, depending on length of service.

Maternity leave is eight weeks with full pay, and the new mother gets time off to nurse her baby.

Prof. Ling Chiao-chi is a noted woman doctor, head of the department of obstetrics and gynecology at Peking Capital Hospital, a leader in the birth control movement and a member of the standing committee of the National Peoples Congress.

She started at the hospital as a medical student in 1921 when it was the Peking Union Medical College run by the Rockefeller Foundation and was graduated in 1927, one of two women in a class of 16. She was at the University of Chicago in 1939-40, and her English is excellent.

A WISPY, energetic woman of 71, she has 44 doctors on her staff and all but five are women, a far different situation than when she began studying medicine and women were barred from leading positions. About half the doctors in China are now women, she said.

"The women in New China are much better off," she says, her eyes sparkling. She has maintained contact with a few colleagues outside China — "More are writing me now."

In Soochow, one of the garden cities of China, 30-year-old Chen Yu-ing and her five-year-old son live with her parents. She is an English interpreter for the China Travel Service. Her husband is an engineer in Wuhan, and they have lived apart for five years.

The correspondents of the official Hsinhua (New China) News Agency often do not take their wives when they are sent abroad.

Wei Shu-lin runs a factory. She has headed the Revolutionary Committee of 11 members at the Peking Arts and Crafts factory for the past six years. A businesslike woman in her 40s, she wears the usual white blouse and trousers. The factory makes fine art objects — jade and ivory carvings, makes lacquer ware and cloisonnerie and does traditional paintings.

Most of China's women are among the 80 per cent of the population which live in the countryside outside the cities. Traditionally, they have worked but now things are better. No longer are poor peasant girls sold in the cities as prostitutes nor are they the concubines of rich landlords. The landlords are gone.

FOR ALL these things, it is doubtful if women yet share real political power in China. In the Communist party political bureau, there were two women out of 25 members. One was the wife of Mao Tse-tung, Chiang Ching. The other was the wife of Defense Minister Lin Piao, Yeh Chun.

Mao has revealed that Lin was killed last September in a plane crash while seeking to escape to Russia after trying to establish a military dictatorship. Yeh Chun has not been seen since then either.

What Women of Marin are saying about Guaranteed Reducing . . . the GLORIA MARSHALL Way!

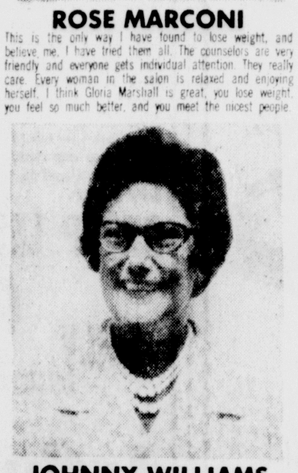

CHERYL KABANUCK
I started going to Gloria Marshall at the end of July. When school started in September people I know at school didn't even recognize me, they couldn't believe it. I got all kinds of compliments even from kids that never talked to me before. I reached my full guarantee way ahead of time. After forty hours I've lost 16¼ lbs. and 26¼ inches. I've never been happier. Gloria Marshall figure salon is a great place, and a happy one.

ANNE POWERS
Going from a size 14 to a size 10 something I never expected to be able to do — and I never would have been able to do it on my own (previous efforts had proved that!). But at Gloria Marshall's I found the positive inventives to achieve a new look and a new outlook. "Try it — you'll like it."

ROSE MARCONI
This is the only way I have found to lose weight, and believe me, I have tried them all. The counselors are very friendly and everyone gets individual attention. They really care. Every woman in the salon is relaxed and enjoying herself. I think Gloria Marshall is great, you lose weight, you feel so much better, and you meet the nicest people.

JOHNNY WILLIAMS
What a pleasure it has been taking the Gloria Marshall treatments! Not only have I lost 16¼ pounds and 24½ inches, I have met many new and interesting people. As an added bonus, I feel physically better with more energy and a new feeling of well being. I look forward to each day at Gloria Marshall's.

IRMA LAUTRUP
Couldn't believe that on ONLY ten hours at Gloria Marshalls, I lost 14 lbs. and 20 inches! — and without any effort. My husband is as pleased as I am.

LUCY McCARTHY
Since February, I have lost 40 lbs. and 48 inches, and still losing. I feel only Gloria Marshall has given me the patience and ability to stick with a very effective plan.

GRACE DYER
After 33 hours at Gloria Marshall Figure Control Salon I have lost 15¾ pounds and 20 inches. From a health standpoint I have never felt better and think my health has improved with the treatments.

LINDA SAVAGE
I came, I saw, I lost! And what's more I've maintained my weight loss for over a year 20½ lbs and 28 inches.

Two Claim They Have Mona Lisas

LONDON (UPI)—A British peer and an art dealer said today they possess Mona Lisas as authentic as the masterpiece hanging in the Louvre in Paris.

Lord Brownlow, lord in waiting to the late King Edward VIII, said his version of Leonardo da Vinci's 16th Century painting of the woman with the enigmatic smile hangs in his stately country home in Grantham, England.

"It would be wrong for me to debunk that masterpiece that hangs in the Louvre and say mine is the original," he said in an interview in the London Times. "All I say is that the Mona Lisa that hangs on my wall was painted on wood by da Vinci."

Art dealer Henry Pulitzer said he has one of the two portraits which he says da Vinci painted of the smiling Mona Lisa, a Neopolitan woman who posed for him.

Brownlow has offered to lend his painting to the British government for showing at a London festival to mark Britain's entry into the European Common Market. Pulitzer has indicated he may be willing to allow his version to be exhibited at the festival.

France has refused the British government's request to borrow the Louvre's version.

"Like all painters of the time da Vinci did not just paint one subject," Brownlow said. "I am not the sort of man who would hang a forgery on my walls."

The Times quoted a unidentified art expert as saying: "It is possible but not very probable that more than one Mona Lisa was painted by da Vinci. All known records refer to only one such work."

Book Calls Kissinger Gunslinger

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—The author of a new book about presidential aide Henry Kissinger describes him as a sort of "gunslinger" type of professional diplomat that is new to American politics.

"Kissinger hired out to Nelson Rockefeller in 1968 to gun down Richard Nixon for the presidential nomination," author-attorney Charles Ashman said Sunday.

"He failed to stop Nixon, but then joined him as a for-hire trouble-shooter.

"De Gaulle, the Berlin Wall, Red China, Vietnam ... Kissinger handles them all. So he has moved up in the Nixon administration to become the most powerful number two man in the history of the United States.

"England, France and some other countries have had diplomats who were professionals and continued to represent their country through numerous changes in government.

"But the brilliant Henry Kissinger is the first of this 'gunslinger' sort the United States has ever had."

Ashman said he even considered using the title, "Have Brain, Will Travel," for his book on Kissinger. Instead, the book has just been published by Lyle Stuart, Inc., of Secaucus, N.J., as "Kissinger: The Adventures of Super-Kraut."

Ashman said in an interview he was astonished while writing and researching his book that so many of the people he talked to had forgotten that Kissinger's job at the 1968 Republican convention was to "stop Nixon."

"At one point, an optimistic Kissinger actually told friends from Harvard that he felt they had stopped Nixon and Rockefeller would get the nomination," Ashman writes.

"Buried in the press reports of Rockefeller's announcement on May 3, 1968, when he talked about the Vietnam war and domestic problems, was a suggestion that the president of the United States should visit Red China," writes Ashman.

Ashman uses a light approach in his study of Kissinger, dwelling on his life in Germany before immigrating to America, his rise to power within the Nixon administration and his well-publicized dates with some of the world's sexiest women.

"In fact he uses somewhat of a gunslinger approach in his dealings with women," Ashman says.

Moscone To Talk On Death Penalty

Sen. George R. Moscone, D-San Francisco, will outline his opposition to Proposition 17, a measure to reinstate the death penalty, at 8:30 p.m. Thursday, at the Edgewater Inn, Corte Madera.

The meeting is part of a public forum series sponsored by the Marin chapter of the American Civil Liberties Union.

Second In Artists Series Is Wednesday

The San Domenico Artist Series will present G. S. Sachdev in its second free concert of the season at 3 p.m. Wednesday in Alumnae Hall, San Domenico School, Sleepy Hollow.

Sachdev performs on the bansuri, an ancient Indian bamboo flute, and will comment on the history, philosophy and theory of classical Indian music. He teaches flute at Ali Akbar College of Music in Marin County.

Marinite's Art To Be Exhibited

An exhibit of paintings and sculpture by William Ribar of Corte Madera will begin tomorrow at the School of Arts and Sciences in San Anselmo. The show will run through Nov. 17.

The school is located on the grounds of the San Francisco Theological Seminary. Gallery hours are 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. weekdays.

Carson Extortion Inquiry Continues

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Closed-mouthed detectives have hinted that "more arrests are possible" in an alleged extortion plot that threatened the life of television talk show host Johnny Carson, his wife and family.

Three suspects—two men and a woman—were in custody in connection with the extortion attempt and Carson and his family were reported still under police protection.

"The investigation is far from concluded at this time," Det. Lt. Charles Higby, in charge of the investigation, told a weekend news conference. He added, however, that he did not believe there "is any serious threat to Carson at this time."

Although police have refused to give out details of the case, Higby offered a brief outline of the week-long series of events that began a week ago with an extortion note demanding an "extremely large amount of money."

Monday morning, a note was discovered at Carson's exclusive Bel Air home, threatening his life and the lives of his new bride, and relatives unless he complied with the extortion demands, Higby said.

Carson, star of NBC-TV's "Tonight" show, notified police immediately, Higby said, and the entertainer and his family were put under police surveillance. Carson lives alone with his bride of two weeks, Joanna. His former wife, Joanne, who also lives in Los Angeles, also was believed to have received police protection.

Higby said the extortionists made several more contacts during the week. On Friday, Carson went to the NBC studio in Burbank, although it was his night off and Joey Bishop was subbing for him.

There were unconfirmed reports that Carson received a call at the studio at 7:15 p.m. to set up a money drop.

The two men reportedly put up a struggle and suffered minor facial and head injuries during a scuffle with police. All were booked on suspicion of extortion.

Kahane Must Stay In Israel

JERUSALEM (UPI)—The supreme court has overruled a lower court and forbidden Rabbi Meir Kahane, founder of the Jewish Defense League, from leaving Israel until he is charged or cleared in the attempt to smuggle weapons abroad for attacks against Arab guerrillas.

Kahane originally was forbidden from overseas travel when he was released on $9,500 bail Oct. 7 after being held for five days of questioning in jail.

On appeal, a district court judge said Kahane could travel on three conditions: that he post $24,000 bond, that he not go to the United States, and that he return by Nov. 15.

The states attorneys office appealed that decision to the supreme court. It overruled the lower court Sunday, saying Kahane must remain in Israel until the smuggling case is settled.

Combination Engine Seen For Rockets

MOSCOW (UPI)—A combination of chemical, nuclear and electric engines will power deep space rockets by 1980, a Soviet rocket designer said today.

Valentin P. Glushko, 64, one of the founders of the Soviet rocket design program, also told the newspaper Moskovsky Komsomolets that spacecraft may someday have wings and will be able to accommodate elderly passengers.

Glushko said that by the end of this decade, chemical engines will launch rockets, nuclear engines will take them out of the dense layers of the atmosphere and electric engines with small thrust will propel them to their destination at tremendous velocity.

Ceremony Will Open Point Reyes

A ceremony, officially establishing the Point Reyes National Seashore will be held at 11 a.m. Friday at the Bear Valley Trail headquarters of the park.

Richard S. Bodman, Assistant Secretary of the Interior, will be the principal speaker, talking on "The Meaning of the Occasion," said John Sansing, park superintendent.

Sansing said that the ceremony is in observance of the fact that sufficient land has been acquired to make the park efficiently administerable as required by the enabling legislation.

Rep. William S. Mailliard, R-Sixth District, and Donald H. Clausen, R-First District, will attend and give short speeches.

Assemblyman William T. Bagley, R-San Rafael, will speak. Peter R. Arrigoni, chairman of the board of supervisors, will represent Marin County.

Redwood Is Upset, 19-6

By LEW CODDINGTON

Proving once again that the best offense is a good defense, Terra Linda High School splashed and slithered its way to a 19-6 football victory over previously undefeated Redwood in Larkspur Saturday afternoon.

The Trojan defenders set up a field goal and a touchdown with fumble recoveries, forced Redwood into an intentional safety late in the game, and crowned their efforts as Bob Spain returned the subsequent free kick 50 yards for the final touchdown.

"The defense was fantastic," said winning coach Don Lucas. "I can't say enough for the leadership of (linebackers) Steve Withers and Scott Logan."

The victory turned the Marin County Athletic League race into an even greater quagmire than Redwood's field was Saturday. Terra Linda (2-3 overall) moved into a second-place tie with San Marin at 2-1, while Redwood (4-1) dropped to fourth at 1-1. Novato leads at 2-0.

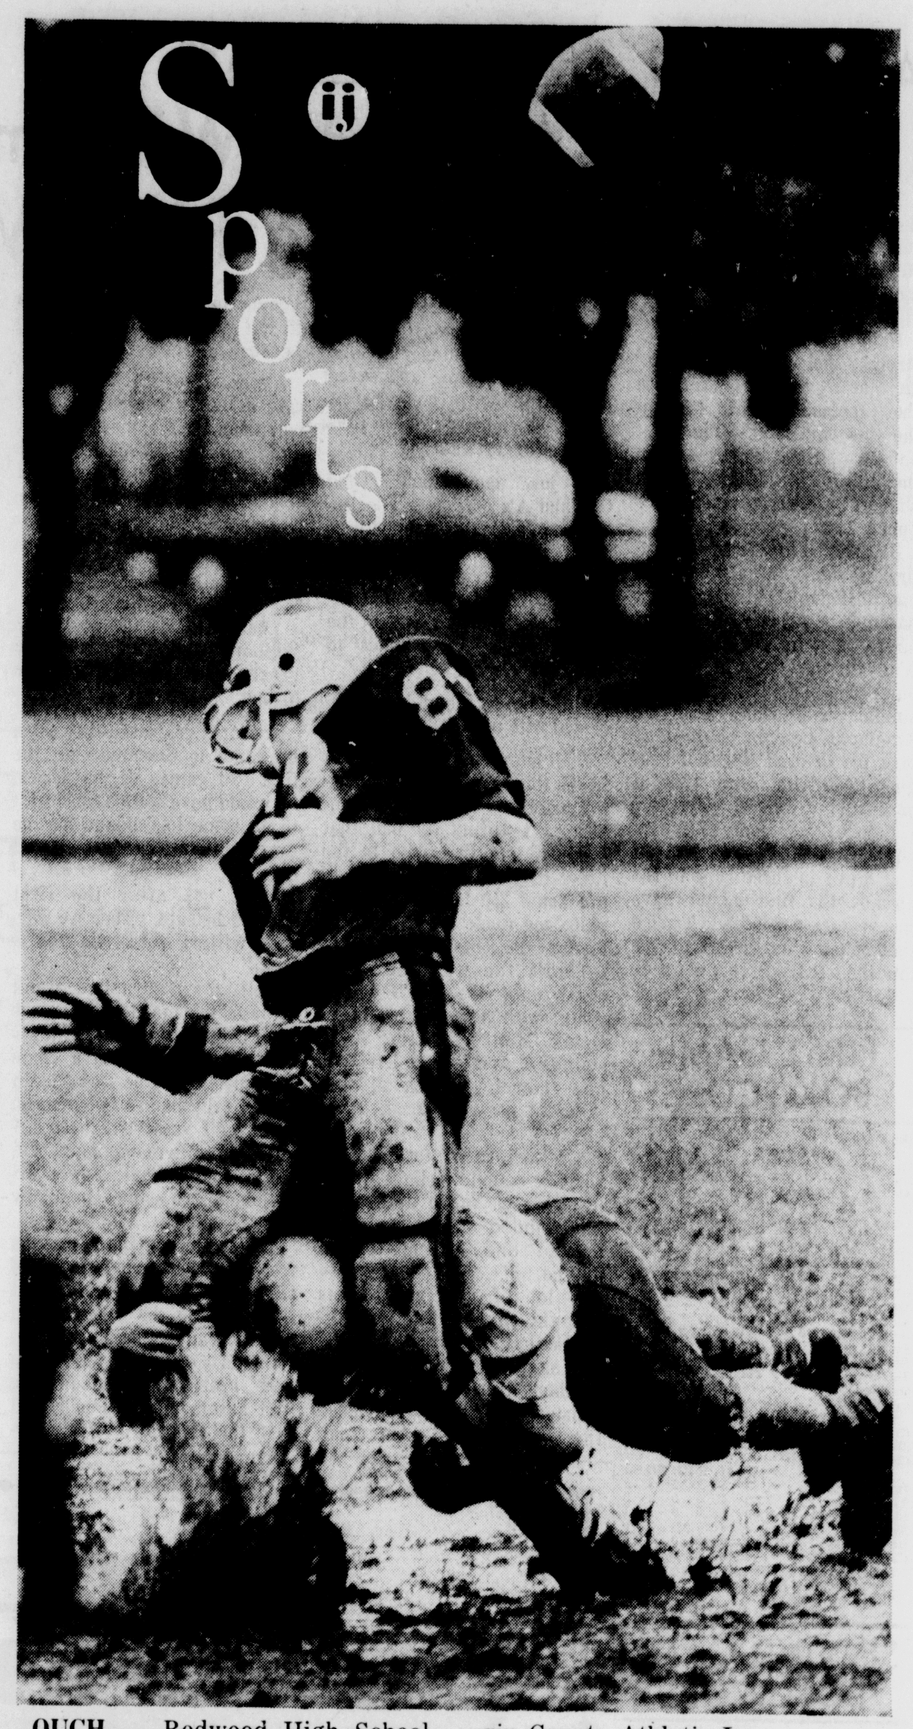

Some 1,500 fans braved the rain and saw Terra Linda strike early, as Withers recovered a fumble on Redwood's 19-yard line in the first quarter. Pete Corbett subsequently kicked a 28-yard field goal.

On the first play of the second quarter, Redwood quarterback John Troppmann was sacked trying to pass, fumbled, and Trojan lineman Larry Madden recovered on the Giants' one. Scott Logan bucked across for the score.

Redwood drove 45 yards in 10 plays to score on a one-yard run by Daryl Edralin late in the half, but that was the last show of offensive strength for Giants. They made only two first downs for the rest of the contest.

Redwood's field position grew progressively worse throughout the second half, and with 5:26

A's Return Home Up By Two Games Over Reds In The Series

By KEN RAPPOPORT

OAKLAND (AP) — The Oakland A's were home today with a 2-0 lead in the 1972 World Series with hopes of polishing off the Cincinnati Reds with the same combination of pitching, power and fielding expertise that won the first two games.

Gene Tenace's slugging and Vida Blue's golden arm in relief won the opener of the baseball classic 3-2 in Cincinnati Saturday. And the upstart A's made it two straignt Sunday with a 2-1 triumph behind Jim Hunter's right-handed brilliance and a sparkling defense.

The Reds, hoping to reverse the trend, will start Jack Billingham against John (Blue Moon) Odom in the third game of the Series at the Oakland Coliseum Tuesday night. Don Gullett was named to oppose Ken Holtzman in the fourth game. The fifth game will also be played in Oakland, if needed, and the sixth and seventh will go back to Cincinnati next weekend if necessary.

All games in Oakland start at 5:30 p.m. PDT. All will be televised nationally, channels 3 and 4, with no TV blackout.

"I'm not ready to panic yet," said Cincinnati Manager Sparky Anderson, whose National League team was favored to beat the American League champs. "I'm close, though."

Dick Williams, the Oakland manager, was naturally happy about taking a commanding lead back to his cozy home park, but he is an uneasy frontrunner in the best-of-seven series.

"We'd had some outstanding pitching, sure," said Williams.

"But, heck, they've hit some balls real hard and we've had to come up with good fielding plays to stop the Reds."

Standing-room-only crowds for the first two games-including a Riverfront Stadium record 53,224 Sunday-saw the kind of baseball Williams was talking about.

They didn't have too much to cheer about, though, because the A's took an early lead on Hunter's run-scoring single in the second inning and Joe Rudi's bases-empty home run in the third off Cincinnati starter Ross Grimsley.

Rudi clutched the baseball at the tip of his glove, supported himself and fired a bulled back into the infield. The relay almost nailed Perez, who strayed far off first.

It was plainly the play of the game, although the A's had another gem for the Oakland fans to savor when Mike Hegan, defensiva replacement at first base, knocked down Cesar Geronimo's line drive for the second out of the inning.

Williams said that Rudi's was the best catch he'd ever seen in a World Series game, giving it a better rating than Willie Mays' much-publicized catch of

49ers Are Running Out Of Tomorrows

Don't look now but the 49ers are running out of chances.

With the real testy part of their season still to come, the 49ers have already lost three games. When you lose to teams like the Buffalo Bills and New York Giants, what are you going to do when it comes time for Green Bay, Dallas and Minnesota, not to mention Los Angeles and Atlanta, teams higher than the Niners in the Western Division standings.

Of late the 49ers are playing very uninspired football. Yesterday in the soggy gloom of Candlestick Park, San Francisco was beaten by a supposedly inferior team. New York Giants have been playing good football but the personnel on the team is not supposed to be the caliber of the 49ers. That's why the bookies picked S.F. to win instead of losing, as they did yesterday, 23-17.

THE 49ERS' SYSTEM of computerized football seems to lack the spark of desire. It must be there, but it is apparently hiding somewhere. Players on the team consistently talk down the emotion thing but when a player can't get himself "up" he'll be beaten by an inferior player every time.

Or maybe the 49ers aren't really as good as most fans believe. I tend to think it's just that the players can't get themselves "up" and head coach Dick Nolan is not the "win one for the Gipper" type.

The fact is apparent: You don't win games in the National Football League on your record of the last two seasons. It is a "now" thing and the 49ers just can't get with it.

Frank Nunley, middle linebacker and defensive captain for the 49ers, sat there and tried to ponder the defeat.

"IT'S DISCOURAGING to get beat by a team that I don't think is as good as we are," he said. "I really don't have any explanation. I'm certainly not going to give up. I've seen sicker cats get well."

Nolan, at his customary position at the end of the coaches' dressing room, sat there and tried to answer all the questions from the writers. He appeared calm and unbent but you knew his stomach was twisting.

"You can't let a team hold the ball as long as we let them," he said about the ability of New York to sustain drives, especially the first half when the Giants made first down on six of eight third down plays. "We're still in the race. It just puts our back to the wall."

Indeed.

Gene Washington, wide receiver who caught six passes for 67 yards and two touchdowns, wasn't involved in the last gasp play by the 49ers when Steve Spurrier lofted a long, high pass into the end zone in the general direction of tight end Ted Kwalick. It was a play reminiscent of the old "Alley Oop" that R. C. Owens made famous a few years back. Kwalick was the one designated to get under the ball since he's taller and stronger than Washington.

HE NEVER got near the ball and it was intercepted by defensive back Pete Athas just before the final gun.

On the sidelines at the time was John Brodie, lying on a stretcher with a badly sprained ankle. He had been knocked from the game three plays earlier on a crunching tackle by defensive end Jack Gregory.

Things look pretty bad for San Francisco. Brodie is expected to be out of the lineup for one to three weeks. Starting offensive right tackle Cas Banaszek reinjured his groin and his backup man, John Watson suffered a concussion and was sent to St. Mary's Hospital by ambulance. Both are listed as "doubtful" for next week so that means someone will have to be found to play that position.

Magers' Scoring Run Lifts Novato Over Tough Drake

By TOM THOMPSON

A 28-yard touchdown run by Mark Magers enabled Novato High School to defeat surprisingly tough Drake High, 7-0, in a Marin County Athletic League football game Saturday at Drake High.

The Hornets averted a major upset in the fourth quarter when Magers raced 28 yards through a gaping hole in the Drake line to score the only touchdown. Novato leads the MCAL race at 2-0.

A cold, wet crowd of about 500 watched in amazement as the Drake defense, led by Dan Locati, Steve Wilgenbush and George Pederson, held the Hornets in one key situation after another. Novato ran the ball adequately on the muddy field, rushing for 103 net yards. However, the heavily-favored visitors could not put the winning combination together until the fourth quarter.

If the Drake defense was surprising, the Novato defense was superb, holding the highly-touted Pirate offense to a total 46 yards (including -34 yards rushing). Drake quarterback Tom MacAusland, who led the league in total yardage before the game, passed for only 78 yards.

Novato coach Al Scott lauded his defense: "They really came through for us. The defense continually put us in good field position, but we just kept hurting ourselves."

However, Scott also praised Drake. "Drake came to play football. They really got to us in the key situations."

LAMONICA BOMBS HELP

Midfield Goal-Line Stand Keys Raiders' 28-16 Win

OAKLAND (UPI) — Oakland's Raiders are in first place in the American Football Conference West today because they used a "goal-line stand" on the 40-yard line and got some long, late bombs from quarterback Daryle Lamonica.

Stymied for nearly three quarters by a young but tenacious Buffalo defense, the Raiders exploded on a 55-yard Lamonica to Raymond Chester touchdown pass in fading minutes of the third period Sunday and rode a 21-point fourth quarter to a 28-16 win.

That put Oakland all alone atop the AFC West with a 3-1-1 record while Kansas City dropped to second with a 3-2 mark. Buffalo is 2-3 in the AFC East.

"We thought Chester could run by the free safety (Alvin Wyatt) and he did," said Raiders coach John Madden, referring to the 55-yard TD reception that closed a 13-0 halftime lead of the Bills to 13-7 with 4:09 remaining in the third period.

"We practiced that play all week. We figured whenever they doubled up on Freddy (Biletnikoff), then Chester would be open on a man-to-man situation."

After John Leypoldt booted a 23-yard field goal to give Buffalo a 16-7 bulge at the start of the final period, Lamonica marched the Raiders 80 yards in only six plays with the aid of a 42-yard sideline completion to Charlie Smith and a 24-yarder to Chester that put the ball on the one from where Marv Hubbard scored.

Then Buffalo moved from its 20 to its 40 behind the running of O.J. Simpson. However, on third and one, the Raiders stacked up Simpson for a yard loss.

"That was our goalline defense," said Madden. "We stacked the line and Horace Jones submarined Simpson. We thought they'd give it to O.J. because he had been running so well."

Buffalo was forced to punt and Oakland began its winning touchdown drive on the 26. A holding penalty put the Raiders back to their 13 before a 33-yard pass interference call against Bills cornerback Robert James gave Oakland new life on its 46.

"That interference call turned it around for them," said Bills' coach Lou Saban. "I was standing nearby and it looked like James was going for the ball."

Lamonica then marched the Raiders to a 21-16 lead by alternating the running of Pete Banaszak, Hubbard and Smith with passes of 12 and 18 yards to rookie Mike Siani. Clarence Davis capped the drive by dashing over from the seven with 2:57 remaining.

"We just kept coming back," said Lamonica in reference to the 13-0 halftime lead enjoyed by the underdog Bills. "But I thought we could execute better in the second half if our line gave me more time, and they did."

Until he hit Chester with the bomb, Lamonica had been checked by a tough Buffalo defense that limited him to only 4 of 18 completions for 36 yards. Lamonica finished with 10 of 26 for 181 yards. Two of his passes were intercepted.

"I don't know what else we can do to win a game," moaned Simpson, the San Francisco native who topped game rushers with 144 yards in 28 carries.

ON ROAD

Seals Get First Win; Flyers Fall

OAKLAND (UPI)—The California Golden Seals, fresh from winning their first National Hockey League game of the season, have two days off to dream of more glory as they prepare for the tough Chicago Black Hawks.

The Seals, playing the first 48 minutes and 24 seconds without a penalty, downed the host Philadelphia Flyers 4-1 Sunday night.

It was the first setback at home for the Flyers, who now are 1-2-1 in the Western Division.

Marv Edwards guarded the net for the Golden Seals in place of Giles Meloche, who had worked the first three games. The Seals dropped all three contests, including Saturday night's 5-2 loss to the Pittsburgh Penguins.

The Black Hawks were downed Sunday night by the St. Louis Blues 3-1 for their first defeat after four wins.

The Flyers' Bill Flett scored his third goal of the season in stabbing the puck home from the crease on a pass from Bobby Clarke to give Philadel-

Giants' Webster Is One Up On 49ers

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Alex Webster is one up on his old pal, Dick Nolan.

The two young coaches faced each other for the first time Sunday at wet and rainy Candlestick Park and Webster and his New York Giants, thanks to some fine running by young Ron Johnson and Charlie Evans, came out ahead of Nolan and his young San Francisco 49ers 23-17.

The Giants, too, turned out to be better players under adverse conditions than the 49ers, synthetic field and all, as Johnson and Evans packed the ball 40 times between them for 140 yards. They also scored a touchdown each and Pete Gogolak added three field goals.

Ken Willard's running helped John Brodie set up his passing but the 49ers didn't have the ball often enough — especially in the first quarter — as the Giants played ball control on offense and double-teamed receiver Gene Washington.

Washington still scored both San Francisco's touchdowns.

Brodie not only wound up on the short end again but also may be lost to the 49ers for a game or two. After Evans York its go-ahead points, Brodie started the 49ers on a comeback and had them at the New York 35 with 38 seconds remaining when 6-foot-5, 250-pound defensive end Jack Gregory sacked him.

Bruce Gossett booted a 21-yard field goal the only time the 49ers had the ball in the opening quarter to give San Francisco a 3-0 lead but a pair of field goals by Gogolak and Johnson's TD gave the Giants a 13-10 edge at the half.

There was no scoring in the third quarter. But early in the fourth, the 49ers went 87 yards in 14 plays on Washington's second TD for a 17-13 lead. Gogolak then booted his third field goal to put the Giants within a point and New York played back, waiting for a break.

Chargers' Thomas Trade Report; Weiskopf Wins

Combined AP & UPI

HOUSTON — Duane Thomas could be a Houston Oiler by the end of the week, columnist Hal Lundgren of the Houston Chronicle said today.

Owner K. S. Adams, general manager John Breen and coach Bill Peterson of the Oilers confirmed they are interested in Thomas, Lundgren said. Adams said, however, that talk of the Oilers' acquiring Thomas from San Diego is premature.

Thomas, the controversial Dallas Cowboys running back who was traded to San Diego last summer, has not played for the Chargers this season. He and Chargers' coach Harland Svare have not reached an agreement.

Golf

VIRGINIA WATER, England — Tom Weiskopf won the Piccadilly World Match Play Championship by defeating Lee Trevino, 4 and 3, in the All-American final.

BUENOS AIRES — The U.S. team of Jane Bastanchury Booth, Laura Baugh and Mary Budke posted a final round 145 and retained the Women's World Amateur Team Championship with a 72-hole total of 583 as Mrs. Booth took unofficial individual honors with a 291.

NASHVILLE, Tenn. — Bob Goalby, the 1968 Masters champ, shot a four-under-par 68 Sunday to win the professional title in the annual Music City Pro-Celebrity golf tournament with a 36-hole total of 135.

Goalby's two-day total around the new Crockett Springs National Golf Course was nine-under par, three shots better than Bobby Greenwood of Cookeville, Tenn.

WHITE PLAINS, N.Y. — Jim Jamieson fired a one-under-par 69 Sunday to win the Parliament P Classic, a one-round benefit golf tournament at the Fenway Golf Club.

Tennis

BUCHAREST — The United States retained the Davis Cup by defeating Romania 3-2 as Stan Smith beat Ion Tiriac 4-6, 6-2, 6-4, 2-6, 6-0 in the decisive singles after which Ilie Nastase downed Tom Gorman 6-1, 6-2, 5-7, 10-8.

BOCA RATON, Fla. — Chris Evert of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., who upset top-seeded Billie Jean King in the semifinals, won the $100,000 Virginia Slims Championship by defeating Australia's Kerry Melville 7-5, 6-4 in the final.

VANCOUVER, B.C. — Jeff Borowiak, Berkeley, Calif., beat Dick Stockton, Garden City, N.Y., 4-6, 7-6, 6-3 in the first round of Vancouver's $50,000 international tournament.

left in the game, the coaches directed punter Rick Russell to kneel in the end zone. The intentional safety gave Terra Linda a 12-6 lead, but the ensuing free kick would (theoretically) back the Trojans up and give Redwood field position.

Russell, who averaged a fine 37 yards from scrimmage on eight punts, got off a poor boot that went only 10 yards from the spot of the kick. Spain, a guard, fulfilled every lineman's dream by rambling in for the score.

"We figured they (Redwood) would attack our middle, so we put in a special defense the morning of the game," said Lucas. It involved removing a linebacker, inserting lineman Steve Miles, and bunching up the middle. "Miles did a fine job," Lucas added.

"The defense held up very well under heavy work," said Lucas. Redwood ran 42 plays in the first half to Terra Linda's 16, but the untiring defenders were even tougher after intermission than they were before.

Terra Linda did not make a first down by rushing or passing, and only two by penalty, until the meaningless final drive of the game.

a ball hit by Vic Wertz in the 1954 classic.

The game was still in doubt though, because the Reds had a runner on second base after Hegan's diving stop of Geronimo's knee-high drive to his right.

Hal McRae hit the fourth straight shot off Hunter, a single that drove home Perez with the Cincinnati run.It brought the whooping fans to their feet and also stirred Williams from the dugout. He wanted Rollie Fingers to pitch to pinch-hitter Julian Javier.

Oakland's fine reliever retired Javier on a harmless foul ball to Hegan. The reserve first baseman clutched the ball and hugged it to his chest while the A's rallied around Fingers and pumped hands. The scene was similar on Saturday when the American League champions beat the favored National Leaguers with the same type of baseball.

Tenace, who only hit five home runs all season, hit two and drove in three runs in the opener. His first homer gave the visitors a 2-0 lead. Tenace then belted a line-hugging drive into the left field seats to break a 2-2 tie.

COLTS FIRE HEAD COACH McCAFFERTY

McCafferty, who became head coach of the Colts in 1970 after Don Shula left to take over the coaching reins of the Miami Dolphins, had a record of 21-6-1 for his two complete seasons as head coach for the best percentage among active coaches in the American Conference of the National Football League.

However, the Colts, crippled this year by injuries to such star performers as defensive end Bubba Smith and Running back Norm Bulaich, sport A 1-4 record this season following Sunday's 21-0 loss to the Dallas Cowboys.

AFTER TWO KEY PLAYS

A's Rudi, Williams Joy After Big Plays Vs. Reds

CINCINNATI (UPI)—When you have just slugged a home run for the winning run in a World Series game and saved the game with a fantastic catch, which do you figure gave you the biggest charge?

"I just don't know," said Oakland A's outfielder Joe Rudi, who had just done both of those things in the A's' 2-1 second-game victory over the Cincinnati Reds that put Oakland in the driver's seat in the World Series, two games to none.

"I'll take 'em both," he concluded with a grin.

Rudi hammered his home run in the third inning off Cincinnati starter and loser Ross Grimsley, a towering fly ball that dropped into the seats in the lower deck of Riverfront Stadium some 350 feet from home plate and made the score 2-0 in favor of the Reds.

That's the way the score stood until the ninth inning when, with a runner on base, Denis Menke of the Reds slammed a drive to left that had "homer" written all over it, or at the very least, "double."

But Rudi, racing for the all at what he called "a slight angle" leaped and made the catch backhanded before twisting around and falling to the ground.

A lot of Cincinnati fans thought maybe the moustachioed left fielder trapped the ball against the wall instead of catching it cleanly, but Rudi insisted that "it never touched the wall." And American League umpire Bill Haller, out in left field, must have agreed because he signalled the out.

A's manager Dick Williams was asked to compare Rudi's catches with the most famous in Series history—those by Al Gionfriddo of the Brooklyn Dodgers, Willie Mays of the New York Giants, Sandy Amoros of the Dodgers, and Ron Swoboda of the New York Mets, but he balked.

"As far as I'm concerned," Williams said, "this was the greatest because it was made for me."

Williams confessed that when he came to Cincinnati for the first two games of the Series, he would have settled for a split to go home to Oakland for the third game on Tuesday all tied up.

"But not after the first game," he said. "Then we weren't willing to settle for a split."

Williams was asked about some of the managerial moves he made during the game—moves that might have come into question if the Reds' ninth inning rally hadn't fallen a run short." "I know I've been accused of overmanaging," Williams said. "Well, I've overmanaged two games in a row now."

Hegan, called by Williams "the best lefthanded fielding first baseman in baseball, and that includes Mr. (Wes) Parker," (of the Dodgers) knocked down a possible extra base hit off the bat of Cesar Geronimo which helped snuff out the Reds' rally.

Asked why he had taken hard-hitting first baseman Mike Epstein out for a pinchrunner as early as the sixth inning and then replaced him with Hegan, Williams said, "I think you saw in the ninthinning why he (Epstein) came out."

Again, Williams had Vida Blue in the Athletic bullpen, although he said after Saturday's first game the hard-throwing southpaw would be his starting pitcher in the fourth game and would not be called on in relief.

"My staff and I had a meeting and took stock of things," Williams said. "We felt we might be a little better with Vida coming out of the bullpen. He (Blue) said he was ready, willing and anxious."

Jim "Catfish" Hunter, Oakland's starting and winning pitcher, went 8 2-3 innings, giving way, reluctantly, to relief ace Rollie Fingers.

"Yes, I asked not come out," Hunter said after the game. "I wanted to go all the way."

Sparky Anderson believes the World Series will go seven games, because "I don't think we can beat them four straight."

"If it goes on like this much longer, it will be over a lot sooner than we thought," he mused.

"We're not keyed up," said centerfielder Bobby Tolan, who went hitless Sunday in four at-bats.

Grid Tars Beaten By Solano

"This is one of the worst, if not the worst, disappointments I've had in the 12 years I've been at the college," said a disconsolate head coach Dick Read after his College of Marin football team was beaten Saturday night in Suisun City by Solano College, 28-6.

"Here we are, playing a team that is no better than we are (1-3 entering the game), and we didn't block, we didn't tackle, we fumbled at crucial times, we gave up a safety...

"We're going to have to regroup this week,or we're going to get beaten in the fifties and sixties by the teams in this league."

The game was the Camino Norte Conference opener for the Tars, and its outcome was not long in doubt, as Solano struck for two touchdowns in the first quarter and built up a 19-0 halftime lead.

Marin's only score came in the third period, when quarterback Kevin Donohoe connected on a 35-yard touchdown pass to Bob Daniele, but Solano came back with a touchdown and safety in the fourth quarter.

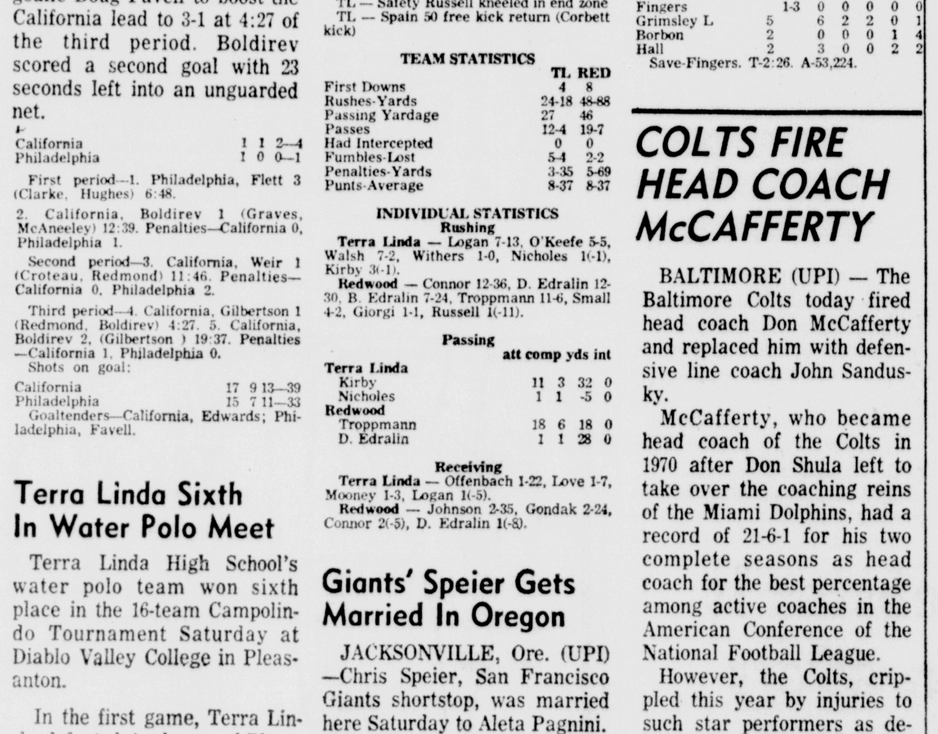

"We had six turnovers," grumbled Reed. "They had six too, but we gave 'em right back."

PRO FOOTBALL

Morrall Leads Dolphin Attack

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Supersub is alive and living in Miami.

He's Earl Morrall and for the second time in his career, he's being asked to take over a super bowl contender. He was fairly successful the first time and has started off quite well the second.

The first time was in 1968, when he was traded by the New York Giants to the Baltimore Colts for an obscure tight end named Butch Wilson. Morrall took over when John Unitas was injured and led the Colts to the National Football League title (there were two leagues then), earning the most valuable player award in the process. Only a stunning upset loss to the New York Jets marred that season for Morrall.

Now, at age 38, Morrall is being asked for an encore. Acquired by Miami coach Don Shula, his coach at Baltimore in 1968, as insurance before the season, Morrall was called on in the first period Sunday when Miami quarterback Bob Griese was carried from the field on a stretcher with a broken right leg and responded with a pair of touchdown passes to lead the Dolphins to a 24-10 victory over the San Diego Chargers.

In other NFL games, Cincinnati stunned Kansas City 23-16, the Jets trounced New England 41-13, Minnesota Edged Denver 23-20, Chicago upset Cleveland 17-0, the Giants toppled San Francisco 23-17, Pittsburgh whipped Houston 24-7, Dallas downed Baltimore 21-0, Washington trampled St. Louis 33-3, Oakland overcame Buffalo 28-16 and Los Angeles blasted Philadelphia 34-3. Green Bay is at Detroit tonight.

Rookie Tommy Casanova's 33-yard interception return set up a seven-yard TD pass from Ken Anderson to speedy Thomas that gave the Bengals their upset of Kansas City. Casanova grabbed a pass off the hands of the Chiefs' Dennis Homan on the Cincinnate 40 and returned it to the Chiefs' 27. Four plays later, Anderson passed for the score and Horst Muhlmann added a pair of field goals in the last 10 minutes to insure the victory, Cincinnati's fourth in five games.

"It was a great victory for us over a great team," Paul Brown, the Cincinnati coach said. "We've been rinky-dinks for five years but they knew we were here today. Our guys don't seem to realize they shouldn't beat this team."

Emerson Boozer and John Riggins, both playing with injured legs, combined for 318 yards and four touchdowns and Joe Namath threw for another score as the Jets rolled over New England. Boozer rushed for 150 yards and scored on runs of 37, 23 and eight yards and Riggins bulled for 168 yards, including a six-yard TD run. Namath had a 27-yard TD pass to Richard Caster.

Fran Tarkenton's 31-yard TD pass to Gene Washington with 17 seconds left boosted the Vikings over Denver. The score came 36 seconds after Floyd Little scored his third TD of the game to give the Broncos the lead.

Quarterback Bobby Douglass ran 57 yards for one score and passed 41 yards to Earl Thomas for another to lead the Bears over Cleveland and their first victory. Chicago's defense held Cleveland to only 38 yards rushing.

Terry Bradshaw passed 11 yards to Frank Lewis for one TD and ran eight yards for another in Pittsburgh's triumph over the Oilers. Rookie Franco Harris rushed for 115 yards and one TD for the Steelers.

Bob Berry threw three TD passes to rally the Falcons over winless New Orleans and Calvin Hill plunged for two TDs and Craig Morton threw 44 yards to Ron Sellers for another as Dallas beat Baltimore. Charlie Harraway's two TDs and four field goals by Curt Knight helped Washington clobber the Cardinals. Dallas and Washington meet Sunday for the NFC East lead.

Redwood Harriers Victorious

Redwood High School won the varsity and sophomore categories Saturday in the California State University, Sacramento, invitational cross-country meet.

Pete Sweeney finished third, Mike Killeen fourth, Nev Overend sixth, Don Elsiner 20th and Dave Brainerd 21st as the varsity scored 54 points, 15 ahead of second-place Del Campo of Sacramento.

Redwood finished second in the freshman meet with 61 points to 19 for Mitchell Junior High of Sacramento.

Marin Bantams Win As Mitchell Nets 3

Shaun Mitchell netted a hat trick yesterday afternoon as the Marin Amateur Hockey Club bantams defeated Belmont, 7-4, in a Northern California Hockey Association game at Raydine's Ice Rink in Corte Madera.

In other action, the mites defeated San Francisco, 9-1; the pee wees thumped Belmont, 9-3; the squirts lost to San Francisco, 3-2; and the midgets lost to Berkeley, 17-0.

A's Come Home: Throng Of 10,000

OAKLAND (UPI)—The Oakland A's came home Sunday night to the cheers of 10,000 fans—a mob considerably larger than crowds that turned out for many of the club's games this season.

"Everybody loves a winner," said pitcher Jim "Catfish" Hunter as he surveyed the throng that greeted the team at the Oakland International Airport.

"I can't believe it," Hunter said. "This is marvelous. We're going to win the series with this kind of a crowd."

Hunter held Cincinnati to four hits in eight innings Sunday in the A's 2-1 win at Cincinnati, giving Oakland a 2-0 lead in the World Series.

The man the fans wanted most to see, however, was Joe Rudi, who hit a homer in the third and made a sensational ninth-inning catch. The infielder leaped up a 12-foot wall and barely caught the ball in the webbing of his glove.

Police whisked Rudi away after he spoke to the crowd.

Gene Tenace, who hit two homers to win the first game, told the ecstatic fans: "We have no doubts we're going to beat the Reds in the next two games and end it right here in Oakland."

Many of the waving, shouting fans carried placards lauding the Athletics. One read "Vida for Pres," referring to Oakland hurler Vida Blue.

Tomales Tramples St. Vincent

Playing on a rain-muddied field, Tomales High School fumbled the ball six times Saturday night but overcame these mistakes to pin a 20-0 defeat onto inter-county rival St. Vincent High of Petaluma in a North Central League II football game in Petaluma.

In other weekend Southern Sonoma football action, Rancho Cotate of Rohnert Park extended its winning streak to 14 games and gained sole possession of first place in the Sonoma County League with a 22-0 victory over Piner in Santa Rosa.

The Tomales Braves didn't seem to mind the mud too much as they churned out 193 yards on the ground. Manuel Mattos did most of the damage with 112 yards, including a 49-yard touchdown sprint.

Cleveland Falls To Lakers, 95-83

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

Beaten by the Boston Celtics on Friday and by the New York knicks on Saturday, they managed a 95-83 victory over Cleveland Sunday in their third road game in as many nights.

Lou Hudson and Pete Maravich combined for 60 points as the Hawks handed the Knicks their first defeat of the season in Atlanta's new sports facility, the Omni.

Neal Walk scored 27 points and grabbed 21 rebounds to lead the Suns over the Bullets.

The Conquistadors beat Dallas in the ABA in the last nine seconds when Gene Moore stole Colis Jones' inbound pass at midcourt and drove in for a layup. Jerry Chambers led San Diego with 24 points. Steve Jones was high for Dallas with 25.

In the NBA Saturday night, it was New York over Los Angeles 125-100, Houston over Buffalo 121-113, Kansas City-Omaha over Detroit 113-101, Boston over Chicago 96-88, Phoenix over Portland 124-120 and Milwaukee over Golden State 81-77.

In the ABA, it was Carolina over the New York Nets 126-78, Kentucky over Virginia 130-116, San Diego over Memphis 135-118, Denver over Indiana 96-90 and Utah over Dallas 106-90.

Warrior Opener Ruined

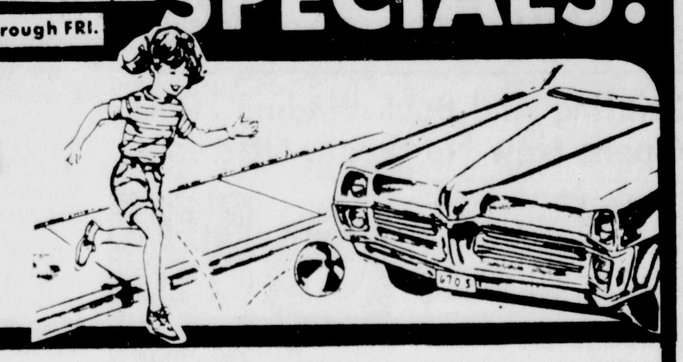

OAKLAND (AP) — The Golden State Warriors welcomed high-priced star Rick Barry back to town, but they were glad to see Milwaukee leave after the Bucks ruined their season opener.

Milwaukee overcame a 10-point deficit early in the third quarter, with fine performances from Kareem Abdul-Jabbar and Lucius Allen to beat the Warriors 86-77 in a National Basketball Association game at the Coliseum arena.

Barry, back in a Warriors uniform after five years playing in the American Basketball Association, scored 18 points, but hit only seven of 20 field goal attempts.

Milwaukee's comeback climaxed in the third quarter, when during one five-minute stretch they held the Warriors scoreless while rolling up 10 straight points to tie it 47-47. Abdul-Jabar scored 14 of his 27 points in the second half, and Allen got eight of his 10 after the intermission.

Printing And Book-Binding Firm Opens New Northgate Offices

Ram Graphics Inc., a printing and book-binding firm operating in Marin for four years, opened new offices today at 63 Paul Drive in Northgate Industrial Park.

Owner Harry H. Mott opened Ram Graphics on Reed Boulevard in Strawberry in 1968, and in 1970 moved it to Strawberry Town and Country Village, where it was called Ram Insta-Print. Ram Insta-Print will continue to operate at Strawberry

Ram Graphics Inc. will handle any type of printing except the color process. Color process equipment will be installed next year, said Mott. He has offset presses that can handle copy as large as 24 by 36 inches. He also has letter presses, die cutting presses, and a complete bindery for books and pamphlets.

Ram Graphics does typesetting in English and in foreign languages; has automatic equipment that collates, stitches and folds in one operation, and complete mailing facilities with automatic addressing equipment and inserters.

Mott also operates Tel-Sec at 109 Second Street in Sausalito. It is a stock surety and registry company, which provides various other services. It prints and issues new stock for any corporation listed with the Security Exchange Commission, and has Western Union service.

HSIN HSIN Restaurant at 1559 Fourth Street in San Rafael has been renamed the Forbidden City restaurant by new owners who took over this month.

Kuang-yen Lee and Su Hsieh, both of San Francisco, bought the Hsin Hsin from William Duann of San Francisco, who operated it for the past four years.

New owners plan to redecorate the interior, improve appearance, and add more dishes to the menu. "We want to make it more beautiful and more comfortable and will have a wider variety of food," said Lee. The restaurant sign has not been changed as yet, but the new owners are already in business. The official grand opening is set for sometime around Christmas.

Wilson Gormly

Lee worked for three and one-half years at North China Restaurant in San Francisco while his partner, Hsieh was with the Yangtze Restaurant in Berkeley for two years.

Forbidden City restaurant is the only one in Marin serving Mandarin food, said Lee. The restaurant has a seating capacity of about 50, and also provides food to take out.

The cook is Henry K. Lee, who worked for Hsin Hsin for four years.

INSURANCE WOMEN of Marin will meet tomorrow night at Straw Hat Pizza Palace in Novato to hear a talk on the Occupational Safety and Health Act.

Speaker will be N. W. MacDonald of Loma Verde, manager of the safety engineering department of Industrial Indemnity Corp., San Francisco. Mavis Lundmark of Ray Schulz Insurance, publicity chairman for the Insurance Women, said the talk is scheduled for 7 p.m., preceded by dinner at 6 p.m. A membership business meeting will folow the talk.

WRONG IDENTIFICATION — In this column of Oct. 12, identifications were transposed for Emelie L. Wilson of Marinwood and William M. Gormly of Kentfield. Their pictures are published again today with the correct names.

Mrs. Wilson is Marin and San Francisco manager for the F. E. Compton Encyclopedia Co. Gormly was promoted to loan officer in Wells Fargo Bank's Market-Montgomery office in San Francisco.

BANK PHARMACY at 83 Broadway in Fairfax changed hands this week, but the new owner is an old hand in the business.

Pharmacist Norman I. Ginsberg of San Anselmo took over from Harold E. Geary of San Rafael, who owned Bank Parmacy for about 18 years.

Ginsberg has been with Bank Pharmacy for the past seven and one-half years and was with Larkspur Pharmacy for five years before that. Ginsberg said there will be no change in the name of the pharmacy or the services offered.

ACTOR BOB CUMMINGS of Belvedere, who heads Bob Cummings Inc. of San Rafael, will participate in a big air show in Phoenix, Ariz., on Oct. 28. Cummings is scheduled to fly a pre-World War II Stearman PT (primary trainer) 17 biplane as part of the antique aircraft fly-in.

Cummings Inc. distributes vitamins and other nutritional supplements.

Lumber Retailer Shares Get Axed

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. Earlier this year, after reading several favorable articles on Wickes Corp. (NYSE), I bought 50 shares at $53. What has happened to this stock? — E.W.

A. Aside from softness in the building group as a whole, Wickes has suffered from problems of its own. In particular, the minimal increase in fiscal first half earnings was a blow to institutional investors expecting substantial year-to-year improvement.

Sales rose 35 per cent for the six months through July, but an 18 per cent increase in shares outstanding reduced the 21 per cent gain in net income to 3 per cent on a per share basis. This news was followed by an announcement that production of modular housing units would be discontinued.

This division had been operating at a loss and the shutdown would result in some write-offs. Thus earnings estimates for this retailer of building supplies have been modified by industry experts.

Price action will probably be uninspired in the coming months, although longer term performance is expected to be above average.

Q. On the advice of a broker I bought National General warrants at $8 in July 1971. This was to be start of a portfolio for my retirement in 1981. Should I continue to hold? — V.B.

Price action in the common and therefore the warrants is apt to be restricted over the near term. Shareholder disapproval of the proposed takeover of National by Pennsylvania Life largely dissipated earlier gains in National's shares.

Furthermore, the NYSE is investigating trading in these shares prior to the proposed merger announcement. The possibility of a proxy fight — three top officers resigned in July —is also apt to have a depressant effect on share price. Warrants, now trading at a 63 per cent premium, are highly speculative for a person in your situation. Sell.

Prices Dip To 3-Month Low Level

NEW YORK (UPI)—Prices on the New York Stock Exchange dipped to their lowest level in almost three months today as investors remained wary of rising interest rates.

Wall Street continued to reflect investor concern over economic conditions next year. The absence of news from Washington concerning Vietnam peace negotiations also worked against the market.

International Business Machines continued the decline precipitated last week by an antitrust suit brought by Telex. The computer giant was hit by a government statement today indicating the Justice Department would attempt to break up the firm if it is successful in its antitrust suit filed in 1969. Trading was halted during the day because of an influx of orders.

ISN'T GOOD SERVICE WONDERFUL?
Our service is "late" but nice. Marin commuters have found it very convenient that our service department is now open till 7 pm. Monday thru Friday. In most cases we can give your VW a maintenance or tune-up by 7 pm if you come in by 5 pm. Call our private service line 388-5230 and give us a vote for "late" service.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Needle Tracks Will Give Away The Drug Addict Every Time

M. C. writes: "Several days ago we heard a lecture on drug addiction at a high school assembly. The doctors showed pictures of the arms of several addicts, and they were horrible. Do they all get scars like this? Can't these drugs be taken in tablet form?"

Narcotics are not very potent when taken by mouth. They are usually injected into the vein (mainlining), because the drugs have more "kick" than when injected into the muscle or skin (skin popping). Addicts use amazing ingenuity at giving themselves injections, even without the use of a tourniquet. Hard-core heroin addicts may receive 1,000 injections a year. However, the vein collapses, after five or six shots a day.

But since it is necessary to pierce the skin for every shot, in time, scarring is noted at the needle sites. Soon the scars become permanent evidence that the individual was or is a user. All addicts have these scars (needle tracks) that are distributed along the center or sides of the veins, especially on the upper extremities from the elbows down. Scars also are noted on the hips, shoulders, and legs.

REPEATED INJECTIONS are bound to be traumatic, especially when the addict is lax about cleanliness or sterility. The skin over the veins not only is scarred, but deeply pigmented. Apparently this stems from inflammation, because it is rarely seen in addicts who use disposable needles that do not need sterilization. In some instances, the pigment develops only after years of addiction. The discoloration may also fade in time.

Repeated injections into the vein also lead to irritation and bruising of the venous wall with clot formation. Ultimately, this destroys the vein. Skin abscesses develop because fewer than one in 50 addicts cleans the hypodermic and many use unboiled tap water to dissolve the heroin or methadone.

SKIN ULCERS may ensue when the addict misses a vein and the solution gets under the skin. This is true especially when sedatives are injected. Hepatitis, malaria, and blood poisoning with infections involving the heart and lungs are the most severe complications.

BUGS IN THE EAR

L. G. writes: Is it possible for a living organism to get inside the ear? I have a feeling of something crawling in there.

REPLY

Insects get into the ears occasionally, but stir up so much trouble the victim seeks medical care promptly. Fungi also grow in the outer canal. There is a better possibility that, in your case, the irritation stems from dryness of the ear canal. A physician could examine the ear in about two minutes, so why wonder and worry?

CANDY EATING

N. G. writes: Can eating excessive amount of candy cause worms or diabetes?

REPLY

No. Large quantities of candy will aggravate an existing diabetes, but the worms will have a field day.

ACNE AND SOFT DRINKS

M. D. writes: Is pop considered bad for the skin of a teenaged boy with acne?

REPLY

EXPLORING THE ABDOMEN

A reader writes: What is an exploratory laparotomy?

REPLY

In this procedure, the abdominal wall is cut open for the purpose of exploring the stomach, liver, gallbladder, intestines, pancreas, kidneys, and pelvic organs. It is considered diagnostic, but if the need for additional surgery is obvious, the operation can be done then and there.

CHRONIC ARTHRITIS

C.R. writes: Can rheumatic fever lead to chronic arthritis?

REPLY

Yes, but it would be unusual. Should it occur, the physician is likely to question the original diagnosis of rheumatic fever.

SHINGLES: VIRAL INFECTION

A reader writes: I always thought shingles was brought on by some other illness. Recently someone told me that it is due to a germ similar to that which causes chickenpox. Please comment.

REPLY

Shingles (herpes zoster) is caused by a virus that attacks the nerve endings in the skin. The causative microorganism is related to that which is responsible for chickenpox. Furthermore, the lesions that develop consist of poxlike blisters. Now and then older people develop shingles when their resistance is low or they are exposed to a grandchild with chickenpox.

OVARIAN CYSTS

N. R. writes: Are ovarian cysts due to infection?

REPLY

Many cysts are of endocrine origin and are associated with ovulation.

Mechanics Finally Lower Drawbridge

RIO VISTA (UPI)—A drawbridge which was stuck up in the air for 14 hours was open for land traffic today but closed to ships using the deep-water channel from Sacramento to the San Francisco Bay area.

The span finally was lowered Sunday after more than a thousand motorists, stalled in miles of traffic, were forced to detour the Highway 12 bridge here by taking ferries or alternate routes.

When the bridge was about 35 feet above road level, something snapped in the mechanism which raises the 300-foot middle section of the bridge. Officials said a dozen large bolts were sheared off in the gear box of the main drive shaft.

It took about 14 hours for mechanics to lower the span. Then they discovered the bridge wouldn't go back up again.

The bridge was reopened for land vehicles but it will be closed to large water vessels until the mechanism is fixed, which may not be until Wednesday or later.

Leading Causes Of Death In China

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Ten Chinese doctors touring the United States say that cancer and heart and blood diseases are the leading causes of death in mainland China.

The physicians also said through interpreters Sunday that a primary problem for China is delivering health services to rural areas.

Does More Than Help Shrink Swelling Of Hemorrhoidal Tissues Due To Infection

Also Gives Prompt, Temporary Relief in Many Cases from Pain, Itching in Such Tissues.

Doctors have found a remarkably successful medication that actually helps shrink swelling of hemorrhoidal tissues when infected and inflamed. And it does more. In many cases it gives relief for hours from pain and itching in these tissues. Tests by doctors proved this true in many cases.

The medication used was Preparation H. And no prescription is needed for Preparation H®. Ointment or suppositories.

Hungry Rat Halts Train

The Hikari, belonging to the Japan National Railways and running at an average speed of more than 125 miles per hour, stopped operating briefly Sunday night because of a short circuit.

Railway officials said a rat sneaked into the signal control room and chewed up the wiring.

Transportation Chief Will Present Talk

Jerome M. Kuykendall, transportation developer for the Golden Gate Bridge District will speak to the Almonte Improvement Club at 8 p.m. Wednesday.

Kuykendall will discuss current and future transit plans as well as commuter parking at the Almonte Hall, Lark Lane and Wisteria Way.

Candidate Peevey Sets Appearances

Michael R. Peevey, candidate for Marin County supervisor from the fourth district, will speak at two coffees, three organization meetings and a barbecue this week.

At 7 p.m. today, he will address the Marin County Motorcycle Association at the Church in Ignacio. He will speak to the Marin County Veterinary Medical Association at 12:30 p.m. tomorrow in Sabella's Restaurant, Mill Valley.

Peevey will speak to the Marin County Chapter of the National Organization for Women at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday in the faculty lounge at Redwood High School.

Coffees are planned for 8 p.m. Wednesday at the San Rafael home of Ardys A. Kirsch, 111 Miramar Avenue, and at 8 p.m. Thursday at the Larkspur home of Joyleen Accosta, 659 Magnolia Avenue.

West Marin Citizens for Peevey will hold a chicken barbecue at noon Sunday at the West Marin Community Center in Point Reyes Station. Children under 12 will be admitted free.

Prop. 15 Committee Selects Chairman

Alfred J. Azevedo of Tiburon has been named Marin chairman of Californians For Yes On 15, the state employees salary initiative on the November ballot.

The measure would require periodic pay hikes for state employees and collective bargaining between the state and employee organizations.
